NEWTON RAISES $1,353,250

Four Days' Work on Loan Not Quite One Fourth of Quota—1968 Subscribers

Newton subscriptions to the Fourth Liberty Loan, officially reported, now amount to $1,353,250, by 1968 subscribers.

Of this total, purchases by Newton people outside of the local banks figure, up to Wednesday night, to $795,100 and number 392. Through the local banks, at the close of business Thursday night, the record is as follows:—

Newton Trust Co., 851 subscribers	$350,400
First National Bank, West Newton, 254	124,100
West Newton Savings Bank, 254	47,300
Newton Savings Bank, 217	36,300

The Women's Liberty Loan Committee of Newton has had reports of subscriptions through the efforts of women amounting to $513,000. On Wednesday, a booth in Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, conducted by members of the women's committee of that village, secured subscriptions for $36,750. The women of Waban on Saturday, the opening day of the campaign, took subscriptions for $110,000, and more have since been reported.

Newton people should realize that it will require prompt and hard work by all if this city is to buy its quota of the Fourth Liberty Loan, $5,778,000. This is a very large sum of money to be raised under favorable circumstances and conditions have not been such in this city. The influenza epidemic has prevented the public meetings, appeals in the churches and places of amusement, and delayed the opening of the house-to-house canvass. The latter has begun, but the solicitors are not allowed to enter any home where there is sickness, especially cases of influenza.

All the existing conditions make it more necessary that the people themselves call promptly and the utmost cannot afford for its own reputation to say the least, to lag in the campaign. The honor of the city demands that the campaign be closed quickly and in these times, when human effort is at a premium, a great deal of labor and time can be saved by acting at once.

The headquarters of Wards 1 and 7 is at 402 Centre street. The windows are decorated with Liberty Loan posters, there is a sign "Fourth Liberty Loan Headquarters, Wards 1 and 7" at the door, and another sign across the street directing people to the headquarters doors.

Ladies from the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee of Newton are in charge of the headquarters during the day taking subscriptions and giving out information regarding the loan. They began their work Monday morning, and have taken in a number of subscriptions.

These headquarters will be kept open during the whole of the campaign, and there is no reason why any one wishing to subscribe cannot do so through this campaign bureau. Information of all kinds regarding the loan may be obtained at this place, and the committees of these two wards hope the people of Newton will avail themselves of this opportunity for either information or to place a subscription. The Newton Trust Company and the Newton Savings Bank are also receiving subscriptions.

Newtonville began its campaign on Saturday with booths at one of the local drug stores and at the railway station as well as in the Newton Trust Company's office. Near the station is an unique sign, with a portrait of the Kaiser at the top and a cannon at the bottom, a shell traveling from the latter toward the former making on a graduated scale the subscriptions as received, the position of the shell indicating the amounts from time to time. The Newtonville Liberty Loan Committee's headquarters are at the Newton Club, where the special telephone is "Newton North one million."

The West Newton committee is making its headquarters at the West Newton Savings Bank which will be open daily from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M. A searchlight at night illuminates the building, which carries effective signs. At this bank and at the First National the opening days of the campaign have shown very gratifying results.

Two subscription offices are maintained by the Auburndale committee, one in the Trust Company's rooms and the other on Commonwealth avenue, near Lexington street.

Newton Centre before Saturday had in place a huge sign on the corner of Centre and Beacon streets, with the familiar figure of the charging soldier crying "Come On" and bearing a spirited appeal to "Come On" for the loan. Subscriptions are being received at the offices of the Newton Trust Company and the Newton Centre Savings Bank.

An office for Liberty Bond subscriptions in Newton Highlands has been opened in the Co-operative Bank.

FOOTBALL TEAM BEATEN

Newton High lost the first football game of the season Saturday when it was vanquished by Watertown High, 7 to 0, this being the visiting team's first victory over Newton on this gridiron. Newton High was minus its captain, Merrill Nutting, who was kept at home by a severe cold, and Capt. "Win" Chamberlain of Watertown also did not play.

The team will be much stronger tomorrow for its game with Everett High at Everett. Three veterans will join the team, Gullian, tackle, Captain Nutting, quarterback, and Clapp, guard. Coach Alie Dickinson is confident they will show the real pep. The three men named have been out of town on farming jobs, so this is their first game. The players are being carefully handled, not being permitted to dress on the field, and each puts on his football clothes at home. After practice they are furnished with coats or blankets to keep warm on their journey home.

EMERGENCY CANTEN

An emergency canteen is to be opened at Nonantum at the Steamers and the committees of these two wards hope the people of Newton will avail themselves of this opportunity for either information or to place a subscription. The Newton Trust Com-

RED CROSS HAS BIG WEEK

Its Emergency Hospital Leads Fight Against Grip. Other Splendid Work

The Emergency Hospital in the Woodland Park Hotel, established by the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross to take care of those suffering from the grip, is of course the big piece of Red Cross news in Newton this week. As told in the Graphic last week, the generosity of Dr. Winslow made it possible to use the building as a hospital, and the hard work of volunteers made it possible to open it and take patients in less than forty-eight hours from the time the hospital was decided upon.

Since last Friday morning the hospital has been the scene of a hard, persistent fight against the grip. Patients have been discharged as cured, and some have died in spite of all that could be done to save them. Those who are at work there are too busy to stop to give details of what has been and is being done or the names of those who are doing the splendid work. It is well within bounds to say that the hospital is something of which all Newton should be proud.

The Newton Red Cross wishes that all might know the names of those who have worked day and night, of how women have put all else aside to give themselves to fighting the epidemic, of those who sent in supplies and of how members of the Newton Constabulary have given up business and home ties and worked well and faithfully at tasks they never expected to be asked to undertake. At present the one thing the workers have time for is to fight the grip and care for the patients, but when the fight is won it will only fair to give the names of all who have done the work assigned to them to do.

It Is the Newton Chapter Now

What was the Newton Branch of the Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross is now the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross. This means the Newton Red Cross is one step nearer to the national centre of the Red Cross, and that it now comes directly under the jurisdiction of the New England Division of the Red Cross. This step by the Newton Branch was taken after consideration by the officials of both the New England division and the Metropolitan Chapter and was decided upon because all agreed that Newton could do more and better work as a Chapter than it has done as a Branch. It means more responsibility for the Newton officials, but the officials are confident the workers of Newton and the people of the city will give them the same enthusiastic support and help they have given in the past, and that the Newton Chapter will better the record which the Newton Branch made as the most efficient branch of the Metropolitan Chapter.

The Call for Women to Sew

Sewing is more and more becoming one of the most important divisions of Red Cross work. Everywhere the Red Cross is calling for women to sew. It is essential for the comfort and care of our sick and wounded and of the refugees for whom we must care that a large amount of sewing be done. The Newton Chapter hopes a large number of women will volunteer to do sewing regularly. It would help a lot if women would organize groups to do Red Cross sewing on one or more (Continued on Page 2.)

FOOTBALL GAME SANCTIONED

Special permission has been granted by the boards of health of Newton and Everett to play the football game scheduled between the high schools of the two cities tomorrow. Manager Howland Lord of Newton High conferred with Faculty Manager S. E. Marks of Everett High regarding this game, and the former thought it should be cancelled in view of the epidemic.

The matter was referred to the boards of health in the two cities and they saw no objection to the game. The Newton players will dress in their respective homes and go to Everett in automobiles. After the game, and the former thought it should be cancelled in view of the epidemic.

HOW TO FIGHT GRIP

If All Follow These Rules, Issued by State Health Department, Epidemic Would Soon be Over

To keep well, keep clean. Wash your hands before each meal. Don't go to crowded places. Avoid the person who sneezes. Smother your cough in your handkerchief.

Keep out of dirty restaurants. Warmth is necessary. Be well clothed.

Soda is unnecessary. Why run the risk of infection from a dirty glass? Safety lies in boiled dishes.

A common towel is only for filthy people.

You wouldn't use my tooth brush. Why use my drinking cup? Sleep well. Eat well. Play well. DON'T WORRY.

Instructions to Nurses

Practise what you preach—keep clean. Isolate your patients.

When in attendance upon patients, wear a mask which will cover both the nose and mouth. When the mask is on in place, do not handle it.

Change the mask every two hours. Owing to the scarcity of gauze, boil for one-half hour and rinse, then use the gauze again.

Wash your hands each time you come in contact with the patient. Use bichloride of mercury, 1-1000, or Liquor Cresol compound, 1-1000, for hand disinfection.

Obtain at least seven hours' sleep in each twenty-four hours. Eat plenty of good, clean food.

Walk in the fresh air and sunshine daily, if possible.

Sleep with your windows open in all weather.

Insist that the patient cough, sneeze or expectorate into cloths that may be disinfected or burned.

Boil all dishes.

Keep patients warm.

Instructions to Householders

Keep out of the sick room unless attendance is necessary.

Do not handle articles coming from the sick room until they are boiled.

Allow no visitors, and do not go visiting.

Call a doctor for all inmates who show signs of beginning sickness.

The usual symptoms are: inflamed and watery eyes, discharging nose, back ache, headache, muscular pain, and fever.

Keep away from crowded places such as "movies," theatres, street cars. See to it that your children are kept warm and dry both night and day.

Have sufficient fire in your home to dispense the dampness.

Open your windows at night. If cool weather prevails, add extra bed clothing.

Instructions to Workers

Walk to work if possible.

Avoid the person who coughs or sneezes.

2,000 GRIP CASES IN NEWTON?

Some Estimates Run to this Figure. 21 Deaths in Last Three Days Reported

The epidemic of influenza is in full wing in this city, and while it is not a reportable disease, the Chairman of the Newton Board of Health, Dr. Francis Geo. Curtis, estimates the number of cases as between 900 and 1000, while others do not hesitate to say that there are at least 2000 persons ill with the disease in this city.

Among the 300 student-soldiers at the High Schools, who have been under quarantine for the past two or three weeks, it is said that there were at one time 70 cases on the Hospital, and there have been six deaths.

The Red Cross Hospital which was established so promptly and efficiently last week at the former Woodland Park Hotel, with 50 beds, was filled to the limit by Sunday, and 25 beds were placed on the second floor on Monday and are filled at the present time.

The Newton Hospital was crowded to capacity before the Red Cross established its temporary hospital.

The first death filed with the health department from the disease was that of Mildred E. House, who died on September 18. By September 30, there were 50 deaths in this city, 36 men and 14 women, 35 of the 50 being between 20 and 40 years of age. 6 of these deaths were non-residents of the city. Beginning October 1 there have been 21 deaths, 2 of whom were non-residents.

Beginning today the disease has been made reportable by the attending physicians, and by next week it may be possible to obtain a line on how many cases there are in the city, although with the physicians working day and night, it may be impossible for them to report promptly.

The following deaths have taken place in this city from the disease since Monday, September 23 to this morning:

EXPERIENCES IN FRANCE

The following are interesting extracts from letters from Serg.-Major Alfred R. McIntyre:— August 11, 1918

Dear Walter:— We are billeted in the village of Farges, right in the centre of France a long way from the front line. The Allies seem to be doing wonderful things these last few weeks, and I hear many predictions that the war will be over by Christmas, in which case I may come back just as much a civilian as I am now. But I have an idea it may last longer, and we'll get at least a glimpse of the real thing. Of course it's all very fine to stay back where there is no danger, but I hate to think of getting home and having people ask about my experiences over here and my remarking: "Well, you see, I was billeted a couple of hundred miles from the front and never saw any field service." There's only one respect in which we can consider that we are in the field—that's the grub. We eat out of doors, either standing up or squatting, Indian like, and we don't eat much but beans, bacon, beef and bread. Not so bad, but thus far, we very often have not had two of them together, and beef and bread is better than just beef. The officers are more or less up against the same proposition. I guess that some days all the beef in Central France and all the bread a hundred miles away. This will, without question, be remedied before long, and meanwhile we eat all the crackers and chocolate we can get. It would be a pleasure to phone for the Loco and make the Thorndike in an hour for some of that favorite guinea-chicken and bread crumbs. I think the chief trouble right here in the food proposition is that we are on practically virgin soil and the lines of supply are not working as well as they will later on. This proposition of running an army, I realize more and more, is perfectly stupendous.

4 Sept.

Dear — Last Saturday I got away on a week-end pass to Boulogne, a sizable city about 25 miles north of us. It is a railroad junction and has street cars and some good-sized shops. Most of the boys who went up there had to sleep in a field there being no ample hotel accommodation, but we were lucky enough to land bunk at the Red Cross, 5 flat and two blankets, (no mattress) not the most comfortable bed in the world but better than none. For a franc we breakfasted - on oatmeal, scrambled eggs, bread and coffee, and we got two real meals at a restaurant, and genuine sherbet and cake at a tea shop. How we did eat! Our regular diet of fried potatoes, macaroni and rice does not quite satisfy our appetites. Of course we can not expect back here to get supplies to the extent that they do at the front, where they are certainly entitled to every consideration. Well, besides eating to our heart's content, we saw a real American movie, Norma Talmage in The Private Secretary. A few nights ago eight of us had a dinner party at a farm-house four miles away from here; it was very amusing. In order to obtain every attention possible the man who arranged things told the people of the house it was my birthday, with the result that I was given a banquet and had to make a speech. I think I shall be able to translate it into French for the benefit of our host. You see then that we are having an occasional good time.

6 September

Dear Mother: It was a year ago yesterday that the first draftees went to Devens. Two or three of the companies, not including my own, last night celebrated the anniversary. The Headquarters Company, which I am in, had a party, but not I think a very successful one. I had a party at the Supply Company six miles away where they had a real party—fried chicken, mashed potatoes, boiled onions, pudding, melon, and a keg of beer, over which they had a "Key." Our next annual re-union will be held in Boston, Sept. 5, 1919. The affair cost the company mess fund three or four hundred francs but the effect on the esprit de corps made the expenditure worth while I think.

A sales commissary has been opened in our district, where we can every so often buy a can of peaches or jam or lemon drops. No chocolate to be had, and I'm just keeping ahead on cigarettes; of course I am not smoking. I'll miss any more. Sleeping at regimental headquarters is all right now but it would not be a good place to spend the winter. One wonders how it will be then. I suppose stoves will be provided, otherwise there'll be lots of colds and rheumatism. And our mess hall, which is out in a field with just enough canvas to cover the kitchen reminds me of our camping-days in Maine, but would never do in the winter months—that is, we say it wouldn't. It is curious, how, when you think you will be in a place for quite a time, you expect so much, while if you are moving around the way the boys at the front do, you would think nothing of eating out of doors in any old place, just because you wouldn't know whether it would be better or worse at the next place. Well, we have been well taken care of thus far, and doubtless will be when it is a good deal more difficult than it is now.

Alfred.

days each week. Newton has a number of women of marked ability as organizers. If some of them would hold of organizing sewing groups the Newton Chapter has not the slightest doubt that in sewing it would take very high rank among all chapters. Women who desire information or help in the matter may get it at any Red Cross workroom or by communicating personally, or by letter, or telephone, with the headquarters of the Newton Chapter at Talbot House, Newtonville. The telephone number at headquarters is Newton North 2717.

Home Service Work

The Home Service division of the Newton Chapter has been able to be of assistance to more than three hundred families in Newton from which men have gone to the front, the camps or the navy, but there ought to be a still wider acquaintance with the work it is doing. The Home Service strives to be for the soldier's family at home what the Red Cross is for the soldier at the front. It stands ready to give help or advice, and is a part of organized America at home standing behind organized America at the front. As such it wishes the soldiers' families and the people of the city to know it. At the disposal of the Home Service division is the entire organization of the American Red Cross recognized by the national government as a part of the nation's war organization. It has secured information in regard to men when families have lost trace of them, it has straightened out delays in the making of payments, given help and advice in cases of sickness and helped solve many a home problem. It wants the families of Newton soldiers and sailors to look upon it as a friend to whom they have at all times the right to go to with their problems. The Red Cross is in this war to help those who go to fight, and those whom the fighters leave at home.

Peach Stones and Nut Shells

One of the papers says the fact that what was once a great nation in the wasteful nation in the world has taken to saving peach stones and nut shells is one of the most significant signs of the times. Newton has done its part in this saving and is still at it. Plum stones, olive stones and apricot stones are as valuable as peach stones. So, too, are date, prune and cherry stones. Save them all because they are of use in making gas masks to protect our soldiers from German gas attacks. Save all kinds of nut shells, too, and take all you save to your village war workroom or to Red Cross headquarters at Talbot House, Newtonville. The more stones and nut shells there are saved the fewer men there will be injured or killed by the fumes from the enemy gas shells.

Workrooms Closed

Because of the grip all the Red Cross workrooms in Newton were closed this week. As soon as the epidemic is over the rooms will be opened again and work resumed. There has been a lot of good work done this fall in the filling of emergency orders that seemed almost impossible at first, but Newton has got in the way of doing the seemingly impossible. There is plenty of work ahead. Every man and woman in the city who wishes to help win the war and to work for those who are fighting should register at once, as one willing to work, and prepare to set aside at least one day or night in every week for war work until victory is won.

IN THE THICK OF THE FIGHT

Corporal Moore Tells How the Boys Put Fritz on the Run

Corporal Raymond Moore, of Co. L, 101st Regiment, who was in the thick of the American drive starting July 18, writes home to his mother giving a thrilling account of his experiences. Ameyforces, France, August 1, 1918.

Dearest Mother:— I suppose you have been worrying about me lately, but, thank God, I came through it without a scratch. We have been pretty busy since I wrote you my last letter around July 10, and we didn't have any more chance to write until today. I must begin now and tell you some of my experiences.

On the 11th of July we moved into the town of Veaux and took up our positions. That is the town where the Marines did their good work. Well, everything went nice until the morning of the 15th, my birthday, and I thought it was my last one on this earth, but somebody's prayers were heard and I was spared.

At 4 o'clock in the morning they bombarded our positions pretty heavy for fifteen minutes and all we had was two casualties. Well, the Boche started over about 800 strong on us and we opposed them with our machine guns, but when the barrage lifted we opened up on them, and believe me, they went back faster than they came over. Well, we beat them off, but they broke through between my company and the company on our right, and got in back of us. The other company went back and took up their positions and also got 28 Boche prisoners. I thought I will never forget my 22nd birthday the longest day I live.

Well, everything was peaceful for two days and at last we got the order that there was going to be a big offensive started on the 19th, and we were playing a big part in it. On the morning of the 19th we went over the top and I and I Cos. were the shock troops of our regiment, and the 1st and 2nd platoons were in the first wave. Well, we started out at Veaux and advanced about 8 kilometers that day, which brought us up to Chateau-Thierry. We lost some good men and I lost the best pal I had in the company, but I suppose someone had to go. The next day we started again, with the 1st Battalion first and we in reserve, and advanced our lines again. All this time, French troops were driving on our left and right and squeezing Fritz in a pocket. The drive is on a 60-mile front. Well we went about half way and then they took our division out for a rest, and we are on our way to the front. I don't think we will go in again for some time. I understand we are going to get our furloughs.

Well, Ma, if you follow the map of this drive you can see what a box Fritz is in, and our troops are still squeezing him every day. This was the hardest blow the Kaiser ever got, they went through it, thank God, and you for praying for me.

THE WEST NEWTON MUSIC SCHOOL

After earnest consideration, it has been decided that a strong effort should be made to hold together the organization of the West Newton Music School during the war, running the School on the existing basis, and as economically as possible, and holding intact until happier times the valuable co-operations and relationship which have been built up through its seven years of constructive work. The reasons for this decision are:

1. It has been proved that there is a need for providing GOOD musical instruction at prices that wage-earners can pay.

2. A School has been developed which meets local needs and conditions; which serves all parts of Newton which has become thoroughly established in the public confidence and has proved its usefulness to the individual as well as to the community; has won the co-operation of municipal, public school and welfare authorities, and a measure of financial support; has developed an efficient staff of teachers and workers; has established valuable group work, Junior and Senior Orchestras, Glee Clubs and Chorus.

3. To abandon this work, even under the great pressure the war has brought to all, would be to nullify these achievements and to handicap any similar work attempted at a future time.

Last year—1917-1918—the subscriptions added to a small endowment, and to what the pupils themselves pay (about half of the expense is thus met) enabled the School to provide for the pupils already under its charge. We now appeal to the people of Newton to help us through the coming season. Our justification for asking for money for this work at this time is that such schools as ours, which arouse and foster an interest in music and provide thorough instruction at rates which the smallest incomes can afford, have never been as valuable as at the present moment, when our civil and military leaders are making constant appeals for music as a means of strengthening the morale not only of our sailors and soldiers, but of our citizens as well.

Please send your subscription as promptly as possible to Mrs. L. A. Kimberly, Treasurer, 72 Perkins Street, West Newton.

The officers are: Miss Mabel T. Eager, President; Mrs. L. A. Kimberly, Treasurer; Miss Marion Chidsey, Secretary; Miss Elizabeth Pyffe, Musical Director.

What "Slow" Accounts Mean

"SLOW" ACCOUNTS mean something more than the mere matter of delay in receiving payment of bills.

THEY MEAN DUPLICATION OF EFFORT, the maintenance of records and additional officework that would be unnecessary if such accounts were paid within the reasonable specified time.

BUT MOST OF ALL they mean that labor which might be devoted to necessary tasks essential to the comfort, convenience and efficiency that you derive from your telephone service, is wasted on what should be unnecessary tasks.

AT THIS TIME IT IS DESIRABLE that unnecessary labor be eliminated as much as possible so that the output of necessary labor may be increased.

Subscribers who pay their telephone bills promptly help to conserve labor at a time when the conservation of all labor is a national necessity.

EDITORIAL

How much is it worth to you, Mr. Business-man, to have this terrible war for human liberty, 3000 miles away from you on the fields of France? How much do you suppose the business men of Cambrai, Lille and St. Quentin would have been willing to give to be able to escape the terrible privations they have endured the past few years. What would you give to escape similar experiences, if the unspendable Hun are successful, and should bring to this country the horrible results of war.

Your answer should be read in the amount of Liberty Bonds for which you subscribe, here and NOW.

The members of the Newton Constabulary are again showing the good people of this city that there is work for an organization like theirs, even if some did scoff at them a few months ago. Their work this week at the Red Cross Hospital at Woodland Park Hotel is entitled to the highest praise and credit.

About one hundred of our subscribers have recently received a notice that the War Industries Board requires us to discontinue all subscriptions which are over three months in arrears, and orders from Washington have to be obeyed now-a-days. Please don't blame the editor therefore, if you do not receive the GRAPHIC as usual.

Canvassers for the Liberty Loan report that in most cases, persons solicited by a house-to-house method, have already made their subscriptions to the loan. This is a splendid indication of the spirit of our people and their readiness to support the national government in these troublous times.

The ladies of the Newton Red Cross and Dr. Guy M. Winslow of Lasell Seminary are entitled to great praise for their splendid and prompt action in changing the old Woodland Park Hotel into a well equipped and efficient hospital.

DEATH OF F. A. SKELTON

Inventor Who Helped Develop Fire Alarm Telegraph

Francis A. Skelton, 74, one of the old residents of Newton Highlands, died suddenly Monday of heart disease, from which he had suffered some time.

Mr. Skelton was a mechanic of unusual skill, and developed ability as an inventor. He had his training in a seven years' apprenticeship in England, and after being in business in Canada for some years he entered the employ of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company some 40 years ago. He was prominent among the men who designed and developed this apparatus, and had taken out a number of patents on various features of this system.

He was one of the founders of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Newton Highlands, and was its first choirmaster.

He leaves a widow, whose maiden name was Jane Pooler and whom he married in Canada about 50 years ago, and two sons, Henry H., of Hyde street, and George F., of Nome, Alaska.

The funeral was private owing to the epidemic and was conducted by Rev. L. A. Parsons of St. Paul's Church. Burial was at Newton Cemetery.

He Gives His All! Will You?

If You had a boy who is now over there To fight, perhaps die, for our liberty dear; If he needed rifles, munitions, and guns, To help him to vanquish the dastardly Huns, Would you cleave to the gold of which you are fond, Or spend your last cent on a Liberty Bond?

That boy over there, men! is everyone's son. He saves this fair land from the lust-loving Hun; Perhaps he is wounded, maybe he is dead, Some other boys march where his footsteps have led; They are crying for help from over the Pond, Go! Spend your last cent on a Liberty Bond.

What good is your money if war brings reverse? Your blood and your gold will then both bear a curse; Go! Spend it today with a patriot's heart, For the boy over there now doing his part; He needs your good help, will you up and respond, And spend your last cent on a Liberty Bond?

Some day he may come back to you and to me, His manly form crippled that we might be free, Should he ask you in faith just what you had done While he racked his flesh on the hate of the Hun, Will you look in his eye, with fondness respond Boy! I spent my all on a Liberty Bond!

WEEKS AND RECONSTRUCTION

Statenmanship of a high order marks the appeal of Senator Weeks for immediate consideration of the tremendous problems which will face the United States immediately upon restoration of peace. The programme which he outlined in the Senate last week, and which has been received with a chorus of approval by the press and public everywhere, shows breadth of vision in every feature. And that his plan to create a bi-partisan committee of Congress immediately to undertake the study of industrial and financial questions so soon to be upon us should have been accepted instantly by the Republicans of the Senate is a tribute not only to Mr. Weeks' standing with his associates but to the electorate of Massachusetts of which he is a worthy representative. The State has a right to be proud of the fact that two epoch-making utterances should have come from its two senators in Washington.

Both the United States and the Allies have accepted Senator Lodge's definition of terms of peace as the first clear-cut statement which has proceeded from an American statesman in a position of responsibility. The American people now find in Senator Weeks' plea for industrial preparedness an epochal note of equal significance along a different line. It is not too much to say that Weeks and Lodge have mapped out a national programme which is attracting the earnest attention today of thoughtful Americans from coast to coast—and most of all of the fortunate families that fly the service flag. There is food for thought in the fact that no such programme of practical statesmanship involving the future welfare of the United States has emanated from any representative of the party now in control of our affairs.

The questions which Senator Weeks believes should now be made the subject of thorough study and investigation commend themselves immediately to every American who thinks along the lines of practical patriotism. Germany must be crushed in war and will be crushed, but that is only the beginning, so far as concerns our future growth. It will not do to confine ourselves to vague terms of internationalism and universal good will, or to pleas for the preservation of democracy. If democracy is to be preserved and to extend its influence throughout the world, it is essential first of all that the United States, which is the birthplace of real democracy, should maintain its industrial independence and national integrity; and to the protection of these vital things the programme which Senator Weeks has outlined is essential.

It is high time for statesmen to give to these problems their most conscientious study. It will fare ill with those who stand in the way of such a programme if we shall find ourselves as unprepared for peace as we were unprepared for war.—Boston Transcript.

WHEN AGE ARRIVES

Rules That One Man Promises He Will Observe.

Of Course There Is a Proviso, but the World Would Be Sweeter if They Were Kept Generally in Mind.

When I am old I will observe the following items (perhaps):

I will not try to act nor dress nor talk so as to make people think I am younger than I am.

I will not pretend to be young, nor be angry when called old, nor ashamed of my age.

I will not complain of being old.

I will not continually remind people of my old age to secure their sympathy, or to hear them say I am not old after all, or do not seem so.

I will not form the habit of indulging in reminiscences.

I will be particularly careful not to repeat the same anecdotes over and over.

I will not complain of the present and claim the past was much better.

If I am deaf, weak-eyed, lame or otherwise afflicted I will not advertise my infirmities, but avoid obtruding them upon the notice of others as much as possible.

I will not talk of myself, my works, or my achievements, even of my mistakes, any more than is necessary.

I will speak cheerfully or keep still.

I will never indulge in cynicism, never sneer at youth, and I will try always to appreciate what younger folks do.

I will be as little bored as I can, and never say I am bored, nor, if possible, act as if I were bored.

I will not give advice unless it is asked, and not often then.

I will not be irritable.

I will not be a nuisance nor an encumbrance, so far as in me lies.

I will not be offended by neglect, but I will remember the words of the sage: "Those who come to see me do me honor; those who do not come to see me do me a favor."

I will be as little disagreeable as possible, and will never use my natural disagreeableness as a means of getting my way.

I will cultivate the friendship and companionship of young children, who alone understand old age.

I will learn to love to be alone. As Ibsen says: "The freest soul is the soul that is alone."

I shall try to show the world that old age is spiritual opportunity and not physical calamity.

Forced to become a by-stander, I shall try to be a hopeful one.

I shall try to sweeten like the pear Doctor Holmes describes that mellow and becomes full flavored before it drops from the stem, and shall try not to sour and dry and rot.

I shall conceive my life's triumph to be to grow triumphantly, victoriously old.

In a word, I shall try to adjust myself to old age, as to all other facts of life.—Life.

Lucky Photographer.

It is not always that things turn out so happily for the rash person who ventures to take snapshots on the east coast of England, as they did in the case of a young lady in the following story: She was seen photographing on a point of the coast, and was promptly approached by a special, who informed her of the enormity of her offense, took her name and address, and removed her camera. She heard nothing more of the matter for some time, but one morning she was amazed at receiving a check running into three figures, and a letter from headquarters informing her that her photographs were not only very good, but resulted in the capture of an enemy submarine.

Confidence in the Cause.

The champion optimist of America is private B—, now on active duty with his regiment somewhere in France. The regiment, after a turn in the trenches, was willing away its time in a rest camp, and the officers were seeking to get the men to use some of their spare minutes in the study of French. The men did not take very kindly to the idea, and one of the officers sought to chide them for their lack of interest. Private B— cut him off with the following query: "What in h— do I want to learn French for? They don't speak that in Berlin, do they?"

Pickling Olives.

A new method of pickling ripe olives which, it is claimed, will increase the capacities of the factories over 200 per cent has been discovered by the University of California. Heretofore it has taken 15 days to pickle ripe olives. By this new method it can be done in six days or less. The process is a result of four years of experiments.

His Opinion.

Willis—What do you think of this plan of turning all the clocks ahead an hour each day?

Gills—Just another foxy scheme of the bankers to make a man's notes come due sooner, I think.—Judge.

Some Satisfaction.

"How did the shortage of gasoline affect you?"

"Well," replied Mr. Chuggins, "it was a kind of comfort to know off-hand exactly why the old machine wouldn't run."—Washington Star.

HAVE THEIR OWN TROUBLES

By No Means an Easy Task for Stokers to Hit the Furnace Door When Ship Rolls.

It was while I was being initiated into the technique of stoking by shoveling coal under the boilers that a change of course brought the swinging seas dead ahead, and set the ship rolling even more drunkenly than before, writes Lewis R. Freeman in Popular Mechanics Magazine. After failing to hit the "dark spots" and "hollows" two or three times as I staggered to the roll, and once even missing the furnace door itself, one of the stokers, taking compassion, relieved me of the scoop and put the trouble right with a half-dozen quickly tossed shovelfuls. I was frankly glad to work over to where I could take a "half-nelson" round a bar by the starboard bunker.

A heavy slam-banging from the opposite end of the boiler room indicated that things were not going quite so smoothly there, and edging cautiously along, I was presently able to get some hint of the cause from the words of a volubly cursing stoker who limped out to tell me that the "blinker" skip "as took charge." Rubbing a bruised shin and glowering balefully from a blackened eye which appeared to have been bumped against a boiler, he explained, in language more forceful than elegant, that some impractical theorist had encouraged them to experiment with wheels on the side of the skip, with the idea of making it easier to push about over the coal-cluttered deck. In the picturesque language of the sea, it had "taken charge," and so effectually that one swift, straight rush to starboard, followed by a "googly" progress back to port, put every man, whether by chance or intent, barred his way, more or less hors de combat.

Straight down the one-in-three incline from the port to the starboard bunkers lolloped the juggernaut, dashing the protesting anatomies of the stokers to left and right as it went. Spitting blood and oaths indiscriminately, one man clung to it all the way, however, and he also it was who—taking advantage of the tilt—finally rendered it harmless by pushing it over on its side, where it was left wiggling impotently like an overturned turtle.

Primroses.

I was at the railroad station in London, England, when the ambulance train came, says a correspondent, and as the stretchers were gently lifted out I idly picked up a damp little bunch of primroses and wood anemones which had fallen at my feet.

A pair of quick eyes, slightly dimmed with pain, noticed. "They're mine, miss, if you don't mind—must have fallen off of my blanket—arms no use at present, as you see."

I made the posy quite safe this time, near enough to his face for the fresh smell of the moss which still clung about the stalks to reach him. I wish that whoever had gathered and tied up all these little posies in some peaceful woodland spot, and sent them with such care to Waterloo labeled, "For the Wounded," could have been standing by my side that night.

Malaria Attacks Army.

The Annales de Medicine says, on the authority of Delelle and his co-workers, "that the epidemic of malaria that has affected the armies operating in Macedonia forms, if not the most important, at least one of the most important, epidemics known in history. Not since the armies of Xerxes were decimated by malaria in that same region has there been a situation comparable to that of these modern forces in the Macedonian valleys and marshes. The extreme gravity of the infection, the early and large proportion of pernicious cases, the apparent failure of preventive doses of quinine, the prevalence of malignant tertian malaria and the frequency of hemoglobinuria were special features."

Little Bread Winners.

Before the war 250,000 British schoolchildren under fourteen years of age were working for wages out of school; since the war the number has largely increased. Here are a few instances: A boy of ten working forty-seven and three-quarter hours a week in addition to attending school; a boy of eleven years working two and a half hours before school, two and a half hours after school, and thirteen hours on Saturday; a boy of twelve working one hour before school, one hour at midday, four hours after school, and thirteen hours on Saturday.

Saving Ice.

In response to a request by the food administration that the use of artificial ice be reduced to a minimum, a large hotel of New York city has posted a notice in each room asking that guests use ice sparingly. The result has been a reduction in the calls for ice water. Ammonia is used in large quantities in making artificial ice and, because of the demand for this important chemical in the manufacture of explosives, a shortage has been created.

Appropriate.

Mr. Bacon—Are you through with that bonnet you wore last winter, dear?

Mrs. Bacon—Why, yes.

"May I have it?"

"I suppose so. But what do you want it for?"

"I want to use it on the scare-crow I'm going to put out in the cornfield."

SAVE PEACH STONES—AND YOU'LL SAVE SOLDIERS

Save all peach, plum, prune, apricot, date and olive stones.

No matter how few you have save them.

If you can not take them to the local war work room or to the Red Cross Headquarters save them at home in a bowl or box.

No matter how few you have save them.

As soon as grip conditions permit the Boy Scouts will make a house to house collection of fruit stones for the Red Cross.

The stones are needed for making gas masks.

Gas masks protect soldiers from German gas attacks.

WAR EXHIBIT LIBERTY LOAN TRAINS FOR NEW ENGLAND

Story of the War to Be Told by Relics

Patriots working for their country in localities far removed from those centers which are in active contact with the war are to have the war brought to them, as it were, by means of two exhibition trains to be sent out about Oct 1 by the Publicity Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee of New England.

The trains will carry exhibits of war material now being shipped from the battlefields of Europe by Gen. Pershing and the allied governments, and soldiers who have seen service in the trenches or sailors who have been active on the seas.

The purpose of the trains is to place these loyal citizens of the remoter districts in more direct touch with the battle line to which so many of them have sent sons, husbands, brothers, and to aid in the campaign for the Fighting Fourth Liberty Loan which begins Sept. 23 and closes Oct. 19.

The two trains, starting at the same time, are to traverse New England. The schedule of dates for the various towns where they will stop will be announced later. This is under the direction of the state chairmen of the Liberty Loan who are now preparing it with the local representatives and the railroads. Each train will consist of two flat cars, one box car and one tourist sleeper. The flat cars will be mounted with guns, bombs, shells, parts of airplanes and other materials of warfare on land and sea and in the air, including captured war material. Among the latter are finishing clubs taken from the Austrians who used them to "finish" the allied wounded who came within their reach.

Uniforms, official photographs and such other things as cannot well be exposed to the weather will be exhibited in the box car.

The approach of the train to its stopping place is to be announced by the ringing of bells and the blowing of whistles followed by the firing of bombs or trench mortars. Each community will be asked to declare a holiday on the day of the exhibit or for at least so long as the train is in the town that every one may have an opportunity to hear the word direct from Over There and to see with his own eyes the implements that are being used by the soldiers of all nations in this greatest of all wars.

The train will probably be welcomed, as it properly should, by local committees and the exercises will be opened with prayer, for does not the train specifically represent a holiness of purpose and of sacrifice that is measured only by the vastness of the war itself? The town officials, the Old Guard and Boy Scouts are expected to be in attendance and the school children, it is hoped, will be out in full force.

There will be speeches, of course, demonstrations of equipment by veteran soldiers and brief talks by them to tell of their personal experiences on the battlefields. Opportunity will be given to those who wish to buy bonds and after the train has left the local committees will see to it that those who wish to subscribe more may do so.

Although the idea for these trains originated in New England last winter and trains similar to these were sent through the South and West in the spring, none were sent to this part of the country owing to the congestion of railroad traffic here. Wherever the trains did go they met with enthusiasm. Farmers brought their families 15 and 20 miles to see the train and in the mountainous sections people journeyed on foot many miles to see the story of the war as told by the great relics exhibition.

Forests of Norway.

The total area of Norway is about 124,500 square miles, of which approximately 26,340 square miles are covered by forests. The greater timber tracts lie in the southern and central sections of the country, where the land is less mountainous and the climate more favorable to forest growth.

A Racy Item.

A New York dye expert declares that "American dyes are as fast, class for class, as German dyes."

Happy Thought—Write article on speed in dyes. Study the classes, those in the 204 class and so on. Discourage bookmaking and side bets as degrading to a noble sport.

Garbage Utilization.

Hogs can be made to utilize much eatable material which would otherwise be wasted, according to a statement issued by the Connecticut Agricultural college. The report calls attention to the saving accomplished in Minneapolis, where between $50,000 and $60,000 is saved annually by using swine to consume the garbage of the city instead of burning it. Whereas Minneapolis formerly operated its garbage disposal at a loss, the city now receives $126 per ton for its garbage as hog feed.

Encouraging Fact.

I know of no more encouraging fact than the unquestionable ability of man to elevate his life by a conscious endeavor. It is something to be able to paint a particular picture or to carve a statue, and so to make a few objects beautiful, but it is far more glorious to carve and paint the very atmosphere and medium through which we look, which morally we can do.—Thoreau.

Fighting Doors.

All the doors should swing high enough from the floor to clear any rugs placed near them. And they should be placed so that they will not jam against one another. I know of two doors in a house that persist in locking knobs just as two angry bulls lock horns in mortal combat—or is it deer that do this? And when these doors are in that position, you can't get out, but have to back out, go around another way and separate them. We don't intend having any doors like that in this house.—Harry I. Shumway, in House Beautiful.

HERE IS NEW IDEA

Woman's View of What Masculine Dress Should Be.

Possibility That the War Will Bring About Such a Transformation as She Seems to Think Would Be Desirable.

The war has brought many changes in the world, and it is certainly hoped that mere man will now take a tumble and let the uniform of the soldier suggest to him a new mode of dress. We see daily the trim figures of "our boys," with the neat-fitting uniform coat, baggy trousers to the knee and the leggings that so well set off the leg.

Man's present dress is always a matter of ridicule, is unsightly and should be changed to something more sensible and economical.

Let us build for Mr. Man a new kind of suit, a woman writes to the editor of the New York World. At first he will howl and say no, but if women will persevere and say you must, he will, and in the end be happy.

First, his figure. The abdominal belt is man's only excuse for the corset. He wants it and he needs it far more than woman, and if only for support alone. Put him into a regular woman's corset of waistline height and long hip and reduce that ugly stomach several inches.

He will not look foppish, but will have that military cut we all admire. He will naturally feel ill at ease and compressed for a few days, but that will disappear and a feeling of real living will follow, for his lungs will expand, the muscles be tightly supported and vim replace languor.

The corset was originally worn by men, so let us put them back into their own garment. Women are on the average far healthier than men, and they are daily increased in a corset.

Now we have a figure to work on. Next, put him back into knee pants and long stockings. Is anything more becoming than the knickers of old days?

Think of the cloth saved and that ugly bag in his long trousers forever eliminated. Then the coat tailored to curve to his figure, lapels a thing of the past, and instead the military collar effect.

Coats to be cut shorter and vests done away with entirely. Think of the saving of cloth in the suit alone. Even his shirts, while in effect the same as now worn, could be shortened in a woman's shortwaist, and of far less material, so as to conform to a narrower figure. Make a change in his shoes and go back to the old colonial type of narrower lines and a higher heel. What is prettier than the old colonial shoe and buckle?

Prevailing cloths would make up becomingly for business and street wear, but the possibilities for evening dress are unlimited. His evening clothes are hideous. Silken breeches, flowing waists, etc., lend untold possibilities at a dinner or function.

And the comforts on a hot summer day. Let him have several pairs of white duck knickers and an array of shirts. White pumps and stockings to his ankles. His evening clothes are hideous. Silken breeches, flowing waists, etc., lend untold possibilities at a dinner or function.

DON'T BE A QUITTER

Don't be a quitter whatever you do; Keep at the task no matter how blue; Somewhere, sometime, you will win in the fight; Don't be a quitter, man, it isn't right.

Work may be tiresome and hope pretty slim, But man, to bring out the best that's in him, Must miss a few marks and take a few bumps, Still keep at the task when way in the dumps.

Taking things easy and letting things slide May seem the right thing viewed from the wrong side; By plugging, striving, and fighting your way, You'll get the reward that's well worth your pay.

Cheer up, have courage, believe in yourself; You can if you will—your will is your self. Don't be a quitter—go out—win the race; Be square with your fellows, but set them the pace.

—Harrisburg Rotary Tachograph.

CAPT. DRINKWATER WOUNDED

Mrs. Amy Drinkwater of New York city, who is residing this winter in her old family home at 114 Temple street, West Newton, has been officially notified that her only son, Capt. John Gardner Drinkwater of the First United States Engineers, was severely wounded in the thigh while in action on July 20 and is now at an officers' hospital in Paris. Captain Drinkwater was born in Kansas City, Mo., in 1887, was graduated from Stevens Polytechnic Institute and took up the profession of mechanical engineer, being connected with the Selas Company in New York. He went to Plattsburg in May, 1917, receiving a first lieutenant's commission. On August 17 of that year he sailed overseas with his regiment and several months later was elevated to a captaincy. He has a sister whose husband is also in service. Captain Drinkwater is a grandson of Gardner P. Gates, a Boston business man who made his home in West Newton.

I AM PUBLIC OPINION

All men fear me. I declare that Uncle Sam shall not go to his knees to beg you to buy his bonds. That is no position for a fighting man. But if you have money to buy and do not buy, I will make this a No Man's Land for you.

I will judge you not by an allegiance expressed in mere words. I will judge you not by your mad cheers as our boys march away to whatever fate may have in store for them.

I will judge you not by the warmth of the tears that shed over the lists of the dead and the injured that come to us from time to time.

But, as wise as I am just, I will judge you by the material aid you give to the fighting men who are facing death that you may live and move and have your being in a world made safe. I warn you—don't talk patriotism over here unless your money is talking victory over there.

I am public opinion. As I judge, all men stand or fall.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

GRACE M. BURT, Editor.

Once again the Club Editor extends greetings to the club women of Newton. The opening of the fourteenth season of this department finds the city in the throes of the most serious epidemic ever known in this community. To the sorrowing Editor extends sympathy, and to the suffering the wish for a speedy return to health. Club meetings scheduled for the first week in October have without exception been cancelled, and those for the coming week have for the most part been postponed.

From the Welfare Bureau comes the call for assistance from the women of the city. Volunteers to go into homes where the mother of the family is ill or has been taken away, who will spend a few hours a day looking after the little ones or showing the older children how to take care of their younger brothers and sisters, or assisting in a thousand and one ways which the woman of experience knows how to do. All can help. An appeal is asked to report immediately to either the Welfare Bureau or the Board of Health. If one has not been directly in touch with these cases, it is hard to imagine the pitiful situations which are arising daily. Now is the time to return in a very real sense to the primitive conditions of our country and be the real neighbor which has always characterized the country communities of our land. These cases are not merely in the homes of the poor, but are arising every day in homes where there is money, but no help to be obtained. Let this call be heeded speedily.

State Federation

Two appointments are scheduled by the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs for the coming days of this month, an all-day conference for the Second District at Wollaston on October 15, and the Presidents' Conference on the 17th at North Abington. Health conditions will undoubtedly determine whether or no they will take place and announcement of the same will be given next week.

Local Announcements

The Newton Highlands Monday Club has definitely postponed the meeting of October 7 to October 14.

The Christian Era Study Club will omit its meeting planned for Monday next and hold one extra meeting at the end of the season, when the topic assigned for October 7 will be given.

The Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. gave up its meeting of September 30.

The Auburndale Review Club gave up its meeting on Tuesday of this week and will open its season on the 15th, conditions permitting, with the program arranged for that date. The earlier program will probably be carried out later in the year.

At the meeting of the executive board of the Woman's Club of Newton Highlands on Thursday morning it was voted to omit the meeting of the club which would regularly occur on Tuesday, October 8.

The first meeting of the Auburndale Woman's Club, which was to take place on Tuesday, October 8, is to be omitted on account of the influenza epidemic. The club has bought a $50 Liberty Bond with the money which was to have paid for the entertainment by the Knickerbocker Quintet. The next meeting will be, as scheduled in the Year Book, a lecture on "The Russian Empire; or Possibilities of National Change," by Earl Barnes, Ph.D., at the Technical High School, Newtonville. Anyone desiring tickets for the entire course of Earl Barnes' lectures may obtain them from Mrs. H. Alfred Hanson, chairman of the education committee.

Enterprise has always characterized the Auburndale Woman's Club and the work of the summer is added testimony. Since the first of August the Conservation and Home Economics committees have maintained a Fair Facts Centre three days each week, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, while on the latter day there has been held a Community Market. The undertaking has met with unqualified success and will be continued through this month.

Women and the Fighting Fourth Liberty Loan

Notwithstanding the alarming epidemic the Woman's Committee on the Fourth Liberty Loan is doing active service in this city. The first day showed satisfactory results, but more and more and more must be done to make sure of Newton's quota of $5,750,000. The spirit animating the boys "over there" must also prevail here if success is to be achieved. The Newton Woman's Committee has arranged selling booths in the following places through the city: Newton Centre, office of the Newton Trust Co.; Newton Highlands, Co-operative Bank; West Newton, Bungalow Tea Room and in the banks; Newtonville, Newtonville Trust Co., and Payne's Drug Store; Newton, Newton Trust Co. and Newcomb's Express office; Auburndale, Newton Trust Co., and Co-operative Bank, Cash Market, Auburn street, and Food Facts Centre, Commonwealth avenue; Waban, Miss Blood's Store.

Support the women and buy now, buy until it hurts.

REPUBLICAN CLUB

The Republican Club of Ward 2, Newton, held its annual meeting Friday evening at Masonic building, and the secretary's report showed 180 members. The following officers were elected: President, Frank M. Copeland; vice-presidents, Charles F. Avery, Fred M. Blanchard, Frank L. Nagle; secretary, F. Clifton Bassett; treasurer, Russell C. Gibbs; executive committee (one year term), Frank T. Benner, H. Philip Patey, William Price, Lincoln Trussell. Two year term, William E. Arnold, Joseph B. Robson, William E. Trussell. Two year term, William E. Arnold, Albert D. Auryansen, Charles D. Cabot, Albert P. Carter, Albert M. Lyon, Charles L. Wilkins.

TO THE FIGHTING MAN

The little lad runs in and out His home and schoolroom door; The lassies, bless them, play and sing To dollies, as of yore; And every lad and every lass, With eyes black, brown or blue, Knows you have kept the Hun away— Is thanking God for you!

And hills and dales and meadow lands Beneath a cheering sun, Are echoing with sounds of men And work that's safely done; And Dawn comes up the old sweet way, And star-white shines the dew; And everything—that's not a Hun— Is thanking God for you!

And women work and women play, Though eyes may hold a tear; And babies eat and babies sleep Without a thought of fear; And all throughout this happy land, Warm hearts are beating true; And every heart—that's not a Hun— Is thanking God for you!

—WINIFRED VIRGINIA JORDAN.

TOBACCO APPRECIATED

To the Newton Graphic: I have received some very pleasant responses to my small contribution of last winter to the tobacco fund. Some of the boys used the cards in the packages, and others wrote special notes of their own. One sent thanks and enclosed the six verses beginning: "When the cold is making ice cream of the marrow of your bones, When you're shaking like the mischief and your feet are dead as stones, Your life seems cold and miserable and all the world is wet, But you'll always pull through somehow if you've got a cigarette."

Another says, "I received the package while at St. Aignan, and shortly after was transferred to M. S. T. 116, at Noyers, where I drove a 3-ton truck, delivering as many as 70-odd quarters of beef daily, to nearby camps. My duties here consist of checking tools and equipment. Sleeping in the shack which I have made quite comfortable I have almost the comforts of a home, including a little stove, on which I prepare a bite evenings when so inclined."

It is a pleasure to be in touch with our men in a small way, and I look forward to hearing again from them in their spare hours.

September 27. "AUBURNDALÉ."

God Bless That Boy!

"The Little Flag on Our House"

William C. Demorest, in Leslie's Weekly

The little flag on our house
Is floating all the day
Beside the great big Stars and Stripes;
You can almost hear it say
To all the folks in our street,
As the breezes make it dance:
"Look up and see my own blue star—
We've got a boy in France!"

The little flag on our house,
It floats sometimes at night,
And you can see it 'way up there
When the street lamp shines just right,
And sometimes, 'long toward morning,
When the cop comes by, perchance
It signals with its one blue star;
"We've got a boy in France!"

The little flag on our house
Will wave, and wave, and wave
Until our boy comes home again,
Or finds in France his grave.
Nay—tho' its blue star turns to gold,
Because of War's grim chance,
It still shall wave to say: "Thank God,
We've got a boy in France!"

Save to Buy
Buy to Keep

TODAY he is more than your boy or my boy! Today he fights for the purity of all womanhood, the safety of all children, for tenderness to all the aged. Today he avenges the outraged women, the wantonly crippled children, the cruelly treated old left by the dastardly Hun. Today he fights to restore and maintain peace in all the world so wickedly disturbed by the gruesome German. He fights to reconstitute, as self-governing nations, those peoples ruthlessly destroyed by the merciless military masters of Hundom.

But We Must Do Our Part!

We can join the Fighting Fourth by buying Liberty Bonds at once to our utmost. We can lend as the boys in France fight—to the utmost.

—It is earnestly hoped that all the women of all the churches will hold steadfastly to the work of their societies, that there may be no letting down of our moral and spiritual forces. General Pershing cables, "We rely on the churches at home to keep the spirit of the people white hot with patriotism and courage until victory has been won." One day a week is none too much to give to distinctively church work. Our missionaries on the home and foreign fields should not be compelled to make all the sacrifices, which will be the case if the work in our churches lapses. There are many ways of helping to win the war, and this is a vital one.

—There will be no meeting of the Home Missionary department of the Woman's Association of Eliot Church next Tuesday afternoon, because of the prevailing epidemic. On October 15 at 9:30 A.M., which is the third Tuesday, the regular business meeting and the social welfare meeting will be combined. At the meeting, also, a memorial service will be held in remembrance of those who will no longer gather with us. On October 22 at 2:30 P.M., which is the fourth Tuesday, the meetings of the Home and Foreign Missionary department will be combined. On October 29, at 3 P.M., which is the fifth Tuesday, the regular meeting will be held, at which some form of war work will be done.

OLD BUGGY NOT SO BAD

One Man at Least Thinks Automobile Is Not Such a Very Great Improvement.

Speaking of old-fashioned things, a newspaper writer wants to know what has become of the gallant youth who, when he had stopped the horse, would let down the top of the buggy in order to permit his sweetheart to alight without difficulty?

Well, we do not know what has become of him, but we remember him. Perhaps he is slumbering somewhere in oblivion, whatever that is, with the gaudy lap robe wound about him—that lap robe with the big red rose crudely worked in the center. It was a thing of art, even as was the linen duster, and the gallant youth probably hangs on to it in his obscurity.

But speaking of buggy riding, the automobile is no improvement over it in the matter of real enjoyment. Not until the automobile is perfected so it can be driven with one hand, or until it will wander along the road without driving at all, will it come in the class of bliss which the buggy occupied in the days gone by.

The girls are as sweet as they used to be—and the roads much better. The moonlight is just as mellow. Love flows in the same uncharted channel. Youth is as hopeful—and as boastful. Mothers are as anxious, fathers as impatient, when daughter fails to return when she was expected. Gossip is as busy. But the wise old horse that knew when there was a loving couple in the buggy, and the narrow buggy itself, have all but taken their departure along with the gallant fellow who hopped from the rig and gracefully and graciously lowered the top of the vehicle so his companion could alight without so much as touching a wheel or the body.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

France Welcomes Babies.

Babies are welcome in certain apartment houses in Paris. Reversing the policy prevalent in apartment houses, the owner of one of the newest houses in the French capital will not take in a family which has no children, and the size of the suite obtainable depends entirely on the number of children rather than the number of dollars a family has. A list of qualifications has been prepared by the owners of these houses and tenants must meet them. A family with one child will not be permitted to have the largest apartments in the house. It will have to take one of the smallest suites. A family with two children will be rented the next largest apartment, three children the next largest, and four children any of the larger suites in the house. A family must contain at least four children to lease the largest suite. There is reason to believe that the government is interested or will be interested in these houses, as France has encouraged in every possible manner a higher birth rate.

Set Limit to Luxuries.

"Don't try to sell luxuries to New Zealand." This is the advice United States Consul General Winslow gives American merchants in a commerce report.

No; New Zealand is not pinched for money. Its wallet is well filled. "There is no particular necessity for retrenchment," as the consul puts it, but the public is opposed to the purchase of luxuries, especially luxuries that have to be imported, thereby using tonnage needed to head off the U-boats.

Trinidad, too, and the whole of the British West Indies, is abstaining from use of imported goods. This has caused the population to change its whole menu, for many foodstuffs were formerly imported. Now the people eat home-grown plants that only the animals ate before. They like the new diet so well they say they will never again import any staple food except cornmeal.

Win-the-War Wig.

A wig to help to win the war has been "invented" by an American cotton manufacturer. It is made of a fibrous material in two colors—green and reddish brown.

It fits down tight over the helmet and, while the soldiers are sneaking through the woodlands, blends into the forest so splendidly and naturally that 300 feet away nobody can tell that a company or a regiment of soldiers is on the move.

Then when out of the woods and back in the trenches all the soldier must needs do is to take off his wig and reverse it and he is topped with a reddish-brown top piece, invisible against the earthwork of the trenches.

Must Take Time to Submerge.

It requires at least five minutes for submarines of the latest type to submerge. A submarine cannot dive quickly under the sea, because the water which must be let into her ballast tanks to make her heavy enough to sink must be let in comparatively slowly. If it were let in with a rush the boat might not go down on an even keel, but would heel over and be in great danger of disaster. Then, too, if water were let in too quickly there would be danger of too much entering, and in that case the submarine would sink like lead to the bottom of the sea.

Wearied, as It Were.

Stanley had learned to dress himself and was quite proud of it, but after several days' practice he seemed to have lost his pride. One morning he asked his mother to dress him.

"I thought you could dress yourself, Stanley—you must be getting lazy."

"No, I ain't; but I's losed my 'fus-lasno.'"

NEWTON FREE LIBRARY

Camp Libraries

The residents of Newton responded with unsurpassed generosity to the appeal for books to form libraries for our soldiers in camp. Many with liberal generosity gave of their time to the work of preparing the books for use, marking them as gifts from residents of Newton and affixing the Camp Library labels. These people, and others as well, should be interested in the following letter, copied from a September issue of "War Libraries," the official organ of the War Service committee, American Library Association.

Mr. Herbert Putnam,
Washington, D. C.
My dear Mr. Putnam:

Just back from France, I want to express my keen appreciation of what the American Library Association is doing for our troops abroad. I found your books everywhere, from seaport bases to the front line trenches. I found them in dugouts thirty to forty feet below ground, in cow-barns where the shrapnel had blown parts of the roof away, as well as in substantial huts and tents far back from the firing line. I found them also in hospitals and dressing stations; in scattered villages in the training area where our men are billeted; and even in remote parts of France where our forestry units are carrying on their lonely but essential work.

And they were well-worn books that I saw, showing signs of constant usage. Indeed the books are in continual demand, and I am sure that it will be a reading army that we shall welcome home from France when the war is done.

As you know, your organization overseas is working in close co-operation with the Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus and the Salvation Army, and its services are recognized and appreciated by the entire Expeditionary Forces, from General Pershing to the lowliest private.

Cordially yours,
RAYMOND B. FOSDICK,
Chairman.

Few people give memorial art the critical appreciation which it merits. This applies not only to the laity but to the designers themselves, and workers in the art. The Henry Murray Company, however, has given years of critical study to both the designing and producing sides of the work, and the result is an unerring ability to choose and develop the ideal motif and the material most adaptable to the nature of the design.

Wash your hands before eating. Make full use of all available sunshine.

Do not use a common towel. It spreads disease.

Should you cough or sneeze, cover nose and mouth with a handkerchief.

Keep out of crowded places. Walk in the open air rather than go to crowded places of amusement.

Sleep is necessary for well-being—avoid over-exertion. Eat good, clean food.

Keep away from houses where there are cases of influenza.

If sick, no matter how slightly, see a physician.

If you have had influenza, stay in bed until your doctor says you can safely get up.

Crowded offices, and particularly street cars, are potent factors in the spread of the disease. In Berlin the street car conductors showed an exceptionally high incidence.

The avoidance of street cars and of crowds, where possible, is therefore to be urged during an epidemic, although the disease is too mild to make it advisable to stop all the activities of a city. To prevent the transportation of the influenza virus to the well and possible causes complications to the sick, masks for sick-room attendants are advisable. The organism is probably short lived outside the body, and attention should be directed toward keeping people apart rather than toward the disinfection of things, aside from the precautions of general cleanliness.

The most dangerous form of human contact in the presence of epidemic influenza is, in all probability, that with coughers and sneezers. Coughing and sneezing, except behind a handkerchief, is as great a sanitary offense as promiscuous spitting, and should be equally condemned.

DEATH OF OFFICER WELCH

Officer Clarence W. Welch died of pneumonia Thursday evening, after a brief illness with pneumonia. He was a man of fine physique, weighing over 200, and six feet high, and his sudden death is very much of a shock to all his friends. He was a graduate of Newton High school, and entered the police force two years ago, and was considered an excellent officer.

He married Miss Stewart of Green street, daughter of Thomas Stewart, about a year ago. She is also sick with influenza. He leaves, besides his widow, and one child his mother of Elm court, West Newton, his sisters, Mrs. Andrew Prior of River street and Miss Mary Welch, a nurse, of Elm court, and a brother, John Welch of the Chestnut Hill fire station. Funeral arrangements are not made, but it is expected that a detail of the Newton police force will do honors to a body. Mr. Welch was a member of the Newton Police Benefit Association.

MAY AFFECT CITY'S INCOME

Alderman Nichols Calls Attention to Possible Action of Recess Commission on Income Tax Distribution

The aldermen were in a critical mood at their meeting Monday evening and what started out to be a prosaic session, developed several interesting moments.

President Early was in the chair and Aldermen Forknall, Holt and Harri- were the only members absent. Objection to a sewer in Otis park, was made by Mr. George Kenyon on behalf of Dr. Rollins, but the other hearings, for Edison poles on Nahanton street and for concrete sidewalk on Cherry street were unopposed.

Mayor Childs designated Lieut. Henry W. Crowell as the agent of the city to expand the appropriation made for Company A of the State Guard. Lieut. Crowell succeeds Capt. Rand, who has entered the United States army.

The Mayor also asked $49.71 for Workmen's Compensation for John McCarthy, and approved $873.92 for exchange of automobiles in the Street Dept., $4000 for the Board of Health for influenza work, and appointed Sidney F. Bain a weigher of coal.

The school committee sent in the following communication in regard to educating Newton boys in the army in the Newton High schools.—

"The School Committee will gladly co-operate in giving training to the young men of the City rather than have them sent away for it. It is the sense of the Committee that this work can be done without interfering seriously with the regular civilian work of the school nor with the work which is being done under contract with the government.

"The Committee is informed that the number of young men 18 years of age and upwards at present in the schools is in the vicinity of 70. Petitions of Mary E. Burns and the Pettie Inn for lodging house permits were granted. A hearing was assigned for Nov. 4 on petition for change of line between wards 4 and 5, to enlarge the Waban precinct.

There was a long discussion on the majority report of the License committee refusing a garage permit to W. W. Trowbridge on Eden avenue, West Newton. Alderman Whidden said he would not oppose the report of the committee in view of letters he had received from Messrs. H. B. Day and C. E. Gibson, since the committee meeting, stating that they contemplated doing with land in the near vicinity to the proposed garage, but he still felt that the committee had not taken sound ground in refusing the permit on account of war conditions. Alderman Carter, the other dissenter from the committee report said that the committee on Curtailment of Non-essential construction had but recently been appointed and was not entirely clear as to the scope of its duty and he believed the aldermen should continue to use its own judgment on these matters and not attempt to anticipate the action of another body. Alderman Clark said that the committee refused this permit because there was another garage within a few hundred feet, because the petitioner does not yet own the land and because of the proximity to a local playground. Alderman Carter's motion to recommit was voted down and the petition was then refused. Similar action was taken on a pool table license asked by William Arduin on Langley road. On report of this committee, lodging house permits were granted Arthur I. Brown on Highland avenue, and Mrs. Annie T. Keough on Peabody street, a garage permit to Arthur H. Coffin on Duffield road (no question raised here as to non-essential construction) attachments given the Telephone Co. on Gardner street and a relocation on Concord street to the Edison and Telephone companies jointly.

Alderman Blake asked some questions regarding a permit for a public garage at the old Woodland Park hotel property for Lasell Seminary, but the permit was granted without further discussion.

The board deemed it inexpedient to appropriate $375 for covering fire sprinkler pipes in the basement of the Classical High School.

The informal action of the License committee favoring a garage permit to George E. Farrington on Hawthorne avenue was criticized by Alderman Goodwin, in view of the action of the Committee in opposing the Trowbridge permit. Alderman Hollis stated that the Farrington permit was to replace an old stable formerly used as a garage by Mr. Farrington, but which had been burned a few weeks ago.

On report of the Finance committee, Soldiers Relief was awarded Thomas L. Harney and orders adopted calling the State Election on Nov. 5 the City election on Dec. 10 and establishing polling places for the city election.

The request of Mr. Bowen B. Smith for permission to bury his mother, a descendant of Edward Jackson, in the old Centre street cemetery was granted after Forest Commissioner Colton had informed the board that there was no objection.

The fireworks began when Alderman Angier presented the recommendations of the Finance committee for additional appropriations of $1465.58 for completing Fire Hazard work, $873.92 for exchange of automobiles and $400 for maintenance of automobiles in the Street Dept., $49 for temporary attendant at the City Garage and $200 for automobile maintenance for the Forestry Dept. Mr. Angier stated that the committee had discovered an additional automobile "camouflaged" in the Street Dept. and additional money was therefore needed. His explanation regarding the Fire Hazard money brought out considerable discussion in which Alderman Blake took a prominent part. It appears that the contract for this work, which was recommended by the Fire Hazard Commission in 1916, and executed in October, 1916, had dragged along and was not completed until Oct. 2 of this year, although the contract called for completion on April 1, 1917 and was subsequently extended until May 1, 1917. The appropriation of over $52,000 evidently did not include any item for cost of superintendence, which amounted to about $5000. The payment of this commission, depleted the appropriation so that the Water Dept. had no funds with which to connect the various school buildings with the water mains in the streets. For this the aldermen in July 1917 gave an additional $4000, with which 18 of the school buildings were completed in the summer and fall of 1917. The balance of the Water Dept. work was not done until the present summer—the work being postponed until the school vacation by the Water Commissioner. The inside sprinkler work was completed in the summer or spring of 1917, the delay in finishing the work being due to failure to connect with the street mains. Alderman Blake was particularly caustic in his remarks making such statements as "a woeful lack of co-operation", "malfeasance in the performance of the work" and condemning the layout of the sprinkler system, which he said was ready to freeze at a moment's notice. Alderman Angier said that the appropriation requested was merely a bookkeeping detail as all the work had been done and the appropriation was then made, the year votes being given in a low tone of voice.

Mayor Childs recommended and the board, after a short recess to hear Dr. Curtis, passed an appropriation of $4000 asked by the Board of Health for work in stopping the epidemic of influenza. It is understood that this money is to be used to prevent the spread of the disease among the children in the Nonantum district where it was stated conditions are extremely bad.

Margaret A. Holbrook petitioned for Soldiers' Relief.

Near the close of the meeting Alderman Price, noting the continued absence of Alderman Holt, asked if the alderman had resigned.

Orders for extension of Dartmouth street and establishing a building line thereon were adopted.

ARE YOU A SLACKER?

YOU ARE A SLACKER IF YOU HAVE NOT BOUGHT ALL THE LIBERTY BONDS YOU CAN POSSIBLY TAKE CARE OF. DON'T THINK BECAUSE YOU BOUGHT FIFTY DOLLARS OR A FEW HUNDRED DOLLARS' WORTH TO "SAVE YOUR FACE" AND BE ABLE TO TALK ABOUT "MY LIBERTY BONDS" YOU HAVE "DONE YOUR BIT" WHEN YOU REALLY WITH A LITTLE INCONVENIENCE COULD BUY SEVERAL TIMES AS MUCH. WAKE UP AND SUPPORT THE BOYS WHO ARE WILLING TO, AND WHO ARE, GIVING UP THEIR LIVES, TO SAVE THIS COUNTRY FROM THE HUNS AND THEIR SAVAGE PRACTICES. YOU DON'T HAVE TO GIVE YOUR MONEY TO THE NATION, YOU WILL SURELY GET IT BACK WITH INTEREST, WHICH IS MORE THAN YOU CAN SAY OF ALL YOUR OTHER INVESTMENTS. GIVE UP SOME LUXURIES, EVEN NECESSITIES AND BUY SOME MORE LIBERTY BONDS. YOUR BANKS WILL ARRANGE PAYMENTS TO SUIT YOUR CONVENIENCE. LOOSEN UP, GO TO IT, BE A PATRIOTIC AMERICAN, DON'T HOLD BACK FOR SOME ONE ELSE TO DO IT. TOO MANY PEOPLE WAIT FOR THE OTHER FELLOW TO DO IT, BUT NOW IS A TIME WHEN THE COUNTRY NEEDS THE OTHER FELLOW, AND YOU TOO. DO NOT EXCUSE YOURSELF FROM BUYING BECAUSE YOU "DO NOT LIKE THE ADMINISTRATION." THE LOAN IS NOT TO THE ADMINISTRATION BUT TO THE NATION AND YOU MUST DO YOUR SHARE.

Alderman Nichols then addressed the board calling attention to the probability of a change being recommended in the law relative to distribution of income taxes, by the Recess Commission on Taxation, whereby the city stood to lose several hundred thousand dollars in income. The committee, he said had two plans in view, under one the city would lose $207,000 and under the other about $192,000. At the present time Newton receives $411,000 from the income tax and has a state tax of $109,000. The alderman said that the matter had been under consideration by the Mayor in the spring but nothing had been done all summer. He believed the city should take immediate action to prevent this serious loss of income.

The matter was then referred to the committee on Legislation. The board adjourned at 9.25.

THE PRESIDENT'S APPEAL

President Wilson issued this statement yesterday on the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign:

"Recent events have enhanced, not lessened, the importance of this loan and I hope that my fellow countrymen will let me say this to them very frankly.

"The best thing that could happen would be that the loan should not only be fully subscribed, but very greatly over-subscribed.

"We are in the midst of the greatest exercise of the power of this country that has ever been witnessed or forecast and a single day of relaxation in that effort would be of tragic damage alike to ourselves and to the rest of the world.

"No thing has happened which makes it safe or possible to do anything but push our effort to the utmost. The time is critical and the response must be complete."

25 MEN CALLED, OCT. 21-15

The Draft Board have received the following calls for men, to go sometime between October 21 and 25, exact date not yet stated:

Fourteen men qualified for general service, for Fort Williams, Maine.

Eight men for general service to Fort Warren, Mass.

Three men for general service to Fort Rodman, Mass.

Arrangements have been virtually completed in the old Second Church so that the Board will probably transfer its office force either tomorrow or Monday.

NEWTON TAKES $3,073,600 BONDS

Only Eight Days Left to Raise $2,704,600 for Liberty Loan

Officially Newton has subscribed to the Fourth Liberty Loan $3,073,600 of its minimum allotment of $5,778,000. The total number of subscribers is 4474.

Of the above total $1,755,550 has been placed outside of Newton mostly in Boston by 934 people. The balance of $1,318,050 is distributed among Newton banks as follows:

Newton Trust Company	$964,000
Newton Savings Bank	$67,850
1st Nat. Bank of West Newton	$160,500
West Newton Savings Bank	$120,350
Newton Centre Savings Bank	$5,350

The Newton Woman's Liberty Loan committee have proved themselves hustlers. Of the above amount, $958,350 is credited to them.

The number of subscribers at the various local banks is as follows: Newton Trust Co., 2160; Newton Savings Bank, 483; First National, West Newton, 283; West Newton Savings Bank, 521; Newton Centre Savings Bank, 94; Credits from Boston, 934; total subscribers, 4474.

These reports are for the close of business on Wednesday for the outside banks and at the end of Thursday for the local institutions. While more was undoubtedly credited in Boston yesterday it is painfully apparent that a big effort must be made to complete the city's quota. And that is simply the minimum and Newton should not be content simply to do the least that the government asks.

Mr. Andrew C. Hughes has been added to the local workers for the Loan and will be a great help. He is president of the Coopers International Union of North America and will direct his efforts along labor union lines which he has successfully done in other campaigns.

Another reinforcement is the Boy Scouts of America who will begin their canvass on Saturday. They are enthusiastic young patriots who turned over to Uncle Sam nearly $150,000 in Newton at the time of the last Loan. Even if you think you have subscribed for all you can, dig down for another bond to be bought by the Scouts. It won't hurt you and will encourage them but best of all will help your country.

The house to house canvass is proceeding in spite of all obstacles and it is hoped that the city will be pretty well covered by the end of this. But if any one is missed there is plenty of opportunity to buy bonds. All the banks will receive subscriptions and moreover are ready to deliver the bonds upon full payment, either in cash or in United States Certificates of indebtedness. They will also be liberal in making loans to assist in bond buying and will store the bonds.

From the way people have been talking lately, everyone thinks he knows how to answer the Kaiser. There is just one best answer and it is one each can make for himself—buying bonds and the more the more convincing the answer.

TO THE CONSTABULARY

When we were recently asked to do police duty, I for one was heartily glad. It was not the pleasant and novel experience of learning the location and operation of the blue boxes and of seeing the sun rise from Mt. Ida, but the feeling that at last we were doing something, trifling though it was, to help the community. This I take it is at bottom the basis of the exaltation which all speak of "over there," the joy of making some sacrifice for the common good. With us may have been the added feeling that at last we were more than "toy soldiers."

Since then, a greater opportunity has arisen, one which at last justifies our organization. More deaths have occurred from the epidemic in our country during the past month, than have occurred among our men in France since we entered the war. Along the front from the Woodland Park Hospital to the Cadet Armory as real work is to be done as in the Argonne. They are dying, and at last we have the opportunity to run a little risk. One of our men picked up a little child brought in the ambulance probably to die; another telephoned his wife and daughter to stay with five children while their father came over to be with his wife till the last.

At the Armory, they state they can use seventy-five automobiles constantly. The Constabulary could probably furnish the lot. It is no time to argue whether we should do it, or whether we should be paid for police duty.

Rather let us show that Newton will do the work rather than have it go undone.

Holidays, Sundays and evenings, those of us who have cars will jump at the chance to help. Nurses who are on their feet all day should not be expected to walk or depend on trolley cars.

One Captain said, "We cannot go to the war. Would to God that we could, but we are too old." Here is our opportunity and it is a real one.

CAPTAIN FROM CIVIL LIFE

Honor Paid Newton Center Man, Result of His Work for State Guard

In commissioning Captain Waldron H. Rand, Jr., of Newton Centre, a Captain of the Federal Government has paid a high compliment not only to the man himself, but to the Massachusetts State Guard as a system.

Captain Rand's handling of our Newton Company of the State Guard which he brought to the highest state of efficiency, made him a marked man not only in the Federal Government, but even beyond. It was therefore no surprise last summer when the military authorities at Harvard invited him to assist in the training of the Harvard R. O. T. C. It was also no surprise when upon return from that tour of duty it was announced that he had further distinguished himself.

It was not generally known at that time, owing to Captain Rand's modesty, that both the British and French officers had gone on record in unqualified endorsement of his ability. This endorsement was so strong that it pointed to but one thing and that was the making of such ability available to the Federal Government. At the insistence of military friends, therefore, Captain Rand tendered his services in spite of the great personal sacrifice therein involved.

The appointment direct from what was technically civilian life to active military service was in itself unusual and the comports with which Captain Rand's tender of services was accepted was, we believe, little short of extraordinary. It was a high compliment at a time when compliments are not wasted.

We wish to congratulate Captain Rand most heartily, and we feel that congratulations may also be extended to the State Guard organization of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a whole. It shows that the State Guard as an emergency system of military organization has not only provided an emergency defense for which it was primarily intended, but is proving to be a training ground in which officers while still carrying on the burdens of their civilian life may be developed, discovered and made available for that larger usefulness in the Federal service.

Newton has been justly proud of Captain Rand and Company A, and the present development is but a justification of that pride which we have previously voiced.

The work done at the West Newton Armory has been quietly carried on, and few have realized the amount of work that officers and men contributed in making Company A all that its official title as "first" Company of the Massachusetts State Guard implies. Service in that company is strictly military service, and those who can bear arms in it are rendering true military service not only to the Commonwealth, but to the Federal government.

It is the duty of every citizen of Newton to support this company's activities in every way. Especially do we urge that draftees be influenced to take advantage of the military training offered by Company A previous to call for service. Large numbers of our Newton soldiers already in the national army have been trained by Company A.

Draftees so trained not only reduce the burden of the officers in the camps, but such men actually become assets in the organizations to which they are assigned in the training of men who have not had like privilege.

The recognition of Captain Rand's ability should be a guarantee to every young man of draft age that if he will work to prepare himself for military service there is no limit to the service which he may render nor the preference which he may receive.

MISS RUTH AGNES BOYD

Miss Ruth Agnes Boyd died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Boyd, 266 Nevada street, September 30. With an unusual talent and executive ability she combined a modesty that, never demanding publicity, was content with the consciousness that she had done her utmost to accomplish what seemed to her to be just and right.

Born in Newton, July 26, 1893, she attended the Newton Public Schools and graduated from the Technical High in the class of 1912. After graduating she took a special course in Domestic Science at the Framingham Normal, and later was a student of vocal music for two years, under Prof. Clarence Shirley, at the New England Conservatory, and sang at numerous church and social gatherings, where her fine contralto voice gave great pleasure to music lovers.

Although devoted to the duties of home, Miss Boyd gave much time and talent to church and social work, especially to the North Evangelical Church, of which she was a faithful and active member from her early youth. At the time of her death she had been for a long time treasurer of the Alpha Club connected with the Welfare work at the Camp Centre. An earnest worker for the Red Cross, Miss Boyd inspired the Camp Fire Girls, of whom she was Guardian, with her own spirit of energy and fidelity. Since June 1918, she had filled a position in the office of J. W. Woods & Sons Co., of Boston.

A brief funeral service, conducted by Rev. Robert L. Ite, of the North Church, was held at her home on the afternoon of Thursday, October 3. The body was placed in the receiving tomb at the Newton Cemetery, pending the return of her brother, Paymaster Hugh Sloane Boyd, U. S. N., now absent on overseas duty. Beside her parents and brother, one sister survived, Edith May, who is a student in the Vocational Department of the Newton High. Beautiful floral tributes and many letters of sympathy testify to the bereaved family the esteem in which this beloved daughter and sister was held.

GOT AWAY WITH IT HOW THEY WON OUT

Young Captain Disobeyed Orders and Won Out.

Possibly Admiralty Had Sense Enough to See That It Was Poor Business to Discourage Such a Man.

There was a certain young officer—John Chisholm call him—who played poker occasionally. He commanded a "flivver," which is the service term for the smallest class of destroyers, the 750-ton ones.

In the navy there are plenty of people who will tell you that they never built destroyers which keep the sea better than that same little flivver class, James B. Connolly writes in Collier's Weekly. Young Captain Chisholm of the 323 was one.

One morning, having conveyed a fleet of merchant ships safely to their port, the 323 was one of a group of destroyers making the best of their way to their base port. Officers and men who have been hunting U-boats for a week or so do not like to linger along the road home. So it was every young captain giving his ship all the steam she could stand and let her belt. It was moderately rough when they started. It grew a bit rougher. Chisholm in the 323 was going along at 20 knots when a fellow he very well knew came along in his big 1,000-ton destroyer. His nose hauled up to the quarter of the 323; up to her beam; up to her bridge. As she passed the 323 her commander megaphoned across: "What you making, Chiz?"

"Twenty knots!" hailed back Chisholm. "I'm seeing your twenty knots and raising you five!" returned the other, and passed into the lead. "All right," said Chiz, "but wait!" The sea grew rougher. The 323 was bouncing pretty lively, but hanging on to her twenty knots. "And at twenty you let her hang if she rolls her darned crew's nest under!" said Chisholm to his watch officer—"and we won't be acting rudder to this bunch going into port!"

They were still going along at 20 knots when from out of the drizzle ahead they saw the stern and funnels of a destroyer. It was the big destroyer that had passed them, and the tough little 323 breasted her stern, her waist, her bridge and as she passed her (and he came quite close to let all hands view the passing) young Captain Chisholm leaned out from his bridge and hailed: "Call yuh!"

This same young flivver captain was headed for port in the usual hurry and was already well into the west channel just outside the port when a signal was whipped out from the signal tower. It was for this ship: "West channel mined last night by U-boats. Proceed to sea and come in by east channel."

Chiz did not proceed to sea, and he did not come in by the east channel. The harbor saw him come straight on to his mooring. Said Chiz: "I was well into that channel when I got the signal. And, of course, the first instinct was to obey orders. But I stop and think: 'This ship of mine, she's 800 feet long and under her stern there's two big propellers. If ever I turn this 800 foot ship in this channel with those two propellers churning and there's any loose German mines around, there won't be a blamed one of them she'll miss. But if I keep her straight on there's a chance.' So 'Hell's fire!' I says to myself, 'the only thing to do is to keep straight on.' And I kept straight on, and we made our mooring."

After that they waited to hear what the admiralty had to say. But they heard nothing; whereupon some said that was due to the admiralty concluding that it is poor business to scold an officer who carries through a nery piece of work.

All Reminded Him. A soldiers' chorus created some amusement at a Liverpool station recently. A man had just put his wife into a train, and was walking briskly down the platform. Suddenly his wife's head appeared at the window, shouting in a high key: "Charles, don't forget the meat!" But he walked on, without heeding. The lady raised her voice and fairly yelled: "Charles, don't forget the meat!" Still he didn't hear, and so a group of soldiers let off a stentorian yell: "Charles!" The husband turned. And then the soldiers, in solemn chorus proclaimed: "Don't—forget—the—meat!"

Voluntary Rationing. Controller Hoover congratulated a Washington gathering on the success of the voluntary rationing system. "The observance of voluntary rationing has been universal," he said. "I heard the other day of a tiny urchin on a picnic in the country who ran to his mother with tears in his eyes."

"What's the matter?" his mother asked. "The urchin held out a swollen finger and shouted, indignantly: 'Them bees! Today is a meatless Tuesday and them bees ain't observin' it!'"

Need Not Go to Europe. Here is another thing this war has shown. In the past thousands of Americans have gone to Europe for the "baths" and "springs." Now it is found that the waters at every one of the famous European places can be duplicated in this country.

Singers Thought Up a Really Neat Scheme.

Little Conspiracy That Seems to Point to Truth of the Familiar Old Adage That Every Man Has His Price.

Once there was a male quartet which was booked by a lyceum bureau that would allow a date to be canceled only in the event of a performer's death.

This quartet in question was booked to sing at Buzzard, N. D., one cold winter night. The time-table told the boys to go to Terminal, which was the end of the line, and hire a liveryman to take them over to Buzzard.

They arrived at Terminal on a Saturday morning. The hotel was not at all bad. The first train out was to go Monday. The liveryman said that he would convey them to Buzzard for $10. It was 22 miles. He intimated that he thought he could notice indications of a robust blizzard approaching. He said it was not uncommon for parties to get lost in blizzards and freeze to death before being found. It was spitting snow at noon.

The boys went over to the telegraph office, wired the bureau, explained about the long drive to Buzzard, and the dangers with which the journey was fraught, and asked that they be permitted to cancel the engagement. They offered to compensate the bureau to the extent of its commission if permitted to blow the date.

Their answer from the bureau was an emphatic denial of permission to cancel the date.

And yet the boys did not fill the engagement at Buzzard.

There was only one liveryman in Terminal, and his price for the drive to Buzzard was $10, so the boys chipped in and paid him $20 to write out a statement to the effect that he had refused to make the trip in the face of an approaching storm. They sent his statement to the bureau.

Moral: "Every man has his price." And "where there's a will there is usually a way."

Heiress a Successful Artist. Heiress to one of the greatest fortunes in America, born to a life of ease and luxury, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney is a shining example of the type of American woman who is combining successfully a career while she performs her duty to her home and society, says the Washington Times.

The former Gertrude Vanderbilt, daughter of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, has for the last ten years worked untriflingly as a sculptor. Splendid examples of her art have been exhibited in New York, many of them selected in competition in which the best artists of the time have been her competitors. Among Mrs. Whitney's best known works are the Titanic memorial, which has been erected in the national capital; a fountain in the New Arlington hotel at Washington, exhibited at the Panama-Pacific exposition in California; another massive fountain of Aztec design in the bureau of American republics, also in Washington. Mrs. Whitney has also done some splendid work in oil, water color and crayon.

War Stops "Sea Bathing." Humorists have recently added to the list of the war's alleged horrors the fact that Londoners can no longer bathe in sea water in their own homes. The facts in the case are reported by Popular Mechanics Magazine, as follows: It seems that for years one of the English railways has maintained a "sea-water" service. For the small sum of 12 cents it has delivered to any customer a large can of real ocean water for bathing purposes, calling for the can the following day. Now, however, Londoners, who prided themselves on being "the best tubbed people in the world" must forego these "sea baths" for the railway has discontinued its service on account of war conditions. Henceforth fresh water must suffice for cleansings.

Swiss Adopt 24-Hour Clock. The Swiss federal council, under date of April 19, 1918, has decreed that the Swiss transportation systems, the management of the telegraph system, the customs service, the federal government works and the remaining institutions under federal government management shall, up to the return of normal conditions, but not before May 1, 1919, establish the 24-hour day, numbering the hours from 1 to 24, beginning at midnight. The Swiss federal railway department is empowered to fix the definite date upon which the 24-hour day is to be enforced.

Gloomy Outlook. "I guess your boy will soon return from college." "Yes," replied Mr. Cobble, with a thoughtful look. "No doubt you expect him to help you on the farm this summer?"

"No. When Henry was elected president of the Sophomore Dancing club my faith in him was considerably shaken, but when I heard he'd taken to playing on a ukulele I quit havin' any illusions about that boy."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

His War Garden. Mrs. Flatbush—Oh, John, there are two chickens fighting in our garden! Mr. Flatbush—Well, let 'em fight. I've got to have some excuse for calling it a war garden, haven't I?

RED CROSS FIGHT ON GRIP

70 Patients All the Time. Hard to Find Trained Nurses

The Red Cross hospital is hard at work fighting the grip and has right along about seventy patients as many as it is able to care for. The hospital has had the same trouble that prevails everywhere, difficulty in finding as many trained nurses as are needed and as could be used. So far as its motor service is concerned it has been extremely fortunate, more fortunate indeed than Boston and most of the suburban cities. From the first the Newton Red Cross Woman's Motor Corps has taken hold splendidly and the commandant, Mrs. Talbot, has not been obliged to call for help but has on the other hand been able to help Boston out a bit. The Motor Corps is on duty at the Red Cross Hospital from seven in the morning until ten at night. The day is divided in to three shifts, three cars are on duty until noon, three from noon until six and three from six until ten. From ten at night until seven in the morning the Constabulary looks out for the motor service. The new truck which has been purchased for the Red Cross Woman's Motor Corps has been busy all the time since the opening of the Red Cross Hospital. Not only has it done hospital work and brought out Red Cross supplies but it has also been busy in Noanatum helping the community kitchen in the Stearns School by delivering food and helping in other ways. The young women drivers of the truck have had their hands full and at times have had hard work to handle some of the articles they have carried. There is a good chance for young men or strong boys to be of great use in the trucking work. Any having the time to give to it and willingness to do it should communicate with Red Cross Headquarters, telephone Newton North 2717.

One misconception in regard to the Red Cross Hospital which some people have should be set right. The money spent for the establishment of the hospital and its running does not come out of Red Cross war funds. The war funds are the Newton Chapter's share of the contributions made at the time of the American Red Cross nation wide campaign for war funds. Every cent of every dollar so contributed and a bit more goes into actual war work and into nothing else. The money used by the Newton Chapter for the Red Cross Hospital is taken from its general fund. This fund is made up of its share of the membership dues from Newton members of the Red Cross, from contributions made directly to it and from amounts received from entertainments for its benefit. From this general fund must be paid all the costs of running the Newton Chapter such as the cost of printing, advertising, telephone, postage, coal, light, etc. It will be seen that this fund is subject to heavy regular drain and that any extra charge upon it, like the cost of the Newton Red Cross Hospital, loads it down with an unexpected burden. This general fund which makes it possible for the Newton Red Cross to meet at once emergencies like the grip epidemic should be as large as possible. It is hoped the people of Newton will remember this and also the fact that by becoming regular members of the Red Cross they help to build up the general fund. When December comes along with its campaign for renewals of Red Cross memberships and the taking in of new members Newton ought to roll up an even larger membership than it has now. A chance will be given to every one to join. The cost of a year's membership is $1 and is said a week or so ago an excellent way to have the dollar ready, almost without knowing it, is to take a cardboard box, paste or paint a Red Cross on the cover, cut a slit in the cover and then paste it fast to the box, drop cent pieces, nickels, and dimes in the box and when the Red Cross membership canvasser calls the dollar for a year's membership will be ready.

Unnecessary Deaths from Grip It is sad but true that a great many of the cases of grip and the deaths resultant from the disease have been unnecessary and could have been prevented by a knowledge of home hygiene and home prevention of disease and the care of the sick. From the beginning of the war the Red Cross has tried to hammer home that one phase of preparedness and war winning was for the people at home to learn how to care for their homes and families to prevent preventable diseases and to lessen the demands upon doctors and nurses. It has also tried to induce young women to train as nurses because the demand for nurses will become more and more urgent as the war goes on. The Newton Chapter is particularly fortunate in being able to work along these lines in cooperation with the Newton Hospital, which was one of the first in the country to plan to do what it could to increase the number of trained nurses. The Newton Chapter classes in hygiene and home care and nursing meet at the Newton Hospital where all the facilities of the hospital are put at the disposal of the trained instructors who conduct the classes. Nowhere near as many Newton women have taken these lessons as should take them. They are of the first importance and those who take them may be able not only to prevent minor illnesses but also to save the lives of those dear to them and help to check the spread of epidemics like the present one. As long as the fight against the grip goes on the classes will have to be deferred because the first duty now is to do everything that can be done to help the stricken. There are, however, many days ahead and women should plan now to join the classes as soon as they are resumed. Information in regard to them may be had of Miss Edith Fisher, assistant secretary of the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross, Talbot House, Newtonville.

twice to help straighten out family troubles. It has done both and many other things because its job is to do all it can for the families of the men who have gone to fight. Soldiers or sailors who are worried because of the news they get from home as to problems that have come up in their absence are invited to write to the Home Service Committee in regard to them, and the members will take hold of matters and try to straighten them out. It has been gratifyingly successful in many instances because it tackles its problems with sympathy and goes about its work in a warm-hearted, human way. The Home Service never forgets what the people at the home owe to those at the front, in the camps and on the ships, and it tries its best to help pay the debt. Its work is done confidentially and without publicity, just as one friend would help another. It is always glad to talk things over with soldiers, sailors or the members of their families. Those who are in the new draft, as well as those of the first who can still get to Newton should post themselves as to just what Home Service is and what it can do. They may get into communication with it through the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross at Talbot House, Newtonville, telephone Newton North 2717.

DIE IN FRANCE

The dispatches this week mention the fact that three more Newton lads have paid the last full measure of devotion and have given their lives in France that humanity might live.

Second Lieutenant Augustus Aspinwall, the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Aspinwall of Chestnut Hill, is said to have been killed in action on August 25, although his parents have not yet received official notice.

The young man, who was twenty-one years and six months of age, went across seas last April with the Seventy-Seventh Division, from Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I. He previously had received training with the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, in Cambridge, and before that he was at Harvard for a year and a half, as a member of the class of 1920. He prepared at Volkmann's School for college. After arriving in France young Aspinwall was transferred to the 110th Infantry, Twenty-Eighth Division, with which more recently he had been in active service. He is survived by his parents, whose home is at 517 Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, also a sister, Miss Lucy Aspinwall, and a brother, George L. Aspinwall, Harvard, '14, an aviation cadet who is flying in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. William Crane of 405 Commonwealth avenue, Newton Centre, have been notified by the War Department of the death in France of their son, Lieut. Alfred Thomas Crane, Headquarters Company, 302d Infantry. Lieut. Crane was associated with his father in the contracting business. He was born in Cambridge 22 years ago and was a graduate of the Mitchell Military Academy at Billerica, and of the second Plattsburg camp. He was assigned to Camp Devens last December and on July 3 he went overseas. Besides his parents he is survived by three brothers and a sister.

The Paris Temps reports that Lieut. Stafford Brown of Newton, Mass., while piloting his monoplane over a village near Nantes, on Monday fell in a park. He was carried into a chateau and died without recovering consciousness.

Lieutenant Brown, mentioned above, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Brown of Sumner street, Newton Centre, and a former prominent high school athlete. He was a classmate of Lieut. David E. Putnam, the famous American "Ace" who was killed recently, and one of four Newton high school graduates who entered the air service. The other members were Lieut. T. Cushman Nathan, killed recently, and Lieut. William A. Wellman, who was injured severely when his machine fell, and who is now an instructor at an aviation camp in California.

He was graduated from high school in 1915, and entered Dartmouth University. After spending two years in college he sailed for France, serving with the French armies as an ambulance driver, and later becoming attached to the Lafayette flying squadron. When America entered the war he was transferred to the United States army.

Only a few hours before receiving news of his death, Mrs. Brown received a letter from the young officer in which he told of his first accident while flying, which was quickly followed by three others.

In writing of his experiences Lieut. Brown stated that while attempting a flight to England his machine turned over, and before he was able to regain his balance it crashed to earth, killing his companion. The second attempt was brought to an end when the machine fell a short distance, resulting in slight injuries to the occupants, and the third when the machine caught fire. In his fourth accident, the engine died when 50 feet in the air, but he managed to land safely.

His father, a retired leather merchant, his mother and two sisters survive him.

In addition to these deaths word has also been received that Corporal Charles P. Bailey was injured while in action late in July. He is twenty-one years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Bailey of 22 Elliot terrace, Newton Upper Falls, and is a member of Battery B, 101st Field Artillery. He was born in Newton and when he enlisted was employed in the Saco-Lowell shops at Newton Upper Falls.

WILL GET THEIR NICKNAMES

American Soldiers Object to Term "Sammy," and Are Willing to Wait for a Better One.

Somebody, feeling that the American soldier in France needed a nickname dubbed him "Sammy." Then someone else referred to him by that name and still another adopted it and the use of it became general. The nickname probably was selected because the United States is referred to as Uncle Sam. It is probable that it is referred to as Uncle Sam because the abbreviation of the name of the country was U. S., and somebody built the name Uncle Sam out of the initials as representing the incarnation of the country in one man. No matter what the origin of the name is the soldiers do not like it. The Stars and Stripes, the official publication of the expeditionary forces, says the American soldier did not invent it, does not like it, and never uses it and will not recognize it. It says when he sees it in papers from home it makes him sick.

Seeming to think that a name for the American soldier should be found, the Stars and Stripes says:

"When, in the fullness of time, the American army has been welded by shock and suffering into a single fighting force, with one mind, one heart and one spirit, the American soldier will find his name. It will be the inspiration of some ambulance driver, perhaps, or the outburst of some eloquent cook. It will strike the fancy of a passing guard and be forwarded through military channels like a sentry's call. Wounded boys will carry it back to base hospitals and ammunition train drivers will spread it to the base ports. Some reporter will hear it at some distant bar and put it into the story he has to write that night. It will be printed in America. Paragraphers and cartoonists and vaudeville comedians will use it. It will be caught up at home and in the training camps. The name will be fastened on. The American soldier will have been christened. He does not know now what that name will be. He simply knows it won't be 'Sammy.'"

But what is the need of a nickname for the American soldier? Isn't American good enough? There would be no thought of a nickname but for the fact that the British soldier is referred to as Tommy Atkins, and then, losing his surname is referred to as Tommy. But we do not know that the French soldier has a nickname. The Italian, the Belgian, the Serb, the Montenegrin is also referred to without a nickname. Why bother about calling the American anything but Americans?—Florida Times Union.

Trouble With Wounded Soldiers.
"Delmas remarks," says Annales de Medicine, "that as soon as the soldier enters the hospital he steps out of military discipline, and yet the hospital authorities have no jurisdiction over him. He can accept or refuse operations, injections of drugs, etc., at his own will. But almost invariably the wounded or sick soldier absolutely trusts his surgeon or physician as long as no foreign element modifies his grateful confidence."

He further goes on to say that two elements may interfere, one the fear of pain or anesthetics and the other unwillingness to be cured and return to military duty, and calls the latter cases desertion. In either case pressure is brought to bear in the way of pension considerations or the returning of the refractory patient to his regiment for disciplinary measures.

The Mentally Defective Soldier.

"For the first time in the history of warfare," says the New York Medical Journal, "mental hygiene as practiced among the soldiers is given the prominence it deserves, and, profiting by the experience of England and France in the present war, the surgeon general was impelled to inaugurate an elaborate organization both in number and plan, to take care of any mental disturbances detected in the camps or among the soldiers during the war. This is a distinct innovation in the medical army work, for the subjects of mental hygiene and of mental and nervous diseases in general as occurring among soldiers in war time were for many reasons either slightly treated or neglected altogether."

The Unconscious Hero.

When Private Jones, back from France, put his pass in at the railway booking office, he was surprised by the clerk asking to shake hands. They shook, and when Private Jones, still wondering, reached his home in the far north, a sergeant seeing him pass, took him to the colonel, who shook hands, and said: "The army is very proud of you." He did not learn the reason for all this friendliness until he reached home. Then his little brother, curiously inspecting the papers, remarked: "How funny, Vass." (His christian names, by the way are Vassall Charles), "they've put your name—Private Jones, V. C."—London Tit-Bits.

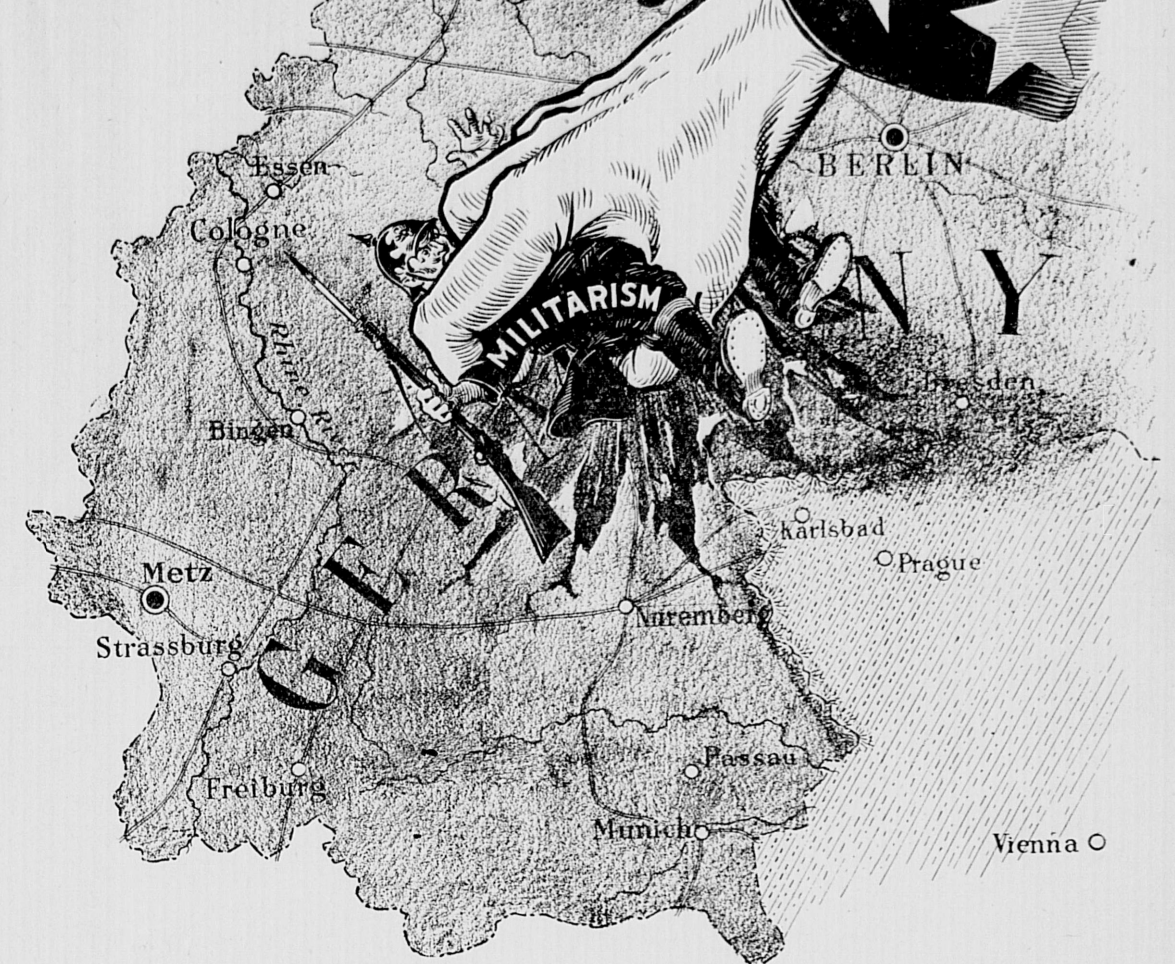

Era of Speechlessness.
"You haven't made a speech in some time."

"Why make a speech?" said Senator Sorghum. "With all this war news they wouldn't print it, and if they did print it, nobody would read it."

Not Mandatory.

"What are you going to order for breakfast?" asked the waiter.

"Order?" repeated the man with a precise manner. "I shouldn't think of ordering. But I will venture deferentially to request a boiled egg and a cup of coffee."

out of Germany

IN TIME, Uncle Sam could whip Germany with one hand tied behind him, but that is a long and costly way of doing the job. He can win if you leave the bond buying to others, but with your help he can win sooner.

The quickest way to get peace is to fight with every available man, and every available dollar—to put behind our blows all the force at our command. Then we shall win sooner—perhaps billions of dollars sooner and thousands of lives sooner.

There can be no peace until we annihilate the cause of this ravaging war—the hideous germ of militarism.

Don't talk peace—don't think peace. Get peace by fighting with all your heart and soul—in the trenches with your life or behind the lines with your dollars.

FATHER COSTELLO DEAD

After a brief illness of influenza and pneumonia Rev. Fr. Edward A. Costello, one of the curates attached to St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, died Monday morning at his parents' home in West Newton.

He had been ill for several days and had gone from the South Boston parish to West Newton and for a time appeared to be recovering.

During the latter part of last week, however, he became quite sick again with death resulting.

Fr. Costello had been attached to St. Augustine's parish for a period of more than ten years. He had been the spiritual director of several of the parish societies and was very well known throughout the district. His illness had been the source of many inquiries and when word of his death was received there was a general feeling of regret.

Fr. Costello was born in West Newton, October 19, 1878, and after making his preliminary studies in the schools of this city entered Boston College, from which he was graduated, and then went to St. John's Seminary in Brighton for his theological studies, and was ordained to the priesthood in the Cathedral by the late Bishop Brady on December 16, 1904.

Shortly afterward he was assigned for clerical duty to St. Margaret's Parish, in Brockton, where he remained for about two years. He was then transferred to St. Augustine's Parish, where he had been stationed ever since.

One of the leading arguments in favor of the adoption of the initiative and referendum, is the opportunity it gives the everyday voter to pass upon the vital matters of governmental concern. We will have an excellent chance at the coming state election to see just how this plan will work, because, there will be on the ballot, together with the initiative and referendum question itself, 18 other matters of constitutional convention. If you, Mr. Voter, thoroughly understand how to vote intelligently on ALL of these matters, then you are undoubtedly safe in voting Yes on the question of the initiative and referendum. But, if you cannot cast an intelligent vote on ALL these matters of considerable importance, how can you expect the average voter to give an intelligent opinion on far more intricate subjects which will surely be submitted to the people, provided the initiative and referendum is adopted. Play safe and vote NO on this matter.

It is most fortunate that the Fire Hazard work on our school houses, has been completed without any serious trouble, but steps should be taken to see that delays of this nature do not take place in the future. The city will soon have to spend many thousands of dollars in making changes in the school buildings to satisfy the State police, who have little, or no confidence in the efficiency of the fire sprinklers we have installed at an expense of $25,000. The city government should see to it that this new work is done properly and expeditiously.

The whole heartedness and go-the-limit manner in which our people are following the drastic and unusual orders of the Board of Health, as well as the arbitrary and unreasonable regulations put forth by self important so called experts, is undoubtedly due to the lessons we have learned from war conditions. It is probably true that, if five years ago, anyone had predicted how we should act at this time, he would have been deemed fit for an insane asylum. We have gone a long way on the road to the knowledge that the prosperity and health of the community depends upon the prosperity and health of each individual.

How many of our business men fully realize just what German victory in this war would mean to them personally. It would mean in the first place a huge indemnity to pay for the cost of the war, and to raise that indemnity, every possible source of taxation would be developed to the utmost. A German bourgeoisie in every city would see to it that every man paid the utmost farthing, and our present lucrative investment in Liberty bonds would seem a financial heaven in contrast. The ONLY way to prevent this condition is to BUY LIBERTY BONDS to your utmost ability. Better Liberty bonds than German taxation.

One of the pleasing features of the influenza situation is the cordial spirit of helpfulness and self sacrifice which has been developed in this community. This has manifested itself in such work as the establishment of the Red Cross Hospital, with all the burdensome work and trouble which that institution represents, in the Stearns School canteen, where the ladies are doing most valuable, albeit, extremely distasteful work, and in the volunteer nurses, automobile drivers and many other ways of usefulness in these most trying days.

In awarding a captaincy in the United States army to Capt. Waldron H. Rand, Jr., of this city, the War Dept. has paid an unusual honor to a most unusual man. Captain Rand's work in the Newton Company of the State Guard during the past year has accomplished wonders in military efficiency and esprit de corps, largely due to his personality and ability, and there is no doubt, but what, in the larger field, Capt. Rand will more than make good.

Alderman Nichols has done a real service to the community in calling attention to the possibility of the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars, if the present distribution of the income tax is changed by the next Legislature. A net loss of $200,000 in the income of this city would send our tax rate up like a sky rocket and cause us to curtail many things we have deemed to be essential in our civic life. No efforts should be spared to avert this calamity.

If the aldermen carry out the policy of refusing building permits because of the war, they should look to the beam in their own eyes, and postpone all new work of construction, no matter how spacious an argument can be made for this, that or the other appropriation.

INFLUENZA DEATHS TOTAL 177

56 Last Week, but Height of Epidemic Passed

While there is a feeling that the height of the epidemic of influenza has passed, the official figures show no diminution, the deaths recorded this week at the office of the Board of Health being 56, making a grand total of 177 deaths since September 8th when the first death was filed.

The local physicians have not obeyed the regulation of the State Board of Health to officially report this disease beginning last Friday. It is evident from what has been reported that their time is too fully occupied with caring of their patients to bother with the large amount of clerical work necessary to fill out postcards. The number of cases reported to date are about 250, but there is no question that this is not an accurate account of the situation.

A conference was held Sunday at which the Public Safety Committee, the Board of Health, the Welfare Bureau, and other organizations were present to discuss the appalling conditions found in Nonantum and other thickly settled portions of the city on account of the epidemic.

It was the opinion of those present that the city should furnish funds to allow the Board of Health to handle the situation and the aldermen on Monday night promptly authorized $4000 for this purpose.

By a clerical error we published last week the name of Harriet J. Harding among the deaths from this disease, whereas the name should have been Willard G. Harding. We deeply regret the annoyance caused Mr. Harding's family by this unintentional mistake.

Policemen Have the Grip

The police force of Newton has been hard hit by the epidemic. There are still eight men out. At one time there were 15. This handicaps the force very much, at a time when all men are away in army service. Some of the less important beats have had to be arranged so that two men cover three beats and it takes active work to get around.

The officers are called upon for a good many services connected with the epidemic. Several families had been reported who could not get a doctor or nurses, and where they were suffering for the necessities of life. The police investigated such cases, took hold and helped on things that needed doing immediately, and called the attention of the proper city authorities for needed help.

At the beginning of the epidemic the police ambulance was used for transporting grip patients. It was later thought this created danger of infection for patients not suffering with influenza, so the work of handling grip patients is being taken by the ambulance run by the Emergency hospital.

Officer Welch was the only death on the force so far. Officer Carrigan is reported as seriously ill at his home on Newtonville avenue. Sergeant Hughes was sick and got out, but was reported yesterday to have had a relapse. Others sick on the force are Officers "Tom" Burke, Donahoe, C. Feeley, Dineen, Carroll, and Green. Officer Bates was out sick for some time previous to the epidemic. Officers Clancy, M. F. Kiley, F. Feeley, Viduicio Shaughnessy, Hargdon, and Monroe were out sick but have gotten back again. With Officers O'Neill, Payne, Haley, Crowley, John and William Riley, Moan, Cullen, Cummings, Bryson, and Marshall serving in the army, it will be seen that the force is working very short-handed. More men are desired but it is not easy to find men in these times up to the standard required of the Newton police force.

Schools Closed Till October 21

The school committee decided this morning not to open schools until October 21.

Superintendent Wheeler considers this epidemic the most serious thing the schools have ever had to contend with. It is much worse than the infant paralysis epidemic, which simply delayed the opening of schools a little. This interruption came after the schools had been working over two weeks, and the work already done will be to a large extent lost.

But it would be useless to open schools now. The continued closing of schools means that the board feels that the danger is increasing. The worst seems to be over. But it is recognized that the parents are not yet ready to send their children to school. When school closed, 55 per cent of the pupils of the grades under High School were out, and 20 per cent of the High School pupils had been removed. Also there were 40 teachers out.

In spite of the large number of teachers sick, none are reported to have died. But when school opens undoubtedly there will be a good many teachers absent and many substitutes will have to be used. Probably some classes will have to double up.

The objection to opening next week would be that the school nurses and physicians could not be in attendance, owing to the many calls on their time. The Earle Barnes lecture course has also been postponed another week.

DEATH OF PHILIP LAMOND

Philip T. Lamond, 27, of Newton Centre, died Tuesday of pneumonia, at his home on Irving street. Mr. Lamond had lived in Auburndale until about a year ago. He was department manager for the Edgar T. Ward and Sons Company of Farnsworth street, Boston, dealers in steel products.

Mr. Lamond was a member of Newton Lodge Knights of Pythias. He married Miss Charlotte Reid of Hingham about three years ago, who survives him. She has been ill this week. Also he leaves his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Lamond of Auburndale, and a sister, Mrs. Chester Brown of Melrose, who has been quite ill with influenza. The funeral is to be held today at the home at Irving street, Rev. Edward M. Noyes, pastor of the First Congregational Church officiating. The burial is to be at Hingham.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE BOYS OVERSEAS

Newton Chapter of the Red Cross to Help the Government to Get a Christmas Gift to Every Newton Soldier and Marine at the Front

How many Newton boys are there, who, either as volunteers or through the draft, are now in the American army in Europe?

It is an important thing that the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross should know because the Government is making its plans for the sending of Christmas presents to all its men at the front and it has asked the Newton Chapter to look after all the presents sent to men who have gone from Newton. The information wanted does not include men who have gone into the Navy because other arrangements are to be made for their Christmas presents. What is wanted now is the names of the men who are engaged with the land forces in Europe and the names ought to be sent in this week to the headquarters of the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross, Talbot House, Newtonville.

The names of the greater number of those who have gone are available to the Newton Chapter but what it wishes is the names of all so that arrangements may be made for the sending of a present to every Newton boy. Do your part by sending in, plainly written, the name of those whom you know about and ask others to do the same. If you know a family from which a boy has gone to the front make it your business to see that they send to the Red Cross his name. Do all you can to spread the information that the names are wanted and wanted at once.

There are so many thousands of American boys overseas that the government, because transportation space must be conserved, has ruled that only one present shall go to each boy, that the box carrying the present must be 3 by 4 by 6 inches and that ready to mail this box, or carton, must not weigh more than three pounds.

To make sure that each boy gets a present, and no more than one present, the Government has had distributed to each in Europe Christmas labels, one to each boy, for the boys to send home to their people. No present will be taken for shipment to Europe unless it has on it one of these labels and before the presents are mailed those from Newton must be inspected and certified by the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross. This is the Government order and direction to the Newton Chapter.

As the first step in its part of the Christmas distribution the Newton Chapter must send in a requisition for cartons enough to have one for every man who has gone over from Newton. This is why it asks for names and asks they be sent at once. It wishes to be able to order cartons enough so that when the time for distribution of them comes, November 1, it will be able to have a carton ready for every one who calls for one and who can show a Christmas label sent from Europe.

Those who are making ready to send presents should remember they can send none unless they have a Christmas label, sent to them from Europe, to paste upon the carton or box. The present must go in the 3 by 4 by 6 inch carton without bulging it out at the sides or ends. It must not weigh when wrapped and ready for mailing more than three pounds. The parcel may be made up of any article or articles the sender pleases provided they are not articles barred by Post Office rules. There must be no notes nor messages in the parcel. Cartons for sending presents may be obtained after Nov. 1 from the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross and all presents must be ready and in the mail on November 15. All parcels sent from Newton must be inspected and certified by the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross. Information in regard to arrangements for this inspection will be made later.

The thing to do now, today, is to send to the Newton Chapter the names of those who have gone from Newton, to spread the information that the names should be sent in and to ask every one to help spread the information in order that the Newton Chapter may be ready with a carton for every present to be sent from Newton.

FORMER MILL OVERSEER DEAD

David F. Noonan, 69, died Sunday at his home on Cornell street, Lower Falls, after an extended illness with pneumonia. Mr. Noonan was for about 20 years an overseer at the Sullivan mills. Previous to that time he held a similar position at the Merchants woolen mills, Dedham, to which town he came when 10 years old.

Mr. Noonan was a very faithful, reliable worker, of much mechanical skill, and he had invented a number of improvements to woolen machinery. He leaves his widow, two daughters, Mrs. J. A. McDonald of Auburndale, and Mrs. J. H. Nichols of New York, and four sons, James of Medford, Fred of Beachmont, George A. of Keene, N. H., and Sergeant David A. Noonan of the Quartermaster's Corps of the United States army, now serving in France. A private funeral was held at the home Wednesday with burial at Brookdale cemetery, Dedham.

The School committee ought to take formal notice of the deaths of three of the most prominent students in the service of the country and place a tablet to their memory in some conspicuous part of the High School buildings, in order that future generations may gather something of courage and inspiration from the record of their lives and deeds.

Under Many Influences.

Our judgments are so liable to be influenced by many considerations, which almost without our knowing it, are unfair, that it is necessary to keep a guard upon them.—Charles Dickens.

—Death claimed last week one of the well known residents of this village, when Mr. Wright J. Wilson passed away in his seventy-third year. Many years ago Mr. Wilson first came to this village and became associated in the tinsmith business, at which he was employed up to about three years ago, when he suffered a slight shock. Mr. Wilson was perhaps the best known man in this place as his knowledge of this village "a long time ago" was eagerly sought for by all. The deceased was married but had made his home on Langley road for a number of years. The funeral services were private and held last Sunday afternoon from his late home.

The Hardest Palm.

The hardest palm at all common is California's Trachycarpus excelsus, known as the windmill palm. Not alone is it hardy in withstanding low temperatures, but it is tough and will endure rough treatment.

The Pope's Chair.

What They Left Behind.

We know of a lot of men who didn't leave much behind them in the way of actual cash accumulated but they did leave families rich in the memories of the happiness they had while they were alive.

Thought Rules the World.

In the end thought rules the world. There are times when impulses and passions are more powerful, but they soon expend themselves; while mind, acting constantly, is ever ready to drive them back and work when their energy is exhausted.—McCosh.

A Word to the Convalescent

In the days of convalescence when one begins to feel energetic again, special heed should be paid to the diet. The body is still weak from the ravages of fever; the digestive system is an important part of the whole; it should be helped in its work of repairing and of furnishing renewed strength to the body.

Food should be taken oftener than under normal conditions and menus should be made up of foods easily digested and very tempting. Milk and eggs will form the major part of the diet at first. Well-cooked cereals, fruits, and vegetables will follow, leaving meat and fish to be added when the convalescent has gained more strength to digest.

Try these:
Spiced Grape Nog
1/2 cup grape juice
1 egg
Small pinch cinnamon
Small pinch clove
Beat egg and spices; add grape juice. Serve cold.

Peanut Butter Toast
Prepare slices of dry toast and spread generously with peanut butter. Cover with thin white sauce and serve hot.

Caramel Junket
2 cups milk
1-3 cup sugar
1-3 cup boiling water
1 junket tablet
Few grains salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
Heat milk until lukewarm. Caramelize sugar, add boiling water, and cook until syrup is reduced to one-third cup. Cool and add milk slowly to syrup. Reduce junket tablet to powder, and add to mixture, with salt and vanilla. Turn into dish, let stand in warm place until set, then chill. It is served with whipped cream, if desired.

PROCRUSTINATION

By Winifred Virginia Jordan

Procrastination is a fraud
Who lures with gift-faced treasure,
The guileless one, who thinks that she
Will give a golden measure;
She togs up lies to look like truth;
She gives them glow and glitter;
She hides with glamor and a glaze
Their tag ends rank and bitter!

She says, "Why grind at toil today?
When there will come tomorrow?"
She never says that "too late" walks
Within the tracks of Sorrow!
She says, "There's time for Care and Strife;
There's time for work and fretting!"
She does not say a laggard's day
Brings down its own regretting!

Procrastination smiles with glee
When, with her fulsome bearing
And languor's dreaming set in guile,
She works her sweet enslaving;
But time comes when she gives you sneers,
And jeers, with meanness of viper;
And then you'll find that you must pay—
For each man pays his Piper!

WEBSTER ALLEN CHANDLER

The community has suffered the loss of one of its best citizens in the death of Webster A. Chandler, who succumbed to a fatal type of the epidemic at his home in Newton Centre, Monday, October 7. He was in the prime of mature manhood, less than 40 years of age; had established himself in the successful practice of law in Boston, and with his parents, wife and children, was enjoying the comfort and delights of a happy home, when a brief illness ended his earthly career. His character was well balanced and strong, in its unquestioned integrity, honor and readiness to serve his fellows. He had served for six years as leader of the choir and superintendent of the Bible school of the Newton Centre Methodist Episcopal Church, and was among its staunchest supporters and counselors. For more than ten years he has been secretary of the Methodist Social Union in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler were both graduated from Boston University, having taken the degree of master of jurisprudence subsequent to that of A. B. Mrs. Chandler is left with three young children who, with Mr. Chandler's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Perry Chandler, have the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Private funeral services were held Wednesday forenoon at the Chandler home, the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. E. Wagner and Dr. W. E. Huntington officiating.

DEATH OF LIEUT. WILL C. NILES

Lieut. Will C. Niles, dental surgeon stationed with the detachment of soldiers training at the Technical High School, died Friday of pneumonia, following influenza, which was contracted while treating the men at the camp. Lieutenant Niles had been in the service four months, previous to which time he had been associated in dental practice with his father in Newton. He was 26 years old and was a graduate of the Watertown High School and of Harvard Dental School. He leaves his father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. James P. Niles, and a brother, Guy D. Niles.

Funeral services were held last Monday at the chapel at Newton cemetery, where the burial took place, conducted by Rev. C. H. Day, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Watertown. Officers associated with him at the training camp acted as pallbearers.

THE SLEIGH-RIDE.

"A little boy and a little girl were driving through the country not long ago," commenced Daddy.

"Do you mean that Nick and I were the little boy and little girl?" asked Nancy.

"No," said Daddy, "the little boy's name was Ned, and the little girl's name was Nelly. They were really not driving, but sleigh-riding, and the bells were jingling on the horses' harnesses and on the front of their sleigh were big feathery decorations. They looked like feather dusters, the children thought, but they made the sleigh look very fine and smart."

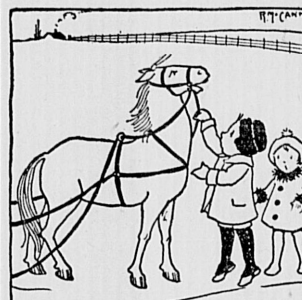

"They drove along the white roads, for the snow was deep and not a scrap of real road showed itself. The fields were white, the bushes were covered with white, for only that morning there had been an extra covering of snow to the whole country around."

"Sometimes they sang songs and sometimes they just looked about them. Everything was so beautiful and white and sparkling. How they loved it!"

"After a time they passed a barn. Two horses were standing outside it, hitched to a big sleigh filled with apples and potatoes, which had been saved through the winter to be used when the supplies began to run short."

"The sleigh was going to take them to the big house not far away. When the two horses saw the horses that were pulling Ned and Nelly they bowed their heads as if to say, 'How-do-you-do, comrades!'"

"And to the huge amusement of Ned and Nelly, their horses did the same. The children laughed aloud and the farmer called out, 'Do you want some nice red apples?' Of course they did."

and not only did they have some, but their horses were given some apples, too, and once more they bowed.

"I have never seen such polite horses," said Nelly.

"I never have, either," said Ned.

"They thanked the farmer and drove off. But before they had really started the farmer's two horses bowed once more, and the horses belonging to Ned and Nelly did the same."

"What a funny time we have had," said Ned.

"Yes," said Nelly, "and it doesn't sound true. But those horses all certainly bowed politely at the right time. They bowed a how-do-you-do, a thank-you for the apples, and a good-by."

"And this really was true," said Daddy. "But to continue with the rest of their drive. On their way home one of the horses got very much frightened, and in some way escaped from his harness and ran off. But as he got loose from the harness the sleigh upset, for he had pulled against the other horse and had landed the children in a ditch."

"For such a polite horse it was a dreadful thing to do, but he had suddenly noticed a sawmill and heard the noise and though he had heard it many times before, it had been some weeks since the last time, and for some reason he was thoroughly frightened."

"The children picked themselves up. They were not really hurt. And they tried to soothe the horse which had been left behind, for now he was afraid of the sudden and startling way things had happened."

"But he comforted the children, and the children comforted him. 'You'll have to take us back alone,' said Nelly. 'Yes,' said Ned. 'I'll try to fix the harness and the sleigh!'"

"But just at that moment the horse came running back, with the daddy of Ned and Nelly behind him in another sleigh. 'What has happened?' asked their Daddy, and at once, to his relief, he saw that they had not been really hurt at all."

"The faithful old Prince," said their Daddy, "knew that something was wrong, and wouldn't wait until I brought him to just this road which he wanted to come."

"The children explained to their Daddy what had happened, and they all decided that though Prince had been come frightened, he would be more careful the next time. And he had certainly tried to make up for it by coming right back for them with their Daddy. And the other horse had remained with them. So they came to the conclusion that not only had they polite horses which bowed to their friends, but good, faithful and devoted ones."

A San Francisco man was sentenced to 30 minutes in jail for bootlegging. Perhaps that's an industry they don't want to discourage.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

GRACE M. BURT, Editor.

Next in importance to caring for the sick and protecting the well in the immediate scourge of influenza is the completion of the Fourth Liberty Loan. Doubtless the ban on meetings is having serious effect upon results, especially among the women, who, perhaps, more often than men follow like a flock of sheep. For example, during the Third Campaign last spring at two meetings on successive weeks in one of the villages of Newton made up of many of the same women, there were sold bonds to the amount of $10,000 and $45,000 respectively.

There seems to be some misapprehension among a certain class of women in regard to buying on the installment plan, that this method is intended merely for those of small incomes and for wage earners. Such is not the case for it is said on good authority that President Wilson is buying them in that way as an example to the country. Do not think when one has invested one's available cash that it is not possible to do more. Buy another on the installment plan. The initial payment of 10 percent, is small and the remaining ones spread over four months can be easily met by minor sacrifice. To even call it sacrifice seems almost a travesty when one considers the real sacrifice of the women across the sea. One has but to read of conditions found in towns evacuated by the Germans to realize what has been their sacrifice, to say nothing of their suffering. Remember that such conditions may await us if we do not fight to a finish now. Therefore, buy another bond.

Local Announcements

These clubs have postponed indefinitely meetings scheduled for next week: Newton Highlands Monday Club, C. L. S. C. of Newton Highlands, Newton Ladies' Home Circle.

The Presidents' Conference of the State Federation of Women's Clubs and the Industrial and Social Conditions Conference scheduled for next week have been indefinitely postponed.

Women's Committee on Liberty Loan

In addition to stations where Liberty Bonds may be purchased, which were announced last week, an open air booth has been established in Chestnut Hill near the station, which has met with great success. It is probable that similar ones will be opened in other parts of Newton. It is evident that something must be done to pull Newton and in fact all New England to its rightful place. Reports on Thursday stated that Newton stood fourth in sale of bonds instead of third. We must pull back to our former place. We can no more halt in our buying than our men can halt as they forge ahead at the front.

They have absolute confidence in our support and we must meet that confidence with equal courage and effort. Every dollar invested in bonds leads to more and more dollars invested in savings. Newton just so much nearer to her quota.

The women making up the committee are as follows: Mrs. Frank H. Stewart, acting chairman for the whole city; Mrs. Henry I. Harriman, Newton; Mrs. W. H. Allen, Newtonville; Mrs. F. S. Blodgett, West Newton; Mrs. C. A. Brown, Auburndale; Mrs. P. C. Bahn, Newton Lower Falls; Mrs. E. Ray Spence, Newton Centre; Mrs. C. G. Wetherbee, Newton Highlands; Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Chestnut Hill; Mrs. Oscar E. Nutter, Newton Upper Falls; Mrs. Earle E. Conway, Waban.

AMBULANCE MEN HOME

Three Harvard Men Who Drove Ford Cars on Italian Front

Three Newton young men returned the past week from Italy where they had been working as Ford ambulance drivers with the Harvard Ambulance Unit since last May. They were Roger W. Buntin, Temple street, West Newton, who graduated at Newton High School in 1917, Harry F. Gibbs of Otis street, West Newton, who graduated from Newton High School in 1916, and Charles Masters, of Centre street, Newton Centre. All three are Harvard students. Mr. Buntin and Mr. Masters are to return to Harvard and to join the S. A. C. C., while Mr. Gibbs is hoping to enter an officers' training camp in Virginia.

The boys were stationed on the lower Piave river near Venice, and their work was to transfer the wounded from one hospital to another. Most of them were actively engaged in this work during the drive of the Austrians last July. While the roads were good, they were crowded, and they had to drive without lights at night. They had to work long hours with insufficient sleep, and the experience was an arduous one.

They came home with the impression that the morale of the Italian troops was low previous to the big drive, but that their victory over the Austrians greatly improved it. Now they think the Italian army is tired of waiting for action and would be better if they were attacking. They could drive the enemy back any time along the Piave river, but it is not much use to attack there while the Austrians hold their present strong positions in the mountains, whence they must first be dislodged.

The young men's service was greatly appreciated by the Italians, and they were given honors, and many of them had war decorations.

LOOKING AHEAD

Senator John W. Weeks Outlines His Plan for a Congressional Committee to Anticipate Conditions After the War

All European countries are building for the after war period. At the drop of the peace hat Germany is ready to start the next race, just as she began the present one—prepared. France is giving serious official thought to this problem. England has what practically amounts to a Reconstruction Ministry, headed by Lord Balfour. The United States alone has ignored it. This nation is as unprepared for peace as it was unprepared for war.

Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts has just introduced in Congress a joint resolution calling for the creation of a Committee of Reconstruction. It provides for a committee of twelve, six from each house of Congress, the appointees to be equally divided among the Republicans and the Democrats. It then apportions the reconstruction problems in twelve departments.

SENATOR JOHN W. WEEKS

"The United States can no longer ignore the reconstruction problem," said Senator Weeks, when interviewed on his bill. "Even if the majority of the people do not visualize the important necessity they certainly can have no good reason for opposing the projected forethought of those whose business it is to prepare for the immediate future. When peace comes it will not give us any time for preparation. If history repeats itself, as it doubtless will, peace may be upon us with dramatic suddenness similar to that which forced the war upon us. In one day the whole world scene will change."

Our Nation Only One Inactive

"The United States is the only nation engaged in war that is not constructively getting ready for peace conditions. Nearly three years ago conferences were held by the Allies at which certain general principles were adopted in regard to trade conditions after the war, the relationship of one Power to another, the relationship of the Allies to friendly countries, neutral nations and the enemy governments. Similar conferences were held by the Central Powers."

"In Great Britain and to some degree in Germany, separate ministries have been established to assume charge of reconstruction. In Germany, if the evidence I have is correct, three such ministries have been organized and in England one has been created."

"My idea is to have the committee employ experts to collect evidence and to assist otherwise in a thorough study of every phase of this vast subject. We must know in detail what all European countries are doing, and we must know what it is possible for us to do."

"Look at the character of the men Great Britain has called to a responsible consideration of reconstruction. There the committee on commercial and industrial policy after the war is headed by Lord Balfour of Burleigh; the committee on agricultural policy by the Earl of Selbourne; the committee on forestry by F. D. Ackland, a member of Parliament. These committees make their reports to the Prime Minister and in many cases the interim reports have recommended legislation which I understand is under consideration. They have been in operation for more than two years."

"Unless the United States act promptly we shall lose a great part of the commercial and trade advantages we have obtained during the war, and especially in its early days, and we will have much confusion which will take a long time to overcome."

Senator Weeks was asked to go a little more into detail concerning what he considered the high lights of some of the major problems.

Problem of Shipping

"Take our shipping interests," he continued. "At the end of the war the American merchant fleet is most likely to be larger than that of any other country. It will be largely owned by the Government. Our Government will own some of the greatest ship-building plants in the world which we have constructed primarily for war purposes, but it is safe to say that these plants will have a capacity in after the war conditions sufficient to build and repair the merchant fleets of all countries."

"What are we going to do with these ships and shipyards? Are we going to sell the yards, lease them, or is the Government to continue to operate them? Shall we or shall we not abandon those least advantageously located? What are we going to do with this enormous American tonnage, two millions of which has been made available during the past year?"

"Then there is our foreign trade. This is of vital importance. Are we to allow our trade with the neutral countries, which has been greatly increased during the war period, to lapse, or are we to develop it to a much greater extent?"

"Before the war out of a total production of $6,000,000,000 we found it necessary to secure foreign markets for something like $1,000,000,000 of our products. Manufacturing capacity, indeed, the entire productive capacity of the country, has been increased enormously since the beginning of the war. If it is to be operated to its full capacity, especially when the demands for munitions of war cease and this army of workers and vast amount of machinery enter the field of industrial production, the United States will quite likely have an additional productive capacity of from 25 to 50 per cent.

Sees Possible Hard Times

"Markets must be found for this surplus production and they must be foreign markets. If these markets are not found there will necessarily be great slackening in every productive industry in the United States. This will mean a consequent reduction of employees and employment, the closing down of factories, etc. It means hard times."

"Are we not to foresee this possibility, nay, this probability? How are we to avoid it unless we are prepared against it?"

"What shall be done with all the manufacturing plants and other establishments created for war purposes, the machinery of which may or may not be available for after war production?"

"Of profound importance is the problem that will face millions of war workers now so busily employed. Shall the Government not take some action to protect them at the declaration of peace?"

"High wages have been paid during the war, but the evidence we have does not indicate that the savings of war workers have been materially greater than in normal times. If so, a sudden termination of employment would find millions in a serious condition, and it should be the function of the Government to assist them in readjusting themselves to new civil employment."

"Then consider the building trades. Many people believe that they will be especially active as soon as the war is over, but of this there is grave doubt. Ordinarily when times are bad and uncertain financial conditions prevail the building trades are not active. Moreover, the Government is doing a lot of building. What is to be done with these structures? Are we going to continue to own and lease the houses the Government has provided for these war workers, or are we to sell them?"

How about Our Boys Abroad?

"What about the demobilization of our army and navy after the war? If there is any plan for this it has not been brought to my attention. What is to be done with these men, and how are we going to get them to resume their former or other civil employments? With the single exception of a statement recently made by Secretary Lane relative to the occupancy of public lands by soldiers and sailors, I have not heard of any even tentative plan proposed to provide for this exigency. The proposal of the Secretary Lane should be given the fullest consideration."

"When peace is declared there will be in process of completion billions of dollars of war orders. Necessarily most of these orders will be cancelled immediately. That will mean that manufacturers throughout the country will have on hand or under contract large quantities of raw material and material in process."

"The prices of such materials will undoubtedly decline at once. Who is going to be responsible for the losses incidental to that situation? Unless the Government saddles itself with these deficiencies there will be an infinite number of claims for amounts aggregating billions of dollars, and as a result of that situation we may have uncertainty for years to come, and probably many failures. The credit facilities of the country must be mobilized and prepared to meet this condition."

"Let us turn to the general labor situation. I am not now referring to the labor situation as it affects war workers or returned soldiers and sailors. Many new situations have developed since the beginning of the war."

Millions of Women at Work

"Millions of women are now doing work heretofore performed by men and with which they were not connected until the war required it. Are they to return to their former employments or unemployment, or are they to continue their present pursuits in competition with the millions returning from military service? Would it not be well for us to provide for permanent employment agencies throughout the country and not only find employment for those seeking it, but arrange for the transference of unemployed to localities where there is a dearth of labor?"

"Intimately connected with the question of labor is the one relating to social welfare. Many European countries and other nations have taken steps nationally relating to many social welfare questions, for example, like providing for old age pensions, health insurance and other similar matters. Those questions are being agitated in the United States in some localities and a pensioning system has been adopted applying to a limited number of civil employments. It is being done in a desultory and probably unsatisfactory and unjust way. If it is wise to do it at all it should be wise for the national Government to do it, but before any comprehensive action is taken the whole subject should be thoroughly investigated."

"How can we longer ignore the question of post war trusts and combinations?"

POLICE NOTES

For operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, John J. O'Day, of Woodbine terrace, Auburndale, was fined $100 in court Tuesday morning. O'Day was driving a truck owned by B. S. Hatch Co., West Newton, when he was arrested. On Monday, while turning from Commonwealth avenue into Lowell avenue, Newton, he guided his machine in a heavy crash through a heavy car at one side of Lowell avenue. The crash nearly helped him extricate himself, only to have him swing in the other direction, a moment later, rear down a large section of the sidewalk at the opposite side of the street. This time the machine nearly escaped pitching down a 20-foot embankment.

On the front of the car was wrecked, O'Day, who through all these ups and downs, sat on the seat smoking his pipe, was arrested by patrolman John Hennessey, who, in citizen's clothes, was passing in an automobile.

Restrict calls to such as are necessary or important, particularly calls made during the evening hours, and especially calls made by children.

Accept operators' reports of "line busy," etc., without appeal to chief operators for confirmation or investigation.

Newton Committee on Public Safety Postpones Its Proposed War Fair Indefinitely

To the Citizens of Newton: The Newton Committee on Public Safety is organized to protect in every way possible the lives, property, and best interests of our citizens. A large part of this work, this past year, has been the encouragement and management of war gardens, and in the interest of the continuance of this work in the future a War Fair had been arranged to take place on Claflin Field October 5. The objects of this fair were:

1. To show how individuals, institutions, organizations and city departments are co-operating to win the war.
2. To show the results of our garden work and to stimulate the continuance of this work for next year.
3. To foster a community spirit in our city.

It was hoped by this fair to raise several thousand dollars for the work of the Public Safety Committee. Because of the continuance of the influenza epidemic and by advice of the State Public Safety Committee it has been decided best to give up the holding of the fair. Those who have purchased tickets are entitled to a refund from those who sold them, unless they wish to contribute this sum to the preliminary expenses for the fair.

DEATH OF B. C. BIXBY

The death took place of Bertram C. Bixby, of Gibbs street, Newton Centre, at his summer home at Southport, Maine, last Friday. Mr. Bixby had been out of business for several years, his health not being good. He had been active in the work of Trinity Church, particularly in the Men's Club, of which he was the secretary for some time. He married Miss Margaret Vinton of Hyde Park, who survives him with two daughters, Misses Barbara and Helene.

Mr. and Mrs. Bixby lived a short time in Brooklyn, N. Y., before coming here. Mr. Bixby was a man of attractive personality, and his death will be greatly regretted by his associates in the work of Trinity parish. Funeral services were held at Southport, Maine, on Sunday.

DEATH OF JOHN S. PATTON

John Sidney Patton, 32, of Fisher avenue, Newton Highlands, died Tuesday after a few days' illness with pneumonia. He was a native of Allston and was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1903. He had also studied law in Europe where he spent considerable time in Paris and Munich. For some time he taught French at a military school in New Orleans, then studied law and engaged in practice in Boston. Since the first of the year he had been a member of the legal staff of the United Fruit Company. He was a member of the Highland Glee Club. His engagement was announced only last Saturday to Miss Elsa Richardson of Watertown. He is survived by his mother and a sister. His father, John Sidney Patton, was a very prominent lawyer. Funeral services were held Sunday at Mount Hope cemetery.

DEATH OF MRS. F. L. PECKHAM

Mrs. Mae R. Peckham, wife of Frank L. Peckham of Church street, died Monday following an operation at the Emerson Hospital. She was formerly a resident of Germantown, Pa., and her marriage to Mr. Peckham took place eight years ago. She had lived in Newton five years. She was a member of Grace Episcopal Church, and had been active in the women's organizations, and also in the social life at the Hunnewell Club. She leaves her husband, two sons, Frank and George, and three sisters living in Pennsylvania. Funeral services were held at the home on Wednesday, Rev. Dr. Laurens MacLure officiating, and burial was at Fall River. Mr. Peckham is connected with the executive offices of the F. W. Woolworth Company, Boston.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD

Miss Abbie J. Meserve died suddenly of heart trouble yesterday at her home in the Stevens building. She was born in Fitchburg, Mass., seventy-three years ago, the daughter of Dana and Sarah Meserve. For the past 48 years she was a resident of this city, thirty of which were spent in Newton Upper Falls, but eighteen years ago she moved to the Stevens building where she had since resided. The funeral services will take place Saturday afternoon at 2.30, at the grave in Mount Auburn cemetery.

The party before their return debated what report to make to Mrs. Aborn as to the probable fate of her husband and agreed that it would be best to tell her that her husband had doubtless been killed by the Indians, not mentioning that he had been first tortured. As the Aborn family had increased the father, who at times had been troubled with insomnia, had slept in a room by himself. Mrs. Aborn, who did not relinquish all hope that he would return, kept this room always ready for him. But she kept it locked and never mentioned it or to whom it had belonged. A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

A Pioneer Story

By WALTER WILCOX

One hundred years ago a young couple left Virginia, crossed the Allegheny mountains and settled in Henderson county, Ky. It was a wild country in those days, but very beautiful, nature seeming to tempt the pioneer with its virgin scenery, its immense trees, its profusion of wild flowers. And such temptation was necessary. The settler never knew at what moment the yell of the savage would break the stillness of the wilderness or when he and his family might be cut down by a tomahawk without even a whisper of warning. These were the inducements and the drawbacks to settlers in the new country, though there is a fascination in danger that drew the fearless.

John Aborn and his wife Mary journeyed to their new home down the Ohio river on the only means of inland navigation known at that time, a flatboat, and on reaching their destination went ashore, "entered" a quarter section of land, built a log cabin and proceeded to make a living by the cultivation of the soil and hunting. Children were born to them. As more room was needed their cabin was extended, and within a few years the location assumed the semblance of civilization.

Aborn brought with him to Kentucky a few slaves and bought others from time to time, for we must remember that in those days the only hands a farmer could obtain were his own negroes. The community lived on game, of which there was abundance near at hand; the grain they raised and nuts and berries, which grew plentifully on tree and bush. Each family was a unit bound together by the strongest ties.

But after a time the game was not so plentiful about the settlements on the river bank, and the hunters were obliged to go farther inland to provide meat for their families. Then it was that the Aborns' troubles commenced.

In the wilderness still inhabited by the deer and the wild turkey were many dangers. Besides the Indian, there was the wolf, and there were desperadoes, who, whenever a new country is settled, on account of the absence of government find it a fine field for their lawless operations. Nevertheless every autumn John Aborn was obliged to go into the unsettled regions in order to bring back a supply of meat for the winter consumption. Sometimes he would go with a party of his neighbors, sometimes with a single friend and sometimes alone.

One October morning he set out on his annual hunting tour in company with Alexander Swift, the neighbor with whom he was most intimate. When Aborn embraced his wife and children before departing they clung to him with unusual reluctance to let him go. Whether this was due to a presentiment that evil might happen to him or that he must now go farther and remain longer than ever before, the fact remains that he and his family were loath to part. Finally, tearing himself away from them, he sprang into the wilderness with his friend.

When it came time for the husband and father's return his wife and children watched for him eagerly. He had usually been away two weeks, but in this trip he purposed to be gone three. This was because with the settling of the country he was obliged to go farther from home. He had set out on a Monday and had promised to be back on Saturday, two days before the third Monday following. All that day his wife and children watched for him, but he did not come. The next day and the next they felt sure would bring him, but he disappointed them. The wife and mother began to be troubled, but concealed her anxiety as well as she was able from her children. When another week had passed and neither Aborn nor his companion returned Mrs. Aborn felt sure that both had met with misfortune. The most reasonable supposition was that they had been killed by Indians.

A month passed, and still neither Aborn nor his companion returned. Then the other hunters of that region organized a band to go and look for the missing men. A week later they returned, reporting that they had come upon the body of Alexander Swift pierced with arrows and scalped. They had found no trace whatever of Aborn. It seemed probable that the two men had been attacked by Indians; that Swift had been killed and Aborn captured, in which event he must have met a worse fate than his companion. The rains had washed out the trail of the Redskins as well as that of their captive.

The party before their return debated what report to make to Mrs. Aborn as to the probable fate of her husband and agreed that it would be best to tell her that her husband had doubtless been killed by the Indians, not mentioning that he had been first tortured. As the Aborn family had increased the father, who at times had been troubled with insomnia, had slept in a room by himself. Mrs. Aborn, who did not relinquish all hope that he would return, kept this room always ready for him. But she kept it locked and never mentioned it or to whom it had belonged. After her husband's capture by the Indians she sold most of her negroes, feeling that she could not afford to keep them, buying a strong woman who would serve all domestic purposes. To this woman the bedroom that was never opened was a mystery. She once mentioned the room to her mistress, asking why it was kept locked, but received no satisfaction. After that she speculated a great deal about the room, telling the field hands that she "spect-ed Missy Aborn had a ha'n't locked up in dat room." The settlers, or, rather, their wives, who knew of the closing of this room pined the poor woman, whose husband had doubtless been tortured and burned at the stake by the savages and would never return. They assumed that she hoped her husband would come back to her and she wished him to find his room ready for his occupation.

Two years passed, during which Mrs. Aborn worked her farm as well as she could, and her neighbors on their return from their hunting expeditions always supplied her with meat for the coming winter and spring. But it was a forlorn country in which to bring up children, and she was often tempted to remove to Indiana or Ohio, where she would have facilities for giving them an education. Finally she resolved one autumn that if no tidings came from her husband during the winter she would sell her plantation and her negroes, keeping her horses, and, mounting her children and herself on them, would go to some point on the river bank opposite Ohio, cross the river and make a home in one of the villages of that state.

The winter passed without the return of her husband or any news of him. Friendly Indians came and went to and from the settlement, and the widow never failed to inquire if any of them had knowledge of a white man she described to them. But none of them could give her any news of him. In the spring she began her preparations for removal.

One night when she had put her children to bed she concluded to ride over to the house of a neighbor to whom she hoped to sell her plantation. It was a stormy night, but she was anxious to get an offer for the property and was not deterred by the weather. During the evening a band of friendly Indians came into the settlement and were soon wandering about in search of what they could steal. One of them appeared at the kitchen, where Martha, Mrs. Aborn's maid of all work, was at work, and, turning, she saw him standing in the doorway. She was wiping a plate, which she straightway dropped on the floor, and it broke in pieces. The savage in a guttural tone peculiar to the Indian said:

"Me want bed. Me good Indian. Me no hurt anybody."

Martha got up enough courage to tell the Redskin that every room but one was occupied by the children and that was locked. The Indian horrified her by walking into the kitchen, taking up a tallow dip and proceeding to examine the house. Seeing the children sound asleep in their beds, he held the candle over each one of them in turn, giving a grunt of satisfaction at the sight of their rosy faces. Martha followed him at a distance, her complexion wearing the sickly light yellow of a frightened negro. She saw him go into her mistress' bedroom, and when he came out he had a key in his hand. Going to the empty chamber, he unlocked the door and said to the woman:

"Me sleep here. You no tell."

He accompanied his words with a savage look that tied her tongue completely. She wished to tell of the Indian who had gone into the only vacant room, but did not dare. He would surely know that she had told and would tomahawk her. When her mistress returned it was evident that the negro had experienced a great scare; but, though Mrs. Aborn tried to induce her to tell what had frightened her, her efforts resulted in failure. As soon as Mrs. Aborn had gone to her room Martha went out and reported the Indian's presence in the house. But she was either not believed or those she told, considering that the group of red men who had come to the village were friendly, did not think the matter worthy of their attention, especially as the Aborn house was closed for the night.

Slumber finally reigned over the settlement. Martha slept in one of the negro cabins and early in the morning returned to the mother's abode, dreading to find both her and her children murdered. Entering the kitchen, she went from there into the other portions of the house, and, finding everything quiet, the older children asleep in their beds and her mistress slumbering with the smaller ones, she made up her mind that the savage was less murderous than she had supposed him to be and set about getting breakfast.

Presently she heard a cry. Terrified lest the Indian, after all, was about to tomahawk her mistress, she ran out of the kitchen into a passageway. There she saw Mrs. Aborn in the arms of the Indian, whose face had lost its coppery hue during the night. Mrs. Aborn's head was hanging limp on the Indian's arm, it being evident that she had fainted. Martha, supposing it to have been from fright, sought support against the wall to avoid collapsing herself.

The Indian was none other than John Aborn. And this was his story: He and his companion huntsman had been set upon by Indians. Swift had been killed and Aborn made a prisoner. He was taken far to the south and adopted into the tribe. No opportunity had occurred for some time to return north, and even then he had been obliged to delay going to his home. Those with whom he had entered the settlement were ignorant that he was a white man, and he did not wish them to know it. He remained concealed till they had left.

ISLAND OF GUAM IS LOYAL

Voluntary Universal Training Has Helped Immensely in Americanization.

How far the people of the Pacific island of Guam have progressed in the process of Americanization is indicated in the current issue of the Guam News Letter, copies of which have recently reached Seattle. The island, which is our cable outpost for the Philippine Islands and the Orient, is governed by Capt. Roy C. Smith of the American navy, under the oversight of the navy department. Captain Smith seems to be developing a very ardent band of Americanism among the island people, who are known as Chamorros and have a strong admixture of Spanish blood.

The News Letter describes the celebration of Washington's birthday in Guam, to which the people flocked from all parts of the island, coming by launch, owing to the absence of any island highway system. The proceeds of the various enterprises, amounting to $1,370.55, were donated to the Red Cross, and we gather that the program of amusement was purely American. For instance, the "hot dog" stand realized $108.94; Butler's soda, $158.50; knock the cat down, $112.07; the moving picture show, $75.90; the jitney dance, $45.69; wheel of fortune, $350.10; lemonade stand, $772.93; baseball game, $16.40. From all sources the Red Cross received $1,500, and subscriptions were given for $50,000 in Liberty bonds.

More than this, the island militia had its first parade. Some time ago Governor Smith put into effect a universal military training law at the request of the people, this being the first portion of American territory in which such a law has been made effective. There are 1,000 militiamen, the government supplying guns and ammunition and the regular khaki uniform of the United States army. Seven per cent of Guam's population is in the militia, at which rate, if we of the mainland kept up with the Chamorros, we should have an army of 7,000,000. The flags and floats of the parade induced a tremendous enthusiasm in the populace.

Officer Once Stable Boy.

We have ceased to be surprised at the amazing social upheaval brought about by the war, but the shock which a gentleman received recently at a very exclusive club of which he is a member can be easily understood. On the staircase he was hailed by a resplendent young officer of the guards attired in one of those gray coats whose color and cut are the envy of all "subs." Not recognizing the young officer, there was a pause, whereupon the soldier said: "I'm afraid you've forgotten me. My name is —." The gentleman still failed to identify the officer. "I'm of Newark," added the guardsman. Whereupon the astounded gentleman recognized the grownup boy who five years ago had saddled his horse at a hunting box he visited. The stable hand had enlisted in the ranks, won a commission in the field, and finally been transferred to a guard regiment, and carried himself as if to the manner born.—London Mail.

Polish Army in France.

The flag of Poland was lifted on the battle line when the Polish legion, 15,000 strong, recruited mostly in the United States, took its place among the allies in France. It is only a little army that the ancient emblem of a free Poland is flying over now, but every Polish volunteer in France and every patriotic Pole in the United States and scattered elsewhere throughout the world, is confident that ultimately the flag will wave over a free and strong and reunited Poland, and every Pole understands that it is only through a triumph of the allies in this war for justice and right and world freedom that the restoration of Poland can be brought about.—Springfield Union.

Wartime Wall Street.

Before the war Wall street was just a thoroughfare, the brownest and busiest in the world. Now, as it draws its slight bow up to Trinity, it has lost something of its dusty absorption. Like Fifth avenue and Broadway, it has undergone a transformation, and the long flags that hang from the windows of its offices swing in gay lines of energy up to the sunlit spires of the church.

Even here, where all is generally so quiet, so undemonstrative, the war has reached with bright fingers and brought out the love of country symbolized by these banners in the wind.—New York Times.

Dodging the Draft.

A man in the draft who would much rather have stayed at home complaining of having poor eyesight. After being put through the eye test the doctor told him to go in the next room for further examination. The man gave a sigh of relief. When he came to the door he noticed a black thread running across and dodged it, whereupon the eye doctor said: "Come back, cutie; you're all right."

Cotton Seed's Rise in Value.

Cotton seed, formerly thrown away, is now bringing $75 a ton. A ton yields 280 pounds of crude oil, 800 pounds of meal animal food and 125 pounds of ammonia.

His Summer Job.

"Going away this summer?"
"No, siree. I'm going to stay right here and camp on the coal dealer's doorstep until I get next winter's coal in my cellar."

PLAYGROUNDS SUPERVISED

The playground department wishes parents to know that playgrounds are under supervision of playground directors or school teachers every day this week, and will probably be under supervision next week if schools remain closed. This daily supervision has been made possible by kindly cooperation of the school department, a number of school teachers in each district having volunteered in supervising playgrounds. It is therefore safe for parents to send their children to the playgrounds since every supervisor has been instructed to send the children who have colds to their homes. Children who have colds or who show signs of influenza will not be allowed to play with children on the playgrounds. It is therefore safer to let children play on the playground than on the street where it is impossible to detect cases of influenza or infection.

REAL ESTATE

Alvord Bros., agents, report the sale of 50,490 square feet of land at Newton Centre and Newton Highlands, bounded by Crystal Lake, Lake avenue and Rogers street, assessed for $7000. The transfer was from George D. Miller et al to John Segerson. This property was part of the estate of Moses G. Crane. A grove of oaks, chestnuts, and birches cover the land making it by far the most beautiful strip of lake border still remaining unimproved.

The report of the present year of the special committee of the board of aldermen on bathing facilities at Crystal Lake contains the following recommendation:

"I strongly recommend that the city of Newton (when times are more normal and the city authorities can reasonably do so) should acquire for public park purposes all of the now vacant land adjoining the proposed bath-house location, to the westward, connecting up with the land now owned by the city, reserving only for bathing purposes such land as is necessary to provide for reasonable bathing facilities."

INFLUENZA NOT SO SERIOUS

Conditions in Newton Far Better than in Surrounding Places

The list of deaths from the influenza has fallen rapidly this week in Newton as well as in the surrounding territory and it seems as if it will be only a hideous memory. The deaths this week are 30 as compared with 56 the week previous, and making a grand total to date of 157. (There was a clerical error in the figures used last week, which should have been 127 instead of 177). Compared with other nearby places Newton has a very good record in this respect. With our population of 45,000 we have had a death rate of 3.1 per 1000. Waltham with a population of about 30,000 has had 170 deaths with a rate of 5.8 per 1000, and Watertown with 20,000 population has had 70 deaths or a rate of 3.3 per 1000.

DEATH OF VALENTINE E. FERRIS

Valentine E. Ferris, son of Mrs. C. M. Ferris of Hovey street, died last Friday at Fort William Henry, near Washington, of pneumonia. His mother and sister, Miss Emma Ferris, went on to the camp, but arrived six hours too late to find him alive. He was a graduate of Newton Technical High School, and had made a specialty of the textile business, in which he had studied at Lawrence and Chelmsford. He was a young man of most approachable and likable character who will be greatly missed. He was active in the young men's work at Eliot Church, where he also served as an usher and held office in the Sunday school.

Funeral services were to be held in Swanton, Vt., today, if the body arrived in time, with burial at the same place. Mr. Ferris, besides the mother and sister already mentioned, leaves another sister, Mrs. Donald Blaikie of Montreal.

WINTER HUT NEEDED

For Soldiers at Newton Technical High

The Committee in charge of providing the winter hut for the soldiers in training at our Technical High School would not appeal to Newton Citizens if the money could be provided from any other fund with which to build this hut. If the soldiers are to have a recreational center the people of Newton must provide it.

This Red Triangle hut should be completed at once so as to serve the 330 men who will arrive this week. It will be the only comfortable gathering place on the grounds where the soldiers may go to write letters, meet their friends, be entertained, and so forth. It is the nearest approach to home that can be given to the men in training.

Judging from the constant use of the temporary quarters in the Y. M. C. A. tent during the past summer, the winter hut is even more important and desirable.

An appeal for funds to pay for this emergency hut was made recently through our Newton papers. A few contributions have been received. The balance of the $2500.00, the cost of the hut, must be obtained at once.

Will you not give this emergency appeal your immediate attention, and send cash or check to Mr. J. Richard Carter, care of the Y. M. C. A., Newton, Mass., or hand to any member of the committee?

C. D. Kenner, Chairman, J. Richard Carter, Treasurer, W. F. Garcelon, G. W. Auryansen, H. W. Bascom.

War workers are requested to take up again the work for the welfare of the boys at the front. Work days and hours will be the same as they were before. Workers who see this are asked to pass along the word so that work may not be held back because of lack of workers. The Newton Board of Health assures the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross conditions have improved so much in Newton that the rooms may be opened with safety.

NEWTON CHAPTER ORGANIZES

The Newton Branch of the Red Cross went out of existence at the meeting of its directors, at Talbot House, last Monday evening. Talbot of Newtonville, Mrs. A. P. Rogers of Newton Centre and Mrs. Morton E. Cobb of Newton Centre were elected members of the board. At the same meeting Mrs. C. G. Newton's patriotic enthusiasm has not been dampened by the influenza or anything else, and at the very first opportunity will show itself. That opportunity will come tomorrow night, at Bray Hall in Newton Centre when the Liberty Loan campaign will end with a great rally. As the time approaches, the enthusiasm grows and it promises to be a great time. Senator Weeks will speak and is sure to loosen up the purses, even of those who have already bought bonds.

Two of the fighting heroes will also talk. One is Sergeant M. A. Polley, of the American Expeditionary Force, who has been in France and has been sent to this country by Gen. Pershing in charge of a detachment to boom the loan. The other is Regt. Serat-Mayor Campbell of the Canadian overseas forces. These men have been in the thick of it and their stories will be thrilling. Then there will be a band and lots of stirring music. Everybody is invited to come and help turn the rally into a grand jubilation over the splendid news from the fighting front. The meeting has been arranged by

William Corbett's Thrilling Experience—Finally Hit by Shrapnel While With Engineers—On Torpedoed Vessel

Private William Corbett, son of Mrs. Sarah J. Corbett of Gordon terrace, Newton, is at his home here on a 10 days' leave of absence from the Rahway, N. J., reconstruction hospital, after a most thrilling experience in France. He is but 19 years old, but has seen a lot of hard fighting. Private Corbett was originally a member of Co. C of the old Fifth Regiment of National Guard, enlisting in the same at the age of 17 by consent of his mother. He was on the Mexican border in 1916, but that he looks at as a picnic now. His company was merged early after our country entered the war in Co. C of the 101st Infantry. They went over in September of last year, and were given over to the care of a French regiment for training. The training for modern trench warfare was very different from the old style methods taught previously in this country. But the rifle practice they had in the militia was valuable.

In January the regiment was put into the front line near Soissons, accompanied by their French instructors. They went over the top five times, but could not make gains, as they had against them shock troops of the Crown Prince whose lines were strongly defended. In February he was the victim of a gas attack and spent some weeks in the hospital. After he came out he was assigned to Military Police work, but begged for the chance to get back to the trenches. He was given the first chance to go out, which proved to be with Co. A of the 103d engineers, a Pennsylvania regiment. He was with this organiza-

PREVENT INFLUENZA DEATHS

Saxony Mills Save Employees by Careful Attention

The Saxony Worsteds Mills of Chapel street, Newton, have shown how the dreaded influenza can be successfully combated. Andrew Adie, president of the United States Worsteds Company and owner of the mills, at the beginning of the epidemic employed the best physicians and nurses, the latter under the direction of Miss McLaughlin, a competent trained nurse. Whenever there was any evidence of sickness breaking out in the mills or doctor was immediately sent to the home. As a result of this care, there has not been a death attributable to the disease among the 2000 employees of this mill and their families.

LIEUT. ANGLIER KILLED

Lt. Albert E. Angier, 308th Infantry, U. S. A., the son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Angier of Waban, Mass., was officially reported killed in action in France, September 15th, 1918, according to a telegram received last Friday by his father from the War Department in Washington.

Lt. Angier was 21 years old and a graduate of the Newton High School and a member of the Class of 1920 at Harvard University. He enlisted as a private in the U. S. Army, January 5th, 1918, and was assigned to Camp Upton for training, and sailed for France in April as a private, with the 305th Infantry. He was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant in July 1918 and was assigned to the 308th Infantry.

SHUBERT-MAJESTIC THEATRE

The phenomenal run of that "perfect musical play," "Maytime," which was interrupted by the theatre closing ban, at the Shubert Theatre three weeks ago, will resume its Boston engagement by moving to the Shubert-Majestic Theatre next Monday evening, October 21, with the same cast and production.

The original New York cast, headed by Charles Purcell, Peggy Wood and William Norris, includes many other well-known people. "Maytime" might aptly be called a musical romance. The story is told in four episodes, the first occurring in 1840, at which time the two principal characters are in their youth.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Stuart Walker's production of Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" comes direct from an eight months' run at the Booth Theatre, New York, to the Shubert Plymouth Theatre beginning October 21. The play is a dramatic version of Tarkington's Willie Baxter stories and might well be called a comedy of Clothes and the Girl, for it deals with the attitude of a seventeen-year old boy towards these important matters. With rare skill Mr. Walker has transferred the Tarkington story to the stage, giving it all the bubbling spirit of "Youth and love and summer-time" by a delightful cast of young people.

TREMONT THEATRE—An attraction which theatregoers will welcome with extreme delight is Klaw & Erlanger's new musical comedy, "She Took a Chance," which comes to the Tremont Theatre, Boston, for a brief fortnight's stay next Monday evening, October 21. The coming play will be readily identified by its plot as the musical version of Fred Jackson's rollicking farce that convulsed New York all last season under the title of "A Full House." Convinced that the plot of the farce was admirably adapted for a musical endeavor and chorus, Klaw & Erlanger commissioned Edgar MacGregor, who staged the farce, to direct the conversion into the present musical comedy form, and arranged with Uda Waldrop to adapt plenty of musical settings to Henry Blossom's book, and Julian Mitchell to contribute the terpsichorean necessities.

DEATH OF AVIATOR RHENO

Familiar Figure in Newton the Past Summer

Lt. Walter D. Rheno of Marthas Vineyard, an aviator in the French Flying Corps, died October 13, 1918, from pneumonia, at the American Hospital in Neuilly, France. He was a familiar figure around the Newtons this summer while living with his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Young of Newtonville, and was frequently seen in his blue French Flying uniform driving Mrs. Young's automobile. He returned to France the latter part of September to carry on the excellent active service record started before he received his furlough. The first notification of his death received by his family, was when his mother, who had been staying with Mrs. Young since his return to France saw the account of his death in the Boston Herald Monday morning, October 14.

Lt. Rheno went to France in the latter part of 1916 to join the aviation corps of the French army. He proved an apt pupil and was soon detailed as a combat flyer on the Verdun front.

His first air battle was a brilliant success, he bringing down a two-man German albatross with four machine guns single-handed in his Spad fighting chase with one machine gun. This gave him the record, which has been broken but not equaled, of bringing down an enemy plane in the shortest length of time after being commissioned as a combat flyer. Major Gros of the Lafayette escadrille wrote him as follows:

My dear Mr. Rheno:

Bravo! I think you hold the record for shortness of time you were at the front before bringing down your Boche. The Associated Press has heard of your exploit and I have no doubt that you will be a hero in every aviation camp of America very shortly—all prospective aviators in the United States will envy you.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) Edmond Gros.

For this he was cited and decorated with the French war cross, the citation being as follows:

14th Fighting Group, Escadrille N-80, Postal District No. 8, Aug. 31, 1917, No. 4141.

Captaine Glaize, Commander of Escadrille N-80 certifies that Corporal Walter Davis Rheno, brought down a German biplane "Albatross" after twice attacking it, on the 18th of August 1917, at 7.40 P. M. Corporal Rheno was piloting the "Spad" No. 1298 Type S. VII, 140 H. P. Motor. The Captain Commanding the Escadrille.

During the next month he defeated two more German Planes in war combat which were observed by the French observation posts and for which he was cited and received his two palms, the third palm awaited his return to France. He also brought down seven other planes which fell far within German territory for confirmation by the French observation posts, but which were confirmed by his comrades flying with him and for which he was mentioned in the Military orders of the day.

Lt. Rheno was one of the very few aviators to be presented with a "World's License" from the Aero Club of France.

His career as an army aviator was most brilliant and his friends looked for a continuance of the good work upon his return to the front.

He was born in Vineyard Haven on February 26th, 1895, and is survived by his mother, Mrs. Clara M. Young Rheno and a brother, Winthrop C. Rheno, who is now with the United States army at Camp Devens.

DEATH OF LIEUTENANT HAYDEN

Lieut. Edward B. Hayden of Walker street, Newtonville, is reported as having died in a military hospital in France from septic pneumonia, resulting from shrapnel wounds in his chest. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace L. Hayden, formerly of Watertown, was born in Plymouth 29 years ago, educated in England, and at the outbreak of the war served with the American Ambulance corps. When the United States entered the war he was commissioned a lieutenant in the ambulance service. While in the ambulance service he received a medal for bravery under fire, and while fighting as an American army officer was again cited for bravery by the French. Besides his parents, he leaves two brothers and three sisters.

SHUBERT-WILBUR THEATRE

"Oh, Lady! Lady!" the fifth New York Princess Theatre musical comedy masterpiece which enjoyed one of the most successful runs of the present Boston season, will start its last two weeks at the Wilbur Theatre next Monday evening, October 21, with the identical New York cast and production. F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott are the producers of "Oh, Lady! Lady!" and Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse are responsible for the book, while Jerome Kern furnished the sixteen or more popular song hits. This same firm of producers, librettists and composer were sponsors for "Nobody Home," "Very Good Eddie" and "Oh, Boy," but this latest offering is so far ahead of its predecessors that it has turned out the greatest musical comedy success in twenty-five years.

Imagine Yourself at 10,000 Feet!

TWO MILES above the earth! Just to be there would be an experience quite thrilling enough for most of us. But over Belgium, and over France, and over Italy—yes, and over Germany—our daring air-men fight there.

And such fighting! Loops, spins, dives—and mingled with the roar of propellers, the rattle of machine guns.

To help these fighting bird-men of ours in any material way when they soar aloft to meet the Hun in mortal combat is beyond our power.

But shame be upon us if we fail to come across with our dollars when the Government calls.

Airmen don't lend their lives, they give them. We are not asked to give our dollars but to lend them.

The Fourth Liberty Loan has been named "The Fighting Fourth." Earlier loans provided funds for preparation. Now the need is funds for fighting.

Your dollars we are calling,

PRESENTS FOR OUR SOLDIERS

The Government Rules for Sending Christmas Parcels to Europe as Given to the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross.

If you intend to send a Christmas present to a soldier in Europe cut this out and keep it.

What it said here applies to presents for soldiers in Europe and not to presents for sailors nor to presents for soldiers in camps in the United States. The rules given are the rules made by the government of the United States and they can not be changed by anybody for anybody.

First be sure you have the right to send a present to a soldier in Europe. You can not send one unless you are able to prove your right to do it by showing a Christmas label sent from Europe by a soldier. No matter how much you may wish to send a present you can not send one unless you have one of these Christmas labels.

The United States has given to every one of our soldiers in Europe a Christmas label. A soldier may send the label given to him to anyone to whom he pleases to send it. The one who receives it has the right to make use of it to send a Christmas present to the soldier who sent it. No present can be sent to a soldier in Europe by any one not having one of these labels. The only way to get one of these labels is to have it sent from Europe by a soldier. There is no one in this country who can give one of these labels. If a label is lost there is no way of replacing it and the one who lost it can not send a present no matter how much proof he may give that he did receive a label. No Christmas present can go to Europe without one of these labels and this rule can not be changed for anybody.

If you have received a Christmas label from a soldier in Europe, and so have the right to send a Christmas present to Europe, what you send must not weigh, when wrapped and ready for mailing, more than three pounds and must go in a box measuring 3 by 4 by 9 inches without bulging out at the ends or the sides. These boxes, cartons the government calls them, will be given out by the government through the Red Cross, one carton to every one who shows a Christmas label sent by a soldier in Europe.

The Newton Chapter of the Red Cross has sent in its requisition for cartons for distribution. In Newton after November 1 and will announce later the points of distribution. Under the order of the government the Newton Chapter must not give a carton to anyone who can not show a Christmas label. The Red Cross can not break this rule for anyone because it is the rule laid down by the government and it must be obeyed. After the cartons given by the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross to Newton people, who prove their right to them by showing Christmas labels, are filled with presents they must be inspected and certified by the Newton Chapter as containing nothing in writing nor anything else forbidden by the United States post office rules. After being inspected and certified the cartons must be wrapped and tied in the presence of a Red Cross inspector, the Christmas label must be pasted upon it and the parcel properly stamped with enough stamps to carry it through the mail and it must be ready for mailing by November 15.

In all that it has to do in this government plan for sending Christmas presents to soldiers in Europe the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross will act as the agent of the government and will obey the rules laid down by the government. The Red Cross can not give cartons except to those who show Christmas labels and it has no Christmas labels to give nor any power nor authority to secure any labels. The Newton Chapter will do all it can to see that Newton boys in Europe receive presents but it can do no more than the government orders and authorizes it to do.

The following distributing and collection points have been designated. These places will be open daily on and after November 1 to November 20, Sundays excepted, from 4 P. M. to 8 P. M.

Nonantum—John W. Murphy, 303 Watertown Street.

CITY HALL NOTES

Information will soon be given to every voter in the city regarding the pending constitutional amendments, by a pamphlet to be issued by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and distributed to each house by the patrolmen of Newton. This pamphlet contains the text of the 19 amendments to be voted upon at the coming election. It is an address by the President of the convention, John L. Bates which gives considerable information about the propositions submitted by the convention.

Mrs. Marie N. Nally, secretary to the mayor, has resigned and is leaving Newton to live at Beacon Falls, Conn. She has held this office since she was first appointed by Mayor Hatfield eight years ago. Miss Sara Collins of Newtonville takes her place for the present.

CITED FOR HEROISM

Extraordinary Bravery Shown by Corporal Ernest Siebert

Corporal Ernest T. Siebert, 302 Langley road, Newton Centre, of 103d Ambulance Company 101st Sanitary Train, has been cited for extraordinary heroism in action near Trugny, France, July 23. Corporal Siebert voluntarily rescued a wounded soldier who was lying on a shell swept road, carrying his comrade 300 yards on his back. Although he was hit in the shoulder by a shell fragment, he stuck to his task until he brought the wounded man safely back. The citation says that his courageous act was an inspiration to his comrades.

Corporal Siebert is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Siebert, and he is 22 years old, having always lived at Newton Centre. He was working with his father as a painter when he enlisted in 1916 in Ambulance Co. No. 2 in the National Guard, and went to the Mexican border. When the company returned he was promoted at Framingham to be corporal. He went to France a year ago.

on requestHUNT-RICHARDS MARRIAGE

A wedding of unusual interest took place at the Baptist parsonage at Newton Centre, Saturday evening, when Miss Harriet Olney Hunt, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Emory W. Hunt, and Ensign Clarence Earl Richards, Jr., of Columbus, O., were married. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, who is pastor of the First Baptist Church, assisted by the groom's uncle, Rev. Gerald Richards of Cleveland, O. It had been expected to have the ceremony in the church, but the epidemic made this impossible.

The best man was the brother of the groom, Mr. Alfred Richards of Columbus, O., and the maid of honor was Miss Helen Hunt, sister of the bride, of Newton Centre. Bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor J. Carman of Chicago, Ill., Miss Louise Paine of Newton Centre, and Miss Carolyn J. Hunt, sister of the bride of Newton Centre. The ushers were Ralph Alexander of Columbus, O., lieutenant in the United States Navy, Allison Rodgers of the Harvard Radio School, Robert Gidley, and Ernest Giles of the class of '18, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The bride entered on her mother's arm, who gave her away.

The costumes of the bride and bridesmaids were marked by their simplicity. The bride wore white taffeta, with georgette crepe, and a long bridal veil of fine net. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore white net and satin and carried Killarney roses. The bridesmaids wore white and carried bouquets of ward, Jacquemont, and Katherine Marnet, respectively. The bride's mother wore white oriental silk and Russian lace.

A reception followed at the home, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Richards, parents of the groom, and Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Hunt, parents of the bride, assisting. The decorations consisted of palms and large baskets of cosmos. Mr. John Adams, organist at the Baptist Church, played Guilmant's wedding march. Ensign and Mrs. Richards will be at home after November 1 at Brooklyn, N. Y., where the groom is an inspector of aeroplane construction.

MADE 1648 MASKS

The Auburndale Surgical Dressings workroom has recently sent to Boston headquarter, and to the Newton health department a total of 1648 contagious ward masks, and 37 pneumonia binders.

Are not Auburndale women willing to work as hard for the boys in France as for civilians here? If so, they should respond with the same zeal to the call from overseas, which reaches us through the quota system, as to the local call. The assignment of our quota means that the Auburndale workroom is definitely responsible for the supply to our soldiers of certain articles which the military authorities have decided are necessary. In our workroom we have not yet finished our September quota (owing to emergency conditions), and our October quota is waiting. Unless unforeseen events prevent, we shall re-open our workroom Monday, October 21, for all day and evening sessions, twice a week—Monday and Thursday—and we need workers.

SHUBERT-BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

With a performance of "Richelleu" in a new and elaborate scenic production just completed, Robert B. Mantell will open a two-weeks' engagement at the Boston Opera House Monday evening, October 21. "Richelleu" will be presented three times during the first week and once during the second. The order of plays is: First week: Monday, Richelleu; Tuesday, Hamlet; Wednesday matinee, Merchant of Venice; Wednesday night, Richelleu; Thursday, Macbeth; Friday, Hamlet; Saturday matinee, Merchant of Venice; and Saturday night, Richelleu. Mr. Mantell is surrounded by a large company, carefully chosen from the best talent available on the English and American stage.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

GRACE M. BURT, Editor.

The War Victory Commission of the General Federation of Women's Clubs last year set on foot the raising of a sum of money for the establishment of furlough homes in France for the benefit of our soldiers. A quarter of a million was the first amount determined upon, but later at the Arkansas Biennial it was voted to increase the amount to two million dollars, apportioning the share to each state.

Since that time the government has ruled that all such enterprises shall be administered by the Y. M. C. A., but asks that the Federation send over at once 100 women to work in such homes. This ruling will meet with satisfaction on the part of all, since it insures no duplication of effort and a judicious expenditure of the money. A rough estimate of the cost of financing this unit of 100 is $200,000. Massachusetts has already contributed to this fund $22,500, and the clubs which have not contributed their quota of one dollar for each member are asked to complete the amount as soon as possible.

It is hoped to send two workers from each state, and Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, state president, 188 Warren St., Wollaston, is now receiving applications. All applicants must be endorsed by the Executive board of the State Federation in order to be passed on to the General Federation.

All October activities of the State Federation have been cancelled. The autumn meeting will occur early in November. Dr. George N. Nasmith has been secured as one of the speakers, with the subject, "Labor after the War." The announcement of date and place will be given in a later issue.

A conference of unusual interest will be held under the auspices of Women's Educational and Industrial Union in Boston, October 25 and 26, that of the National Committee of the Bureau of Occupations for Trained Women.

On Saturday, the 26th, at one o'clock, there will be a luncheon at the Copley Plaza followed by an informal meeting, when reports will be made by delegates from visiting Bureaus. Miss Elizabeth Kemper Adams, chief of the collegiate section, woman's division, U. S. Employment Service, will tell of the work in Washington and the aid the Bureaus are giving in its successful conduct.

Reservations for luncheon must be made before Tuesday, October 22, by communication with Mrs. Herbert Hosmer, 264 Boylston street, Boston. This luncheon meeting affords an unequalled opportunity for anyone interested in the part trained women must play in the present crisis and in the industrial world after the war, to learn conditions throughout the United States.

In the evening at 7.30 in Perkins Hall, 264 Boylston street, Reports on Summer War Courses at the following colleges: Training for Health Officers, Mount Holyoke, President Mary E. Woolley; Training School of Psychiatric Social Work, Smith Dean Adis L. Comstock; Training Camp for Unit Leaders of the Land Army of America, Wellesley, President Ellen F. Pendleton. Addresses by Boston women engaged in unusual or particularly interesting work.

The public is cordially invited to attend these sessions.

Local Announcements

On Monday the Brighthelmstone Club will hold a regular business meeting, to be followed by a Current Events Lecture by Mrs. Mabel A. Crawford.

On Tuesday at 2.30 in the Congregational church, the Newton Highlands Woman's Club will open its season with an important business meeting. as a part of their efforts to fight this war to a prompt and victorious conclusion.

WITH a song and a smile on his lips he has gone to France. You fondly hope that he will come back, his duty nobly done.

But possibly he will not come back. He himself knows all about that; he has faced it without hesitation. He had no fear, though well he knew the riddled turf of France may silence his song forever.

Did not this boy, when he offered his life, offer potential fortune as well? And his fortune is more than yours, whatever your wealth may be. It is all his Youth, his Dream, his Future. He is giving more than you can give: his fortune and his life. Your worldly possessions are pitiful to that.

No—you cannot match this boy who has gone, you can only back him. Your part, less lofty than his, wholly dependent upon his, is made noble by his sacrifice. That you may have this opportunity, he has gone to the front. By supporting the boy where he has gone, you attain to something like the grandeur of his service. The ideal that led him to the sacrifice is yours as well as his, and this sacred ideal, as well as the firm steps of the boy himself, is what you serve and sustain when you buy a Liberty Bond.

NORMAN HYSLOP'S SERVICE

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Christine Hyslop, mother of Norman W. Hyslop, who died at Camp Dix, N. J., October first. Mrs. Christine Hyslop, 643 Watertown Street, Newtonville, Mass.

Dear Madam, I wish to offer my condolences in this your bereavement and wish to state that we of this company share with you in the loss.

Norman W. Hyslop was a clerk in the Company office and as such he was under my closest observation. He had all the qualities that are found in a good soldier. He was at all times ready to do more than his share, and his loss is greatly felt in this Company, both by his comrades and his officers.

You should feel proud in the inheritance he has left you, in that he died a good, clean soldier and had the opportunity presented itself he would have given a good account of himself on the battlefield.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) J. Clarence Mitchell, Captain Inf. U. S. A., Cmdg. Co. 16, 153 D. B.

ANGIER, Lt. Albert E., U. S. A., son of George M. and Emma G. Angier of Waban, Mass., killed in action in France, September 15th, 1918.

WHAT IS THE LIBERTY LOAN?

It's forts and it's ships and it's shining guns. It's squadrons that sweep the sea. It's all of the circling band of steel That shall keep all the home shores free.

It's grub and it's warmth for the sailor lad Far out on the wintry foam.

For the brave jack tar, as he fights afar, It's the good old "Money from home."

WHAT IS THE LIBERTY LOAN? It's rifle and helmet and it's bayonet. It's shovel and shrapnel and shell. For the soldier boy in the olive drab, Out there on the edge of hell, It's the soaring wings of the whirling planes That battle on high alone.

For the lad who is daring "Over there" It's the good old "Money from home."

WHAT IS THE LIBERTY LOAN? It's succor and life for a bleeding world.

It's the glimmer of Peace at dawn. It's the strength of a mighty arm to strike.

It's the gleam of a great sword, drawn. But, more than all, it's the pledge of love.

To the lads whom we call "Our own." To the boys on land, afloat, on high, It's the good old "Money from home."

When a woman who married a man to reform him lives to be sixty years old without becoming a widow, she is about as pathetic a picture of animated weariness as one ever sees.

Would Puzzle Socrates.

Were Socrates to come among us now he would probably want to know why Mexican poodles have no hair, Manx cats no tails, and pacifists no peace.

Much Different.

After a woman has been married a month or two she discovers that seeing a man only Wednesday and Sunday evenings is a vastly different proposition from seeing him every day in the week.

It was singular that after going over the top so many times without a scratch, he should finally be wounded July 27, while in the reserve trenches, being hit by shrapnel. A good part of his right hand was blown away. He lost his thumb, forefinger, and part of the bone. There is a chance that the amputation of his hand may be necessary, but he hopes to save it. He returns to New York next week for another operation, and then will go to the reconstruction hospital for training in some line of work to be chosen later.

As if he had not had danger enough in France, the Mount Vernon, formerly the Krompessin, Cecile, on which he came back, was torpedoed by a submarine while 15 hours out of Brest, though convoyed by destroyers. The ship listed to one side, but the men all remained calm while the ship succeeded in making her way back to port. Mr. Corbett reports the Huns as dirty fighters as their reputation gives them credit for being. Two women were found chained to machine guns near their station at Chateau-Thierry. That town was full of death traps when they entered it, piles of dirt that when touched would reveal grenades set for an explosion and houses that would blow up if a door was opened. He found the Germans good fighters if they had a larger number of troops, but they would turn tail very quickly if outnumbered.

Mr. Corbett wears on his coat the colors of the Croix de Guerre, given to every member of his regiment for their brave service. He was formerly a student at the Newton Technical High School, where he remained one year.

ENTERTAINED SOLDIERS

Good Work of War Camp Community Service

Approximately five hundred soldiers and sailors from thirty-nine different stations have been entertained in Newton Highlands by the Home Hospitality Committee of the Metropolitan Boston War Camp Community Service of which Mrs. W. M. Leonard is chairman. During the summer some of the most successful parties held were those when twenty girls and twenty service guests had supper out doors in some attractive Newton garden with dancing on canvas in the evening. Automobile rides have also been an important feature of the whole-hearted way in which Newton has extended its hospitality. Hospitality has not been extended to enlisted men alone—it has included in some cases the relatives of the soldiers and sailors.

One of the most pathetic instances was the case where an invitation was sent a naval man inviting him to spend a week-end at the home of a Newton hostess. The letter was received by his sister. The bluejacket had died of influenza and was buried with military honors at his home. The family didn't know of his illness until too late to see him and were unable to find who attended him in his last illness, the name of the hospital or the name of the nurse, and were unable to learn if he had a chaplain. The mother was heartbroken, the family wasn't familiar with Boston suburbs and she asked this hostess if it was in her power to secure this information. It was promptly and cheerfully done.

The gratitude of these service guests thus entertained has been expressed to their hostesses in letters of appreciation from overseas and in copies of newspapers abroad ship.

"Of course it is useless for me to repeat my appreciation of your kindness," writes a blue jacket from a naval base overseas, "and the good times you are giving the boys. I cannot see how any of the boys who care for their mothers and home can spend a week-end such as I spent without feeling better morally and all around. You see we are with all kinds, and meet all kinds of people—some good, most bad, both men and women. You cannot know how we hunger for the company of good clean people."

The Boston War Camp Community Service acts for the War Department and the Navy Department on Training Camp Activities in providing wholesome recreation for soldiers and sailors while on liberty. In Boston during week days and 20,000 to 40,000 over week-ends. For these men War Camp Community Service exists and more homes should be opened to them.

THE DRAFT BOARD

The Local Selective Service Board moved last Saturday from its old and crowded quarters in the police court offices, to the two rooms on the first floor of the old church adjoining the City Hall. The new quarters, while lacking many of the facilities of modern business, are so much more convenient than the old that the Board is congratulating itself on the change.

The ban has been lifted on the matter of questionnaires, and the Legal Advisory Board, which is occupying one of the rooms of the Selective Service Board is hard at work every night, assisting the many registrants who have, as yet, failed to fill them out.

The master list of order numbers was received Monday, and there are several days, if not weeks ahead of hard and tedious work in placing an order number on each of the 5300 registration cards on file.

The following drafted men are summoned to go next week, on the dates and to the places as named below:—

LOVES NOT NEW ENGLANDERS

Our Boys Have Done Things to the Crown Prince, Says Leverett Gleason

The following letter has been received from France from Leverett Gleason, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. E. Gleason of Vernon street.

August 19, 1918.
My dearest Folks:—

Well, I am no longer at the front but rather, as the French say, "en repos." But I cannot say I care so much about this repos.

Since we have been here a small mail came in and I received from you three very interesting letters, and they were a source of great satisfaction to me. I am certainly very, very glad that I have pleased you. Of course I feel quite certain that you can forgive me for not having written lately, but I am sure you know full well how busy I have been of late, for you must have read of the accomplishments of this division, and although I have often attempted a letter my efforts have borne little fruit.

After having been relieved from one front and after having seen continuous service for six months on many and various fronts, we were trained without knowing our destination but feeling more or less certain that we would be allowed to take things easy for a time to come. It was very close to the Fourth of July and from the daily papers we had learned that American troops were to parade in Paris on that date. As the day wore on, each kilometre passed brought us just so much nearer Paris, as we learnt from the little mileage stones along the railroad tracks. We at last came into a station of one of Paris' most wonderful suburbs, Nanterre, and we stopped and then backed onto a siding, or at least what seemed like one, and we stopped again. The betting was a thousand to one that we were going to Paris.

Can you imagine what that meant to me? Paris, the immortal; Paris, the city of my dreams! Could it be true that at last I was to see the place which I had never dared hope to see? I could picture myself seeing all the places I had so often read describing those things to you at some later date. In my dreams, my immediate surroundings were completely forgotten. Paris! Paris! Paris!

Suddenly, with a harsh jerk, I felt myself losing my balance. What! Yes, the train was on its way again! I could not describe what went through my mind in those few moments. But one forgets in the army, and Paris was in the background of my mind when we once more entered the area of whizz-bangs and gas masks.

Well, a ream of paper could not contain a day's happenings in the ensuing two weeks. But I can tell you that when on one cold July morning, about an hour and a half before dawn, we started the thing, none of us hoped for such marvelous results as occurred. I will never, never forget those two weeks. They were wonderful, marvelous, happy, nauseating, lonesome, glorious, fearful, tremulous, over-awing in every way. It seemed as if most all the major sensations of life were blended into those days. All but love. And yet the whole thing was for love, because love is the essence of what a man thinks is right, and it is for what we believe is right that we are fighting.

The description of a few occurrences should suffice to give you an idea of that great offensive. It was a certain evening well along in the great offensive. It was early evening and we were moving up, forward again. After the strain we had been under for several days everyone was more or less shaky. With the firing battery only we would be wending our way along a road which only a few hours before the Huns themselves had travelled. And such a road! So full of shell-holes that constant detours were necessary, so crowded with traffic that Broadway would seem like a country lane in comparison, and scattered all over the place was every manner of war equipment. Rifles by the thousands, Boche tin hats and gas masks, clothing, machine guns, rifle cartridges by the million, and even cannon, on the hasty was the flight. And on every side a terrible stench arose, that of decaying bodies. Boche prisoners were being marched back, and a constant stream of ambulances was going and coming at a furious rate of speed.

One incident was really amusing to me in its horror. At a crossroad were lying several dead horses and men, well along in the state of deterioration. The odor was so bad that, without exaggeration, I was gagging from nausea. Right there, in this place of all places, was an automobile, a luxurious limousine, and it was broken down. The chauffeur was striving in vain to encourage the car to go again. What a plight! And who, of all people, do you suppose was sitting in the car, whose vase of flowers in no way scented the air?

GENERAL —! The villages which we passed through had been so demolished by our fire that the streets were impassable from fallen masonry. Ruin, destruction, death on every side.

The Boche had felt just once again that America's prowess was in the balance, and I feel quite certain that the Crown Prince has no love for New Englanders. As I said before, I could not begin to describe all I have seen. As you know, we are not allowed to speak of casualties, but there are many sad phases of war, and it seems so terrible that it should ever have to be.

With all the love in the world to all of you.

GOOD WORK BY CONSTABULARY

Resume of the Police Duty Performed this Summer by the Various Units

The following letters and statement of the work done by the Newton Constabulary the past summer are self explanatory.

General James G. White, Commander Newton Constabulary Regiment.

Dear Sir:—Earlier in the year when the police department was confronted with the possibility of a shortage of men if its regular summer vacation program was to be carried out, I wrote to the members of the Newton Constabulary, asking the services of the members of the Newton Constabulary. The response was not only prompt, but encouraging. Your assurance that the men of your command were available was all that was necessary for me to proceed.

I had previously formed an excellent opinion of the Constabulary, and now feel that it was more than justified. In fact, I should like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to you and the men for the earnest and faithful manner in which they performed their duties. I know that they cheerfully abandoned vacation plans, sacrificed personal interests, and accepted it as a patriotic duty in adding the regular men in patrolling the city. For my own part, I think Newton should be proud of such a body of public-spirited citizens.

It is a pleasure for me to say that the men of the Newton Constabulary grasped the details of their new work with unexpected rapidity. They showed the excellent results of military training, and displayed the same energy and ability that has made them prominent in their walks of life. I can only add that the police work of the Newton Constabulary was a complete success, that the city has saved a large amount of money, that the men may rightfully assume the satisfaction of having performed a large share of genuine war service. Yours respectfully, (Signed) FREDERIC M. MITCHELL, Chief of Police.

Police Duty by Newton Constabulary

On June 10 a letter was received by General James G. White, Chief of the Newton Constabulary, from Mr. Frederic M. Mitchell, Chief of the Newton Police, stating that owing to a shortage of officers as a result of the war, assistance was necessary to properly police the city during the summer, and the Newton Constabulary was called upon to aid the regular force. The tour of police duty performed by the Constabulary, commencing at midnight July 4 and ending September 25, was carried through with great efficiency. The spirit of self-sacrifice and unselfishness shown by such a large percentage of the members (98.9 per cent) gives absolute assurance to the citizens of Newton and to the city government that this organization is an effective adjunct to the police department and to the State Guard in any police or military emergency which may arise. In nearly every case the cause for not performing this duty was illness, necessary absence from the city, or engagement in war work.

NON-ESSENTIAL WORK

Aldermen Favor Cherry Street But Refuse Chapel Street

Aldermen Angier, Holt and Price were the only members absent from the aldermanic meeting on Monday night, which was distinguished by the hair-splitting difference between authorizing a concrete sidewalk on Cherry street and refusing a sidewalk and curb on Chapel street. The principal excuse offered for drawing the distinction was because the Cherry street matter was "such a little one."

As a matter of principle, the Finance committee reported adversely against both matters, but backed down on Cherry street. This was carried unanimously while the work on Chapel street, notwithstanding the eloquence of Alderman Fornkall, who told of the comprehensive plans of the Saxony Worsted Company to build 89 houses for their employees, with a community house, a boy's clubhouse and a playground. The company had over 1000 employees, he said, and in winter time with the snow piled in from the car tracks the sidewalk was in a terrible condition. Alderman Blake supported the Nonantum alderman. The opposition was led by Alderman Allen, who said that the difference between Cherry street and Chapel street was that the former was paid out of the existing appropriations, while Chapel street called for new money. Alderman Harriman put in the finishing stroke when he said that the War Labor Board in Boston knew of a shortage of 10,000 laborers and this work will take away 150 days' labor which had better be used on real war work. He admitted the desirability of the sidewalk on Chapel street but said that this was one of the things we can get along without, and he believed that the mill authorities would agree to that proposition. The order was then defeated with 6 voting in favor and 13 opposed.

Another interesting discussion centered around a resolution introduced by Alderman Blake some weeks ago in regard to having Newton boys in the draft age given their intensive mechanical training at the Newton Vocational school. Alderman Blake had the board substitute the following resolution for the one previously presented:—

Whereas, The United States government, through the Committee on Education and Special Training of the War Department, is organizing detachments at various institutions for training young men over 18 years of age to the end that the facilities of such institutions may be utilized and the need of men specially trained in mechanical and technical lines in the military service be met; and

Whereas, The City of Newton in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has in its vocational school unusual equipment and facilities for such special training which has been used by the government for the training of two detachments of approximately 300 men each, and is under contract for the continuation of such use until June 30, 1919; and

Whereas, The City of Newton has not less than one hundred young men over eighteen years of age liable to military service; and

Whereas, The City of Newton has the equipment, instructors and other organization necessary to train those boys along the lines desired by the war department, which instruction

Interesting Exhibits and Many Prizes Awarded

EVERETT 12, NEWTON 0

Newton High School suffered defeat in its game of football with Everett High Saturday at Clafin Field, 12 to 0. It was a game of hard football, but the Newton team has suffered from the interruptions of its season, and has not yet struck its gait. The Everett team used for a part of the game Arthur Brickley, the youngest of a famous griddon family. Newton gained as the game went on, and there was no scoring in the second half.

OVER 40 PER CENT. OVERSUBSCRIBED

Newton Does Itself Proud in the Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign

It had been expected a week ago today that Newton would go over the top on the Liberty Loan, but not many expected quite the big subscription that was secured. Latest figures show a total to date of $8,220,950, divided between the various banks as follows: First National, W. Newton, 351,000; Newton Savings Bank, 320,600; W. Newton Savings Bank, 320,400; Newton Centre Savings Bank, 39,600; Credits, 4,588,550.

Total.....$8,220,950
Number of subscribers was 13,088, divided as follows: Newton Trust company, 6921; First National, West Newton, 774; Newton Savings, 1447; West Newton Savings bank, 1711; Newton Centre Savings bank, 299; credits, 1936.

The campaign was carried through with great enthusiasm and thoroughness, though campaigning through public meetings had to be given up owing to the influenza. The committee were forced to depend upon the house-to-house canvass, assisted by newspaper publicity.

The women's committee were exceedingly active and worked persistently at their various booths to interest the people. The Boy Scouts gleaned the field after everyone else had gone over it, and picked up many subscriptions.

Newton's quota was $5,778,000, so the loan will be considerably more than 40 per cent. over-subscribed.

The Newton Woman's Liberty Loan committee stands a good chance to receive the prize offered to the woman's committee that should secure the largest amount of subscriptions in proportion to population of its home city.

The places standing first on the list are Newton, Belmont, and Chelsea. The prize is a bas-relief, presented by Mrs. Sydney Harwood of Waverley avenue, Newton.

Newton Corner secured a total of about $1,500,000, of which about a million came from ward seven, and the balance from ward 1, lying in Newton proper. Auburndale, with the Boy Scouts still to hear from and some solicitors' cards not yet in, had 868 purchasers and reported $250,000.

West Newton conducted an exceedingly thorough house-to-house canvass, and the result shows 2484 subscribers, with a total of $1,679,450.

Newton Lower Falls totalled $130,500, with a little more to come.

Incomplete returns from Chestnut Hill give $700,000, with heavy Boston credits to be added.

Newtonville conducted a very active campaign and its figures show $1,497,300, with credits still to come.

Figures from Newton Centre are not available, as no separate account was kept, but the village has no doubt done its full share. All these village figures given above are only approximate, and credits are still coming in.

The results of the Waban campaign are particularly remarkable with $570,000 secured. The men's committee got $310,000, women's $220,000, Boy Scouts, $40,000. The village list had only 325 families, and the average per person was $1750.

The Newton Liberty Loan committee feel a great deal of gratitude to all who helped to secure the big result above reported. It will be some days yet before final figures can be given.

The Unconditional Surrender Rally at Newton Centre, Saturday night, was an enthusiastic meeting that largely filled the hall and yielded the big sum of $309,500 in subscriptions. Frank E. Stewart was the presiding officer, and an orchestra furnished music.

Senator John W. Weeks spoke of the absolute necessity that the amount asked by the government and more, too, should be raised. He felt that the country was determined on the Unconditional Surrender policy and would insist on a complete victory, and that meant that we must stand behind the government with our money.

He did not have the power to say what should be done, but if he had he would first defeat the German army, and then put it to work restoring ravaged Belgium, a statement that was greeted with much applause.

Mrs. Forbes-Robertson Hale spoke on the terrible sacrifices that England, France, Belgium and Italy had had to make, so that the sufferings of this country had been almost nothing in comparison. We had scarcely been touched by the war as yet. However, the people of those nations are determined to put it through.

Albert Tryck, a citizen of Belgium, gave a vivid picture of the devastation wrought by the German occupation in his country.

Sergeant Polly of the 101st Engineers, whose voice was pretty well exhausted by constant speaking in this campaign, gave a brief account of his experiences in the trenches.

The canvass through the hall was conducted by women representing the various villages, with the remarkably good results reported above.

DEATH OF RALPH WEST

Word has been received of the death of Private Ralph O'Neal West, Sixth Regiment, United States Marine Corps, attached to the 80th division, and was killed in the fighting in the St. Mihiel sector September 15. He enlisted December 15, 1917, trained in the South and fought at Chateau-Thierry and Belleau wood. He was 23 years old, was graduated from Newton High School in 1914 and was in his sophomore year at Columbia University when he enlisted. He was the son of Mrs. Robert R. West, matron of the Home for Missionaries' Children, at Newton Centre. He also leaves two brothers, one of whom is Capt. Robert West, now in France, and a sister.

The Bible School Plattsburg, which was postponed on account of the general closing of places of assembly, will be held during the week of November 4-9.

The same arrangement of program for the six evenings will be carried out. Fortunately only a slight rearrangement of details is necessary. The same tickets will be used. The meetings will be in the same Church, the Central Congregational of Newtonville.

The unusual conditions render these meetings of even greater importance than when first planned, and the enrollment already reported of a very large percentage of the teachers and officers of some schools gives promise of a large attendance.

HOME SERVICE WORK

The work of the Home Service Division of the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross is growing and more soldiers and more members of soldiers' families are learning by actual experience the value of this department of Red Cross work. The Home Service is at the disposal of any man in the service of the United States and any member of their families. The Home Service is that part of the Red Cross which stands ready always with service or advice and has back of it the World wide organization of the American Red Cross to help it in its work.

A few instances from the records of the Home Service Division of the Newton Red Cross give an idea of what kind of work is being done. Where any names are given in these instances they are fictitious as Home Service work is done without publicity.

A telegram was received from New York as follows: "Can you locate Sergeant Electrician Henry Jones, Newtonville Training Camp; is ill with pneumonia. Mother wants to go to him." Reply by telegram was made in an hour to the effect that Sergeant Jones left Newtonville for Camp Lee the previous week; and that he was not ill when he left.

A boy in a letter from one of the training camps wrote: "Can you help my parents? I have always helped toward their support and paid their insurance. They are old and cannot get and I am worried about them." A call was made the same day and financial help given. The parents are receiving the boy's allotment and allowance now and a visitor from the Red Cross is calling very often to encourage and cheer them.

A lady in West Newton telephoned to tell of a little Italian woman with a two-year old baby. The woman was without funds, and was very lonely and discouraged. She had recently moved here from Rhode Island and knew but one person in Newton and she could not help financially. The husband was in Rhode Island and could not get a furlough. She had spent all her money for furniture and a month's rent in advance. The Home Service is keeping in close touch with her and helping her live and get on.

Her husband, who is a cook, is gratefully saving all the tins from cream cheese and other articles and sending it to the Red Cross because he says it has been such a good friend to him.

Mrs. L. has two boys in the service and a boy at home who is still going to school. Her husband is not well and does not earn a very large salary. She was dependent on what the boys earned and was not getting their allotment and allowance when she first came to the Red Cross. The Home Service helped her obtain State Aid and while this was pending helped her from the Red Cross funds.

When the checks finally came from Washington they were wrong and the Red Cross had to take this matter up again with the Treasury Department.

Mrs. L. herself is very sickly and the Red Cross had to arrange for hospital care for her. After she returned from the hospital, she had to report once a week to the doctor and a Red Cross visitor took her back and forth to the hospital. Besides this, she was taken to Boston to be fitted for necessary surgical appliances. The Home Service has written letters for her to her sons and one of the sons is in regular correspondence with the Red Cross visitor.

Sadie came to the Home Service office to ask how she could communicate with her brother who is a prisoner in Germany. The Red Cross wrote to the Bureau of Communication for her and it is making every effort to find the boy.

A little French woman's first baby was born three months after her husband left for camp. The Home Service arranged for hospital care and helped her obtain baby clothes. She did not receive her husband's allotment and allowance and the Red Cross found, on making inquiries that a woman in Chelsea has the same name as she and has a son in the army with the same name as her husband and that the checks belonging to the little French mother were going to the woman in Chelsea. The Red Cross has called this to the attention of the Treasury Department.

The Home Service Section of the Newton Chapter has its office at 829 Washington street, Newtonville, and its telephone number is Newton North 438.

RED CROSS

The Newton Red Cross workrooms at the Y. M. C. A. are now open every morning and afternoon except Saturday. As a large quota of work must be done very soon it is hoped that every woman in wards one and seven will make it a point to sew half a day a week on hospital supplies. It is only necessary to look in the daily papers at the long list of New England casualties to realize the urgent need of garments for the wounded.

It is surely possible for every woman in ordinary health to give half a day a week to Red Cross sewing without neglecting home duties.

Think of it! Half a day for the hospital, six and a half for the household. With this large allowance can the ability be questioned to "keep the home fires burning" without neglecting our boys "over there."

POTNAM MEMORIAL

A memorial service for the late Lieut. David Endicott Potnam, the famous American "Ace," will be held in the Congregational Church at Newton Highlands next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. Addresses will be made by the pastor of the Church, Dr. Smart, and by Senator Weeks, Lieut.-Gov. Coolidge, and Mayor Childs.

SOLDIERS ENTERTAINED

Home Hospitality Work at Newtonville

Home Hospitality work in Newtonville for soldiers, sailors and marines is part of the work accomplished during the past few months by the Metropolitan Boston War Camp Community Service. It began a year ago with week-end parties. Groups of eight or nine men were taken on automobile rides and invited to remain over night in different homes.

Lately an energetic member of the Home Hospitality for Newtonville, of which Mrs. George Auryansen is chairman, arranged a monthly dance for larger groups. Girls, properly chaperoned, helped entertain at these parties and the enlisted men have been invited for the night and Sunday to the homes. Many Newtonville homes have been opened again and again; automobiles have been generously placed at the disposal of the committee; and the Newton Club hall has also been donated.

Between monthly dances a limited number of army and navy men have been invited to Sunday dinner, which often includes the afternoon visit and supper. These men come from all stations in life. They are appreciative, adaptable, and many real friendships have resulted.

"It is like having a home of our own to go to," quoth a merry lad as he followed his hostess from dining-room to kitchen on his fourth visit.

The Newtonville Home Hospitality Committee of Metropolitan Boston War Camp Community Service feels that the work is worth all the effort which has been expended when the khaki and blue service guests say, "It makes us think of home." We know Newtonville is doing her best to keep American morale at sane and wholesome standards.

The Boston War Camp Community Service of which this committee is a part acts for the War Department and the Navy Department on Training Camp Activities in providing wholesome recreation for soldiers and sailors while on liberty. In Boston over ten Service Clubs have been organized and conducted by various organizations in the city co-operating with the Metropolitan Boston War Camp Community Service. Over 400 beds are provided for in dormitories. It is estimated there is an average of 5000 soldiers and sailors in Boston during weekdays, and 20,000 to 40,000 over week-ends. For these men War Camp Community Service exists, and more homes should be opened to them.

A STRAIGHT NO VOTE

Boston, October 23, 1918

To the Editor of the Newton Graphic: Prominent citizens of Newton, including Henry E. Bothfield, George H. Ellis, William M. Knowlton, Arthur W. Blackmore, Horace M. Bunker, Henry G. Hildreth, John F. Lothrop, and George S. Butters, have signed an address to be issued to the voters recommending them to vote a straight "No" on every one of the pending 19 amendments to the constitution. Probably many more names could have been obtained for the movement commends itself to the judgment of many and it has been very easy to get first class support in many places.

The straight "No" vote is recommended because the constitution is too important for ill-considered action. The extent of lack of information about the amendments is surprising, as it has been verified by wide personal inquiry. Let every voter inquire and see how many friends can give intelligently the reasons for and against the 19 amendments. Yet not one proposition should be adopted without careful consideration with the burden of proof on the proponent.

Our voters have been absorbed in the war, in the Liberty Loan and in the perils of the epidemic. Almost nobody has thought about any of the amendments. Newspapers, as a rule, have given little or nothing to them. General ignorance and apathy prevail. Under the circumstances the people in 1853 set a good precedent when they rejected everything in block and afterward took up and adopted what they wanted after discussion. There is much peril in some amendments pending. The good ones can wait. There are 100,000 soldiers-voters, by as competent an official estimate as there will be of much value to them and they cannot vote this year. Hence the only safe course, in the almost complete absence of information and discussion is to vote "No" on everything now and deal with the issues when we can give thought to them.

R. L. Bridgman.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL NOTES

The Junior and the Senior boys of the machine course are doing part time work in various plants in the vicinity.

An interesting history of Newton, "Glimpses of Newton's Past," in the form of descriptions and dramatizations, has been written by Miss Agnes Beryl Curtis of the English department. The book will be used in the grades as there will be of much value to the pupils in the Newton schools.

There was a large attendance of Newton teachers at the first lecture by Earl Barnes. The subject was "Great Britain and Her Possessions," and was presented by the distinguished lecturer in a manner that held the close attention of his large audience.

DEATH OF ADA WISWELL HALL

Mrs. Ada Wiswell Hall, wife of Commander W. Alden Hall, of the United States navy, died suddenly Wednesday night at her home in Washington, of pneumonia following influenza. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Wiswell, formerly of Newton and now of Newton Highlands, and was widely known about here as a gifted singer. She sang in the choir at Immanuel Baptist church, at several churches in Cambridge, and at North Easton. She was often heard at concerts. Her marriage took place about 10 years ago, and she and her husband had traveled widely, having been in China and Japan, and for some time in Guam. She leaves her father and mother, two sisters, a brother, who is Capt. Herbert Wiswell of the United States army, and a son and two daughters.

NEWTONVILLE CELEBRATES

Newtonville put through the Liberty Loan campaign with the same vim and success that they have had in all the campaigns. When it was seen Friday evening that the minimum quota for Newtonville of $750,000 to $800,000 would be secure, a celebration was arranged for Saturday evening. At this time the shell on the sign at Newtonville square, indicating the progress of the campaign, was officially raised to a million mark, the limit of the record.

After a parade of Company A of the Newtonville Constabulary and Boy Scouts, headed by a band, Mayor Edwin O. Childs was introduced by Chairman Fred M. Blanchard of the Newtonville Liberty Loan Committee. Mayor Childs spoke of the spirit of success of the campaign and officially announced that the amounts tabulated to date were $1,406,050, with a number of returns to be still heard from.

George Keith sang two solos and a crowd of 2500 joined in the chorus, led by Fred E. Mann, Publicity Director of the campaign.

The campaign was directed by James A. Stafford, who has directed practically every campaign in Newtonville this year. The city was divided into districts, with nine teams and 125 men assisting in a house-to-house canvass.

The Women's Committee, headed by Mrs. W. H. Allen, was in charge of the various booths and did wonderful work.

The last week of the campaign the Boy Scouts helped in the gleaming, as did also the carrier. The spirit of the community, notwithstanding the delay in starting, owing to the epidemic, was splendid.

Mr. Blanchard and Mr. Stafford extend their thanks and appreciation to their co-workers for the success which they made possible.

POLICE NOTES

Two Roxbury boys were in court Tuesday charged with attempt to steal an automobile belonging to E. F. Truman of Commonwealth avenue. Mr. Truman heard noises in his garage, and found two boys attempting to drive out one of his cars. One of the boys was placed on probation, and the other returned to the jurisdiction of the parole board.

EDITORIAL

Alderman Blake has the right idea in his attempt to have the War Department assign to the Newton Vocational High School the Newton boys, who are to take an intensive mechanical training for army work. His resolution, however, lacks definiteness along these lines and gives the impression that the Newton aldermen wish the government to make the Newton Vocational High School, equal to the student army training corps now at Harvard, Technology, and other higher colleges. A strict interpretation, for instance of the last clause of the resolution, would give the impression that the Newton boys over 18 years of age, were to be assigned to the Newton Vocational School for training, and this would clearly include graduates of the Newton High School, who are now in active training in the regular student army training corps.

The expected has happened and Newton once more has exceeded its quota on the Liberty Loan subscriptions. While final figures are not yet available, there is no question but that we have gone "over the top" by over 40 per cent. A record of which we may all be proud. Great credit should be given the ladies in obtaining this splendid result, for their work was most thorough and showed careful organization. Hurrah for Newton and its ladies!

Just why a concrete sidewalk on Cherry street should be favored by our city government, and one on Chapel street turned down, is a question on which there can be considerable debate. But whatever is said, the fact remains that the principle remains the same in both cases whether or not the amount is small or large, or whether the funds for the work have been or are to be appropriated.

We give valuable space this week to the record of the Newton Constabulary during the past summer in performing police duty in the city, for the citizen ought to realize, not only the work of this body, but should begin to realize its possibilities for the future.

Hon. Robert Luce, a member of the Constitutional Convention characterizes the L. and R. amendment as "clumsy, awkward device to obtain a desirable result." Vote NO on this matter.

Have you read all the Constitutional amendments?

TO RETAIL DEALERS IN MASSACHUSETTS

It is being brought to our attention daily that a very large number of retail dealers are violating the rules of the Food Administration, especially as regards prices. Apparently, very little attention is paid by the majority of the retail trade to the articles appearing in the weekly Bulletin. For example: the ruling which states that the selling price of butter shall not exceed cost by more than five cents for cash and carry, and six cents for credit and delivery stores, is being violated to a very marked extent.

Starting immediately, every retail dealer, whether licensed or not, will be expected to read the Bulletin carefully for all rules, and to follow the list of "Fair Prices" applying to his county as published therein. If his purchase price is such that he can sell for less, he is not privileged to charge the highest price quoted. All cases of violation as reported to us by our large number of inspectors throughout the entire state will be dealt with promptly and severely, and where rulings are not adhered to, the usual penalties will be applied.

ENGAGEMENT TEA

Miss Dorothy Louise Emery gave a tea to a number of her friends on Friday afternoon from four to six, at her home on Franklin street, Newton. The occasion was the announcing of her engagement to Percy Hodges, Jr., U. S. N. R. F.

The dining room was attractively decorated with Ophelia roses and the young ladies who helped to serve were Mrs. William Smith of Cambridge, a cousin of Miss Emery, Miss Florence Mandell, Miss Margaret Pierce, Miss Dorothy McNamara, Miss Frances Warren of Newton, Mrs. Dorothy Stetson of Waban.

TWO WOUNDED MEN

Francis MacDonald of Reservoir street, Upper Falls, is reported from France to have been severely wounded. He is the son of the late Martin and Mary MacDonald, is attached to the headquarters company of the 23d infantry, is 29 years old, enlisted July 14, 1917, and trained at Syracuse, New York.

Another Upper Falls man reported wounded, degree not stated, is Capt. James F. Hurly of Cliff road. He is 25 years old, has been in the service 12 months, and lived with his aunt, Mrs. Dan Lynch.

CARD

We wish to thank our many friends for their kindness and sympathy during our recent bereavement.

COAL NOTICE

To the Newton Graphic:

We believe the best interests of all concerned will be served by taking the coal consumers of Newton into our confidence, and telling them frankly the present situation regarding Anthracite Coal for their use in Newton.

There are over one thousand families in Newton who have not as yet received any coal to begin the winter with. It therefore goes without saying that no family will be delivered any part of the other one-third of their order until after these thousand families have received coal enough to start their fires. It is therefore a waste of time to bother your coal dealer by asking him to deliver more than the two-thirds of your year's requirements you have already received,—if you have been lucky enough to receive it. The dealer has no option whatever in the matter and can not make further delivery to you.

If any family in Newton has not yet received any coal from their usual dealer, has none now on hand, and needs some for present use, immediate delivery can be made by application to the Newton Fuel Committee, stating all circumstances connected with the case as to why they have not received any coal; a letter in full explanation to the Chairman will answer the purpose better than a personal call.

Many families in Newton have not yet paid for their last winter's coal and can not expect to have any delivery from any dealer until their last season's coal has been paid for. It is therefore absolutely necessary that each family who needs coal should not only have paid all old coal bills but present the money to their dealer in payment for what coal they now need for immediate delivery. A cash payment will insure immediate delivery of coal,—if it is not from some other dealer through the approval of the Fuel Committee. We earnestly ask each family to cooperate with our committee in hastening the distribution of coal in Newton.

Next to buying Liberty Bonds your coal bill is the most important bill for you to pay. At present there is a reasonable amount of hard coal in Newton, enough to supply all the families who have not yet received any. Not all of this coal is the exact size customers usually had last year and many have refused to accept a size different from what they were accustomed to use. This is a mistake; we must forget our preferred size and take the nearest size to what we have been using that our dealer can furnish. Just at present there is a shortage of Egg Coal and a surplus of Furnace Coal. Customers should therefore take Furnace in place of Egg. Those who can use Soft Coal in any of the various heaters should certainly do so, as this can be more readily obtained. Pea Coal can also be obtained freely and can be used to advantage with larger sizes. While this good weather prevails the distribution of coal should be speeded up to the utmost. Many tears are shed, however, because customers do not pay their coal bills; and our dealers can not continue to deliver coal until deliveries already made have been paid for.

We therefore earnestly urge all consumers in Newton to cooperate with their dealers: first, by paying their bills promptly; second, by taking the nearest size coal to what they have been using they can get. After this has been done, if you can not get coal, notify the Chairman of our committee.

THE RED CROSS HOSPITAL

Here is a letter sent by one of the well-known doctors of Newton to the chairman of the Newton Chapter of the Red Cross.

Mr. C. E. Kelsey, Chairman.
Newton Chapter Red Cross.
My dear Sir:—In all the 30 years of my practice in Newton I have never known of a public service equal to that of the Red Cross Hospital established in an emergency to care for the large number of influenza cases. A great call for service was met promptly, spontaneously and efficiently.

While the Newton Hospital has increased its equipment for care of this class of patients at least 400 per cent. during the last year, this increase was inadequate for the control of this epidemic. Every doctor in Newton will, I am sure, join me in expressing the strongest possible approval of this Red Cross work. Up to date the Red Cross Hospital has treated 170 cases. Unquestionably this service has saved a number of lives. I hesitate to think what would have happened if we hadn't had the service of the Red Cross Hospital.

It has been a delight to all of us to see how generously people have taken part in this work. There never has been a lack of supplies or of helpers in making this work unique in the history of Newton's care of the sick.

Sincerely yours,
G. E. MAY.

N. H. S.

Newton has been unfortunate in losing the first two football games, for although practice affairs, they were important. Watertown should have been beaten easily but Everett had a heavier team, has been practicing regularly during the epidemic and was in much better form. Coach Dickinson has two eleven out daily, practice being from 2.15 to 4.30 as the soldiers at the Technical High use the field for drill at 4.30.

Tuesday morning all boys in the three High schools, eighteen or over or who would reach their eighteenth birthday in six weeks, went to the Technical High where they were addressed by Maj. Murray, formerly principal of the Vocational High School. Maj. Murray said it was probable that a training school for non-commissioned officers would be organized at the High School. The period of training would be eight months and the subjects would be scientific ones which the High Schools' equipment could well provide for.

Bub Eaton has joined the S. A. T. C. at the Connecticut Agricultural College. Henry Garrity who is in the S. A. T. C. at Princeton has just recovered from a bad attack of grip. Leo Hughes is in the Naval Unit at Boston.

The first edition of the Review which was to have appeared about October 10 has been cancelled and the first issue will be out on November 20. This year's Review Staff is composed of the following: Editor-in-Chief, Rodolphus Turner; Asst. Editors, Katherine Auryansen, Walter Dodge; Business Manager, Stockbridge Spence; Asst. Business Managers, Ben. Faucett, Robert Hayes; Exchanges, Emma Wilder, June Heath; Boys' Sports, Raymond Ford; Girls' Sports, Catherine Carlson; Around the Hall, Winthrop Whitaker; Among Our Graduates, Catherine Jones; Base Hits, Joseph Smith, Harold Scott.

About forty candidates have reported for the girls' field hockey team which practices Monday and Wednesday at Cabot Field.

The soldiers have moved out of the gym into barracks in the rear of the Technical High and gym classes will begin soon.

A dance will be given in the gym for the benefit of the Review on Friday, November 8.

One-half of the boys' lunchroom has been taken as a canteen for the soldiers and as a result quarters are very much cramped on rainy days. The lunch room this year is very much improved and is being conducted by Mrs. Mable Noyes. The food is very palatable and is sold at a reasonable price.

Newton is trying to arrange a game for Saturday with Dorchester High.

SOME SPUDS

A Newton resident, out for a before-breakfast stroll, was passing along a thoroughfare bordering the rear of some attractive residences when his attention was diverted by a conversation between two laborers in an adjacent "wedge" garden.

"This is going to be some crop, Ellie," remarked one.

"It sure is, Matt," replied the other, with a distinct emphasis of satisfaction in his tone.

"Let's see, now; we've dug forty bushels so far and we've dug hardly two-thirds of these rows. That ought to give us sixty-five bushels out of this quarter of an acre," commented the other meditatively.

"Easy, if the average production per row holds out as it promises to. Just look at 'em—how heavy the yield is, and how big some of these spuds are. Some of these must weigh a pound and a half apiece."

"Too big," some of 'em," replied the other critically. "You never could bake 'em clear through, and if you tried to boil them, they'd be too soft to eat."

"Well, they show what proper fertilizer and muscle and perspiration can do, anyway, and the general run is about the right size, so I think I'll take a few of them into the office to show."

"Guess I'll do the same."

"We ought to organize a Society for the Prosecution of Useful Drudgery. I'll bet we could get quite a few members if we could get the crowd to look over this acre and a quarter and see the crop of potatoes and corn and beans and all the other stuff we've raised on this patch."

Whereupon E. B. Bishop, City Solicitor of Newton and well-known Boston lawyer and M. B. Jones, Vice-President of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, were elected members of this apocryphal organization. But the potatoes are real. They weighed from 1 1/4 to 1 3/4 pounds each.—Telephone Topics.

THE UNITARIAN CLUB

The Unitarian Club of Newton held its first meeting of the season at Channing church last evening, with the new president, William B. Baker in the chair. After the usual banquet, there was an address by Hon. Robert Luce on the Constitutional Convention and its work. Mr. Luce, who is one of the best public speakers in the Commonwealth, gave a most interesting and timely address, giving a brief history of the making of constitutions, some interesting sidelights on the work of previous conventions and a very full and careful summary of the 19 amendments to be voted upon at the coming state election.

In Mr. Luce's opinion, there should be but little objection to at least 15 of the 19 amendments, most of which were passed unanimously by the Convention, and most of which would add to the efficiency of the state administration. The four amendments which he said caused the most discussion and division in the Convention were those authorizing compulsory voting, biennial elections, the conservation and utilization of natural resources, and the initiative and referendum. Personally Mr. Luce was favorable to the first and third, and opposed to the second and fourth, although, in the last analysis he believed that the state would still survive whatever action was taken by the voters. He opposed biennials largely on the ground that they would bring in too many new legislators and we would, in an exaggerated sense, become a government by greenhorns. He believed the initiative and referendum a clumsy and awkward device to accomplish a desirable result, and didn't think it would work well.

DEATH OF BENJAMIN HAMMOND

Benjamin Hammond, 80, of Lake avenue, Newton Centre, who died Friday, October 19, at his home, 333 Centre street, was born in Fairhaven, and came to Boston when 15 years of age. He was a member of the former Corn Exchange, and one of the oldest members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. He was first a member of the firm of Joseph Greeley and Company, later of that of Hosmer Crampton and Hammond, and afterward the firm became B. Hammond and Company. He leaves two daughters, Miss Laura Hammond of Newton Centre, and Mrs. Marie Hammond Usina of Portsmouth, N. H., and a son, Edward Hosmer Hammond of Newton Centre.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon by Rev. W. I. Lawrence of Auburndale, and burial was at Newton Cemetery.

W. C. T. U. ITALIAN BRANCH

To the Readers of the Newton Graphic:—

In connection with the North End Italian Young People's branch of the W. C. T. U., which has clubrooms at 49 Tiltson street, Boston, under the direction of Dr. N. Louise Rand of West Newton, plans are being made to inaugurate a cooking class, also a department for physical education. Donations of cooking tins and dishes, glass plate, etc., in fact, anything useful in a home kitchen, will be greatly appreciated. A sphygmometer, and chest expansion exerciser would help very much in creating and holding the interest of the boys in their physical development. Any apparatus which does not occupy too much space would be very acceptable. Many of the boys between 16 and 20 are working inside all day and getting little or no exercise, and we feel that for their best welfare and health they need something regular along this line.

It is the aim of the organization to develop these future citizens physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually, and the interest and cooperation of friends in this Americanization work helps to make it a success. Anyone interested to contribute any of the above articles may communicate with or telephone to Dr. N. Louise Rand, 247 Austin street, West Newton. Phone Newton West 1362-R.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

GRACE M. BURT, Editor.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, is sending out an appeal to the clubs of the state to cooperate this year even more than last in the saving of food, not only in the individual homes but also at club functions. The results of last year's savings in the country amounted to 11,000,000 tons of foodstuffs, and it is necessary to save half as much again this coming year in order to feed our army and our allies. This means that no unnecessary refreshments can be served, and the strictest economy must be practiced everywhere. It has been the custom of the clubs entertaining the State Federation at its meetings to serve a luncheon for the members of the State Board and speakers; the Board has voted this year to ask the clubs to do this, and they also requested that no refreshments be served at the Presidents' Conference, which was to have been held last week had not the epidemic called it off. Newton women have been very ready to respond to all requests from the Food Administration, and doubtless the clubs economy more than ready to fall into line. Omittng teas need not mean the cutting out of all sociability when once we have learned to disassociate it from eating.

Local Announcements

In order to make up the time lost on account of omittng meetings, the Newton Highlands C. L. S. G. will meet every week for the present. On Monday next Miss Marion Dorr, the president, will be hostess at her home on Lake avenue.

The Newtonville Woman's Guild will hold a Get Together on Tuesday afternoon, October 29, at 3 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Charles Ryder of Walnut street. Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney and Mrs. Irving O. Palmer will be the guests of honor and make brief addresses. The affair will be simple and informal, and a pleasant reunion after the summer.

The Auburndale Review Club will hold its first meeting for this season at the home of Miss Lucy Burr, Hancock street, Tuesday, October 29, at 10 A.M. The program, which was to have been given October 15, will be presentation of "The Talisman" by Scott. Mrs. George E. Martin, Mrs. J. Emory Clapp and Mrs. Franklin E. Leland constitute the committee of the morning.

The first meeting of the Newton Centre Woman's Club will be on Thursday, October 31, under the auspices of the newly organized War Service committee. The subject of this patriotic meeting will be "Behind the Trenches," the speakers, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, chairman of the Massachusetts Women's Committee, Council of National Defense, Mrs. James J. Storrow, chairman of the War Service committee of the Boston Women's City Club and Miss Moberley of England, who has been active in war work among the women of Russia, England and France.

The Travel Club will meet on Monday, October 28, with Mrs. E. M. Diamond, 2358 Washington street, Newton Lower Falls.

Local Happenings

The Newton Highlands Monday Club opened its season at the home of Mrs. E. S. Drown, 22 Lakewood road. The subject was "Our Daily Bread," with papers by Mrs. D. W. Eagles, Mrs. E. S. Drown and Mrs. C. H. Keeler.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. H. B. Rogers presented a study of Thoreau before the Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. at its first meeting of the season.

Tuesday, October 22, interest centered in the reports of war work done by the Woman's Club of Newton Highlands in the interim of its meetings.

Mrs. Louis H. Marshall, chairman of the War Service committee, reported that during the campaign for War Savings Stamps in the early summer, members of the club secured pledges to the amount of $30,000. Members have been active all summer in sewing, in making surgical dressings and in knitting. Although the workrooms were closed during the epidemic, 100,000 surgical dressings have been made and 1700 masks for use by those caring for influenza patients. Mrs. Marshall made an earnest appeal for every woman to devote at least three hours every week to sewing and a like amount of time to surgical dressings.

Mrs. Wallace Leonard reported on the entertaining of men in service, saying that sixty men have been entertained at week-end parties each month during the summer, and ten at dinner each Sunday. This work of extending hospitality has been recognized by the government as so important a factor, that there has been established a desk both at Commonwealth Pier and at the Radio School in Cambridge to arrange for it in a systematic manner. Mrs. Leonard herself will be in charge of the one at Commonwealth Pier.

Mrs. C. G. Waterhouse reported the annual meeting of the State Federation held in Boston in June, and also of the Woman's Committee on the Liberty Loan in the last campaign, of which she is chairman for Newton Highlands. In that village alone, $169,700 was subscribed.

The Civics committee, of which Mrs. Merton S. Wallace is chairman, carried on the weighing and measuring of the babies.

An appropriation of $25 was voted for the Baby Clinic at Upper Falls, and all the receipts from the sale of guest tickets will be devoted to the work of the Women Associates. The sum of $125 was guaranteed, but in all probability the total will exceed that amount.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of the Education committee; Mrs. B. Walter Godsoe, the chairman, introduced Mrs. William C. Crawford, who gave a comprehensive view of the situation abroad, suggesting that the fall of Bulgaria is the beginning of the end, although it will take many months before peace is restored. This is the first of a course of three current events lectures which Mrs. Crawford will give the club at intervals during the year.

At the first meeting of the Auburn-dale Woman's Club at the Technical High School on Tuesday, October 22, Earl Barnes, Ph.D., gave an illuminating lecture on "The British Empire." He developed the importance of England in the coming world peace. England, the great monopolist of the world, has already shown her wisdom in colonial management by allowing her colonies to rule themselves; a policy which has resulted in the maintenance of law and order. The British Isles and the colonies are united by an intangible bond, a relation that is profitable for the colonies. Dr. Barnes closed his lecture with the question of England's monopoly of the seas. He justified her rule of the seas on the ground that she has established a law and order that is profitable to the world. Can we trust England to continue these conditions?

Following the enforced postponement of his lecture, Dr. Barnes gave but two more of the course on October 29 and November 5. The subjects will be The Balkan Peninsula, and The German Empire.

Newton Federation

Much business was dispatched expeditiously at the regular meeting of the Executive Board of the Federation on Monday morning. Mrs. C. E. Keeler, the new treasurer, reported the proceeds of the Patriotic Fete as $850.64.

The Education committee has co-operated in the disposal of tickets for the Earl Barnes lectures, in securing the re-equipment of the lunchroom at the Classical High School, and now presents the new work of the year, a teaching English to the foreign-born women of the city. Arrangements have been made for a class to train those who will do the teaching.

Mrs. C. D. Kepner will act as chairman of the Civics and Social Service committee of the Federation this week, and the work of the committee will include assisting in the social welfare of the men in the training detachment at the Technical High School. Mrs. Wellman, the probation officer, spoke briefly of the need for keeping the girls off the street, and of problems arising from the war situation. She brought the urgent request from the chief of police that the mothers keep their children at home on Halloween.

Mrs. W. H. Hunt reported on the Hostess House, which has been maintained through the summer, and stated that the women are asked to raise $800 for furnishing the new hut. It is hoped to do this through the proceeds of a play which will be given by members of the Newtonville Woman's Guild at Players' Hall, December 2 and 3.

"The Child in Our Midst" will be the subject of the fall meeting of the Federation on November 13 at Temple Hall.

To further emphasize the need of surveillance over our girls during the war period, Miss Mabelle Blake, of the Society for the Care of Girls, gave suggestions as to meeting present problems. She advocated keeping girls busy, interesting them in war work, the Red Cross work, in helping carry on dances for the men in service; arouse them to community interests, so that when peace comes they will have something to occupy their attention; and give them wholesome recreation. She advocated putting new life and spirit into war organizations rather than starting new ones, and bringing the various leaders together to work out concerted action. She laid particular stress on the necessity of securing the right leaders.

The sum of $500 was voted for the Welfare Bureau, $25 for the West Newton Music School and $10 towards the expense of publishing a leaflet on "Housing Conditions in Newton."

NEWTON BRANCH SPECIAL AID

Friends of the Newton Special Aid will be interested to know the character and amount of work done by the Home Work Department from October 1st until the rooms were reopened last Monday. 123 hospital shirts of unbleached cotton and 53 sets of gray flannel pajamas were sent in to headquarters. They went, in part, to supply hospitals caring for influenza patients. Also 23 sets of flannel pajamas have gone to the Italian War Relief for the hospitals in Italy. This makes a quota of 199 garments taken home by the workers. The plan has been so successful that the Home Work Department would like to have those who feel they can pledge a garment or two a week in addition to those made in the work rooms. Work will be delivered and collected every Friday morning. Will you help us?

A gratifying piece of news has reached us in a recent letter Miss Mason said that the zealous work done by the Newton Branch during the summer made it possible for the headquarters to fill the first influenza emergency call for night shirts. This is an incentive for each to enlarge her working capacity.

Another kind of sewing was well started, the Christmas bags for soldiers and sailors, of which there were 243 completed. There are three kinds: heavy blue canvas for the navy, khaki cloth for the army and bright, pretty cretonnes for the sick in hospitals. Bags to make may be had in packages of ten. Further notice will be given of the approximate cost of filling and the kinds and number of articles for each.

An appeal has come from the Public Safety Committee for cast off clothing for the women and children of Exeter who are destitute from the epidemic. Any kind will be welcome. Bundles left at the Special Aid rooms in the Y. M. C. A. building will be sent to the proper authorities. Questions may be referred to Mrs. Moore, 60 Pembroke street, Newton North 327, or to Mrs. Clarkson, 42 Hollis street, Newton North 38.

VETERAN ICE MAN GONE

Death of George D. Miller, Well Known in the Trade

George D. Miller, 62, who died Saturday, was one of the best known men in the ice business in the state, he having been in that line for 45 years. He was born in Nova Scotia and began a business in this country at Lawrence, Mass., where he lived until he removed to Newton Lower Falls in 1891. There he founded the business now conducted by his sons, and in 1903 bought out the George Ellis ice business in Newton Centre, and made his home on Norwood street. He had not been in good health for some years and sold out his business three years ago. He was a very active man and a good citizen.

He leaves his widow, whose maiden name was Mary Barry, and she was of Randolph, Mass. He also leaves two sons, George E. of Norwood avenue, Newton Centre, and Benjamin D. of Edinboro place, Newtonville, and a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Ayres, wife of Rev. W. B. Ayres, fleet chaplain of Admiral Sims' destroyers now in service in European waters.

The funeral was held Tuesday at the home, conducted by Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, the family being connected with Trinity parish. The bearers were members of the Massachusetts Ice Dealers' Association, and members of Masonic bodies also attended. Burial was at Newton cemetery.

Mr. Miller was a member of the John Hancock Lodge of Masons of Methuen, of Newton Royal Arch Chapter of Newtonville, and Gethsemane Commandery of Knights Templar of Newtonville. He also was a member of the Massachusetts Ice Dealers' Association, and on the executive board of the same for 10 years; was a member of the Natural Ice Dealers' Association of America, and on the state advisory board of that organization, member of the Metropolitan Driving Club, the Wellesley Club, the Newton Club, and the Newton Board of Trade. He gave liberally to various organizations he was interested in, but would never permit the use of his name in connection with the gifts.

CHARITY BRIDGE

The charity bridge for the benefit of the West Newton Day Nursery will be held at the home of Mrs. Dowse on Temple street, West Newton, Thursday evening, November 14, at 8.30 o'clock. The committee earnestly urges all who purchase tables to have them occupied as far as possible that we may show our appreciation of Mrs. Dowse's courtesy in offering the use of her home. The hostess for each table is asked to provide the prize for that table of from 1 to 4 thrift stamps. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Carl E. Pickard, chairman of the committee in charge, telephone N.W. 661-W, or of Mrs. Ernest Gile, secretary, N.W. 857-M. All are urged to take a table, attend if possible, and help to make the evening a social as well as a financial success.

DEATH OF LIEUT. HUGGARD

Lieut. George Stewart Huggard of Everett street, Newton Centre, of the 13th Regiment, died of pneumonia September 27, a day after his arrival in France. Lieut. Huggard sailed September 13 from Quantico, Va. He was 23 years old, was graduated from Newton Technical High School in 1914, being on the honor roll. He took one year at Trinity College, which he left to join the Marine Corps. He was stationed at Paris Island, S. C., for three months, at San Domingo for seven months, and was then selected to take the officers' training course at Quantico, where he was commissioned second lieutenant August 15. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Huggard, and also leaves a sister.

SERGEANT GOODWIN CITED

Sergeant Forrest E. Goodwin of Cypress street, Newton Centre, has been cited for gallantry and meritorious services on the battlefield at Chateau-Thierry and elsewhere. Sergeant Goodwin, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Goodwin, has been in active service in France since September 1917. He was formerly of Troop C, Massachusetts Cavalry, which is now Troop A, 102nd machine gun battalion, 26th Division. He was in active service on the Mexican border previous to his service in France.

CITY HALL NOTES

The registration of voters for the state election resulted in 324 new names being added to the list, making a total of 7809 for the city. In 1917 the total was 7973. The absence of so many men in the service accounts for the falling off.

NON-ESSENTIAL WORK

in the opinion of those in charge of the administration of the schools of the city can be given in addition to the special training of soldiers as above stated and the regular work of the schools.

IT IS RESOLVED, By the Board of Aldermen of the City of Newton, that the Committee on Education and Special Training of the war department be and it is hereby requested to approve the Newton Vocational School as offering the special training desired by the war department, and that the necessary arrangements be made for the formation of a "students' army training corps" in said school and the registration therein of the boys of said Newton over 18 years of age.

AND IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Committee on Education and Special Training of the War Department.

Alderman Blake said that the practical effect of the resolution would be that the Newton Vocational School would be accepted for fitness to train Newton boys to qualify as junior officers in minor grades. Alderman Cole questioned the possibility of the government establishing a S.A.T.C. in Newton, and the thought that the wording of the last clause might call back from the various college S.A.T.C. many Newton boys who were already enrolled. The board evidently believed that the government would do as it pleased anyway, and adopted Alderman Blake's resolution.

Another debate followed the suggestion of Alderman Hollis that the board approve a favorable vote of constitutional amendments 3 and 13 by the voters at the coming state election, the first relating to billboards and the second to building restrictions in residential neighborhoods. Mr. Hollis thought the voters might look to the board for suggestions on matters on which the board would probably have some jurisdiction if adopted. Alderman Allen opposed the motion on the ground that it was not a function of the aldermen. Alderman Hapgood said that these two matters were clearly local in their application and might properly be acted upon. The motion was adopted with several dissenting votes.

Mayor Childs sent in a suggestion that the aldermen, under the authority of recent legislation, ought to consider the advisability of aiding the M. & B. Street Railway Company to resume its Newtonville-Newton Centre line. This matter was later taken up on motion of Alderman Clark, who wanted quicker action taken, and a committee consisting of Alderman Clark, Carter and Whidden was appointed to interview the M. & B. officials, to see if a school car could not be put on at once.

The mayor also recommended $175 for a survey of heating plants in the city buildings with the object of saving coal the coming winter.

The Telephone company was granted an attachment in the city street, a location on Fuller street, and permit to remove poles on Nahanton street. The Edison company was granted poles on Nahanton street and a relocation at Watertown street and Lowell avenue.

A sewer was ordered laid in Otis park, at various small additional appropriations authorized, including a payment of $72.52 for Workmen's Compensation to Martha Sandella. The public works committee reported inexpedient on proposed drains at Nye Park and at the Peirce school.

The West End Street Railway company asked more for an extension of the line in which to complete its loop arrangement at Lake street, and Mr. F. Gasbarri asked for abatement of a drainage assessment on his property on Boylston street.

Two lodging house permits and a permit to use a three-car garage on Chester street were granted, and a hearing held on petition of J. F. McGuire for a gasoline permit on Prince street.

Alderman Clark stated that Alderman Holt had informed him that his absence was due to the fact that his physician had ordered his family to remain at his summer home for some weeks to come.

The board adjourned at 9.25.

NEWTON REALTY MARKET ACTIVE

John T. Burns & Sons, Inc., of Newton, Newtonville and Newton Centre report that they have negotiated a large number of sales in this district the past month. Several very valuable parcels in the West Newton Hill section are under agreement and final papers will go to record within the next few weeks.

In the Crystal Lake district of Newton Highlands this concern has sold for Anna F. Naugler the property situated at 25 Lakewood road. The house is a spacious ten room frame semi bungalow with all modern conveniences. Together with 10,000 square feet of land it is valued at $11,500. Robert C. Sears buys for occupancy.

John T. Burns & Sons also report that they have sold the single frame house situated at 10 Blackstone terrace in the Farlow Hill district of Newton. With the house which is practically new there are 5445 square feet of land and the total assessment is $7500. Title is given by John B. Harris to John C. Church who buys for occupancy.

The above agency also report that they have sold the house at 235 Cabot street, Newtonville. This property consists of a frame colonial 8 room modern home and 5500 square feet of land. It is valued at $10,000. Edmund S. and Dorothy J. Whitten, who buy for a home.

The same concern report that they have sold for Edward H. Estabrook his frame 10 room house situated at 102 Boyd street, Newton. With the house there are 7600 square feet of land and the total assessment is $5500. Felice Oliveri buys for occupancy.

John T. Burns & Sons also report the sale of 22-24 Burton street, Newton and Brighton. The property is a two family frame house of 15 rooms and 2 baths with modern improvements. There are 7300 square feet of land and the total assessment is $7000. Deed is given by Oakley H. Bailey to Margaret A. Darling who buys for investment.

SENATOR WEEKS' VIEWS

On After the War Problems

He would be a rash person who at this time attempted to prophesy what conditions will prevail after the war. Many people fail to appreciate, however, that the world is passing through an industrial and social revolution almost as important as the military operations which are engrossing our attention. It does not take a prophet to predict that social and industrial conditions after the war are sure to be quite different from those with which we have been familiar or that there is an absolute certainty that it will not be possible to return to all pre-war conditions. Therefore, one of our duties is to be considering the questions which will develop so that we may be prepared to retain all that was good in our system before the war and to quickly and accurately adjust ourselves to the changes which will result from the experience obtained during our war preparation and operations.

It is not of any particular moment to criticize actions which have been taken since our declaration of war or since the beginning of the European war unless we can at the same time obtain from those actions the valuable lessons which should be learned and from them demonstrate their practicability or the desirability of adopting some better method. In other words, in criticisms of the conduct of the war and the relation of the government to the people we must be prepared to fairly accept those things which have been demonstrated as good, while on the other hand we cannot do a greater public service than be prepared to condemn the things which are likely to be harmful.

Personal and Property Rights of the Individual

One of the first considerations relating to this general subject, it seems to me, is the question of personal and property rights of the individual. Every impartial historian, looking back over the past hundred years, must agree that while we have taken advantage to a remarkable degree of the natural resources of our country but have frequently been wasteful of them, we have as individuals accomplished very marvelous things. An enumeration of the progressive acts originating and developed in the United States during that period would fill volumes, and in my opinion our achievements have been made possible as a result of the ability of every man in this country to develop his own career. The door has been wide open to him and while he may have been embarrassed and restricted by his immediate environments, the opportunity for personal advancement nevertheless has always been available. Examples of the correctness of this statement are multitudinous and it needs no demonstration. It applies to not only personal accomplishments, but equally to property acquisitions and protection.

How different is the situation which we see in Russia where there seems to be an absolute collapse of organized effort amounting very nearly to a complete collapse of a civilization which has been developed during the last few centuries. Notwithstanding the claim that there is a democratic government in Russia, it is true that the personal and property rights of the individual are completely disregarded. It does not take a man of great prescience to see that there is a similar drift in every other country and that we in the United States are not entirely removed from its possibility, and as there is nothing good in it but every possibility of harm we should set our faces against the possibility of such a condition developing in our country. For when we destroy the possibility of favorable results from individual effort, either in the acquisition or protection of property or from any other individual right which we have guaranteed to our citizens, we are taking from them the initiative which has been the stimulus to their accomplishment for which we, as a people, are responsible.

It has been sometimes charged that there is not an opportunity to every individual even in the United States and in very restricted ways this may be true, but even if it is true in isolated instances, I would so broaden the opportunity that it would be under all conditions; in this connection we must take into account the tendency of the autocracy created in this country since the declaration of war, a necessary step in the war's conduct in order to obtain efficiency, but which produces a condition likely to be taken advantage of by ambitious men to perpetuate their selfish interests through such policies so that if we are going to surely prevent such possibilities we should limit all autocratic legislation and activities to war time. Moreover I do not believe it is well for us as a country to enlarge the scope of our governmental operations. Even in military operations it does not always spell efficiency and in a democracy it will almost surely mean exactly the reverse. Every local prejudice and political condition enters in to influence the operations of the Government and such operations will surely tend to lessen the individuality of the citizen and will destroy that condition to which I have referred. What we should do as a Government is to try to help people to help themselves, instead of developing a Government the first purpose of which will be to assume a paternalism which will destroy the individualism of the citizen. Therefore as a practical proposition we should at the end of the war make a careful inventory of what has been done in connection with its prosecution, the unusual steps we have taken, the effect they have had on the social and industrial welfare of the country, and retain only those things which it is clearly demonstrated have proven themselves to be sound and wise and as far as practicable to return to the other conditions which existed before the war.

Financial Policies of the Government

I am not wise enough to feel sure that any views I express relating to the conduct of the finances of the Government during the war would not need, as it goes on, careful revision and overhauling. In such matters we should make use of what is at our disposal, that is, the great amount of experience and testimony of experienced men which may easily be obtained. Therefore, those in authority should commandeer the advice of men of knowledge, training and experience in financial affairs and adopt the consensus of their opinions. In my judgment, however, Congress at the last session made about a correct division of the amount of money which should be raised from taxation and from borrowing. Naturally this question is hedged about with all kinds of contingencies and especially by the effect any particular action may have on a multitude of other policies which we had established in the past and which are in operation. It is quite likely we can increase taxation in some directions without doing great harm, but in the final analysis the money which should be used in prosecuting the war is surplus. After we have absorbed this, any additional money coming from the people should be borrowed and it is desirable that we do not adopt any action which will so affect business that it will be impossible to make profits, for by so doing we will destroy the ability of those who otherwise would readily come to the assistance of the Government. There is some difference of opinion on this subject, but I am confident that we should in every way encourage business enterprises provided they do not interfere with Governmental requirements which should come first, and there should be no hesitation in commandeering facilities needed by the Government in its prosecution of the war. Many of the unusual methods adopted since the beginning of the war seem to have merit when examined individually, but they often produce results which are only at best partially satisfactory. No better illustration of this could be given than the price-fixing policy. Undoubtedly this policy has merit, especially in cases where we do not produce enough of any particular article for our own needs, but in fixing the price of one article we must frequently, if we are to follow a logical course, fix the price of others which come into competition with it. For example, we have had a government price on wheat during the past season and a somewhat higher price has been provided by the recent Act of Congress, but fixing the price for wheat and not applying a similar process to other cereals entering into competition with it, such as oats, corn, barley and rye, produces this result—that the competing cereals advance in price so that they become more valuable for practical purposes than the wheat which we wish to protect and the natural result is that wheat is used by the stockman, while other cereals go to human beings for food purposes.

I think this subject is much too comprehensive for me to go into any detail, but the above statement illustrates the reality of price fixing without doing as much or more harm than good.

Investigation Before Changing Our Institutions

This is essentially a time when people should keep their heads, should not try to advance personal theories and should follow as far as possible established methods and precedents. Those having any regard for our institutions of the past should combine in insisting upon a complete investigation before any of those institutions are permanently changed. It will only be by following this course that we will be able to avoid many pitfalls. On the other hand, if we give our heads to adopting the antitheses which are on every hand for every imaginary ill, we shall find ourselves drifting on an unmarked sea and in a rudderless boat. In fact, the future of this country and of the world is in danger if level-headed, sound thinking people do not give themselves to a solution of the problems of the future.—The Bankers Magazine.

posals, that is, the great amount of experience and testimony of experienced men which may easily be obtained. Therefore, those in authority should commandeer the advice of men of knowledge, training and experience in financial affairs and adopt the consensus of their opinions. In my judgment, however, Congress at the last session made about a correct division of the amount of money which should be raised from taxation and from borrowing.
